QUINCY MAYOR DEFIES CLERGYMEN ON PLAY

BOSTON DAY by DAY

By FRED TOTE

JAMES H. WALSH, manager of the Bureau of Commercial and Industrial Affairs at the Boston Chamber of Commerce, has been holding out on his associates. They all knew that he was the proud father of four girls and that the next would be a boy. Lately, news leaked out that another arrival had appeared at the Walsh home. Curatly the staff of the Chamber took considerable interest in the subject of the fifth youngster. The baby is now three weeks old. Edward O. Otis, secretary of the New England Export Club, asked Manager Walsh yesterday:

"Why didn't you give us the news sooner?"

"Oh," the happy father replied. "It wasn't any news. It was just another girl."

THERE'S a talented and temperamental teacher of dramatic art in town who's somewhat up in the air these days over a recent discovery.

She has a large number of girl pupils from wealthy families. She works hard with them, training conspicuous hands and feet to relax into graceful unobtrusiveness. She shows the lassies how to manifest interest, how to walk and to hold their chins, and how to direct their glances with that fine degree of naturalness which is the summit of art.

The other day a fond mother was indiscreet enough to say to her:

"Now, won't you take my Jennie and do for her just what you did for Mildred So-and-So? She was a perfect dumbbell and you've given her personality. All the boys are crazy about her."

"Dio mio! Is that what I'm doing!" cried the amazed teacher. "Giving my art and my life to put personality into dumbbells? Take her away."

The cat was out of the bag. Word had passed around the sewing circle that a course of acting lessons was just the thing to give young daughters the poise and carriage and allure which would make them stand out from their friends on the matrimonial auction block. Anything to catch the weary eye of the eligible college boy.

IT'S A STRANGE GAME, this mating business as it's conducted by many of our conservative rich. Strange in these modern days when we laugh at the European rule of family participation in young matches.

The sons of the rich see far less of life than is generally supposed. Their rounds of activity are strictly limited. They all go to the same places, do the same things, see the same faces day after day, and year after year.

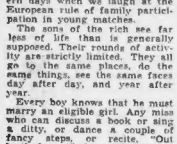
Every boy knows that he must marry an eligible girl. Any miss who can discuss a book or sing a ditty, or dance a couple of fancy steps, or recite, "Out loathed spot" from MacBeth is considered accomplished. Any girl who can walk across a room with grace, who can sit in a chair without breaking the springs, or who has a fine complexion or pretty hair, is blessed. Any little thing that is a departure from the eternal inanity of life's routine, is enough to turn the trick.

But woe to the society lad who looks outside and lays his heart at the feet of some nice girl who isn't "in." He faces years of penance and purgatory unless he shuns most of his former associates completely. Only a man of tremendous social power and unlimited wealth can bring in a wife from the outside world.

WARWICK DEEPING, in his latest novel, "Roper's Row" speaks about his lame hero, with violin tucked under his chin, who "observed life with a kind of ironic gravity."

He speaks of a companion musician "blowing at his flute with an air of dark melancholy."

The third of the trio is a banjoist who "had an eternal smile and an exuberant good humor."



Who ever saw a banjoist who wasn't in good humor? Violinists seem to have a detached view of contemporary existence—their gravity has its roots in a profound respect for their own art. Harpists seem to live in the clouds. Trombonists have the carefree characteristics of their elastic brazen noisemakers.

But no matter what the instrument, the player thereof is sure to tell all who care to listen that his is the worst of all to make a living by. One of the finest rows I've heard in many a day took place not long ago when a harpist, a violinist, an organist, a flutist and an oboist tried to settle this point. I came away convinced they were all correct. But none of them ever tried writing a newspaper column.

WON'T BLOCK STAGING OF 'INTERLUDE'

Ministers Plan Protest Meeting; City Is Split by Theater Row

While rival forces were lining up to wage war over "Strange Interlude" in Quincy today, Mayor Thomas J. McGrath refused to recede from his announced position that the much discussed play may be presented in that city.

As matters now stand, the premiere of the Eugene O'Neill prize production is scheduled for presentation Monday night, after having been banned in Boston and Cambridge.

Not only did Mayor McGrath declare he would permit presentation of "Strange Interlude," but he added he plans to attend the opening performance.

WILL ATTEND PLAY.

"I have received many letters of protest," said the mayor, "but I have also been commended for my stand. I have arranged to read the book, although I realize that the book and the play differ. I refuse to change my announcement that the play will be permitted here and furthermore, will attend the opening performance."

The Rev. Frank Littoria, pastor of the Central Baptist Church, Quincy, wrote the mayor:

"Surely our mayor cannot hope that anything so improper needs further comment as the plot of that play which it is proposed to bring to our city."

The mayor said he did not know whether the Rev. Littoria had read the book.

MINISTERS TO MEET.

Rev. William Shaw of the Atlantic M. E. Church, in his letter of protest, said he had read excerpts from "Strange Interlude."

"From this reading," he said, "it would appear there is little room for any question if we are to have any real censorship in the interest of clean books it should begin here."

Rev. Hugh C. Leggatt, pastor of the Hough's Neck Congregational Church, has called a special meeting of the Quincy Ministers' Association for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to take action on the matter.

Women's clubs are also expected to act, while business men's organizations are said to favor presentation of the play.

K. OF C. ELECT IN BROOKLINE

Daniel F. Trahon was named grand knight, and John J. Keaveney, deputy grand knight at the annual election of Brookline Council, Knights of Columbus.

J. J. Keaveney

The new head of the council immediately formulated plans for the most active fall and winter season in the history of the organization.

Other officers elected were Ted Firth, chancellor; John F. Kelly, recorder; James P. Ford, treasurer; Denis F. Bowen, advocate; Herbert R. Williams, warden; Howard F. Welch, inside guard; Michael Mahan, outside guard; William F. McDonough, trustee; Joseph A. Craven, trustee; Thomas B. McCaffery and Daniel F. Trahon, delegates to state convention; William F. McDonough and Joseph A. Craven, alternate delegates to state convention, and Peter D. McPhee, delegate to Boston Chapter.

Bagley Camp Holds Anniversary Party

Ensign Worth Bagley Camp, U. S. W. V., of Charlestown, will celebrate its 30th anniversary Thursday evening in Memorial hall, Green st., Charlestown.

Col. Willis W. Stover, the first commander of the camp, will preside. There will be a reception, banquet and addresses by distinguished citizens, including Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman, a veteran of the Spanish War, and Department Comdr. Charles F. McCarthy of Marlboro.

Veterans of Abraham Lincoln Post 31, G. A. R., will be guests of honor. A fine program is being arranged under the supervision of Maj. George T. Latimer.

Dorchester St. Closed

While sewer construction is in progress on Washington st., Dorchester, between Hurlcroft ave. and the southern artery, all vehicles will be excluded from that section of Washington st.

Riches for Companion

Trace Missing Somerville Girls

Miss Theresa Hitchler was left $10,000 in cash and the income of a trust fund of $150,000 and all the personal belongings of Mrs. Annie H. Brown of Stoneham, for whom Miss Hitchler had been a companion for the past two years. Inset shows Tim, Mrs. Brown's pet cat which, under the will, is to be put to death. Photo of Mrs. Brown shown in upper insel. (Staff photo.)

LOVE OF PETS WINS WOMAN A FORTUNE

Gets $10,000, Besides $6000 a Year, Under Will of Stoneham Spinster

Because she shared with the deceased a mutual love for birds and animals, Miss Theresa Hitchler, 58, receives a fortune under the will of Miss Annie H. Brown, 59, of Stoneham, whose companion she was for only a year.

Filing of Miss Brown's will for probate reveals that she bequeathed $10,000 outright to Miss Hitchler. In addition the latter will receive $6000 annually from a $150,000 trust fund set aside for her.

What has proven to be Miss Hitchler's good fortune has turned out to be a death sentence for the bird and animal pets of Miss Brown's household. One provision of her will stipulated that they be humanely killed following her death.

"Tim," the big pet cat of the household, seemed to sense something wrong in the air today and was not his usual spry feline self.

Miss Brown left a fortune of more than $2,000,000, to the surprise of her friends, who believed she was worth little more than the $500,000 she inherited from her parents.

The greater part of this fortune is disposed of in public bequests, many to charitable institutions.

Miss Hitchler was a librarian in Brooklyn, N. Y., when she met Miss Brown five years ago, giving up her work a year ago to become the Stoneham woman's companion.

Plan Tuition Club for B. C. Schools

The Federal National Bank of Boston will open a tuition club, first of its kind in the country, for the students at Boston College, its Extension School or the Law School shortly after after classes get under way.

The club will be similar to the Christmas Clubs in vogue through out the country in that it will allow the students to transfer their money from their savings account to the payment of the tuition.

Hipkiss to Speak at B. U. Art Exhibit

Edwin James Hipkiss, curator of Decorative Art at the Museum of Fine Arts, is to be one of the lecturers at Boston University Festival and Antique Treasures exhibit in the Copley-Plaza, October 14 to 16, Mrs. Robert S. Hoffman, chairman, announced today.

Nearly $400 in gifts have been received.

B. U. GIRL BRIDE IN ELOPEMENT ON THIRD TRY

Weds Harvard Law Student After Early Morning Trip to Housatonic

Twice balked on the threshold of matrimony by the canceling of their marriage licenses, Ruth Miller, graduate of Boston University College of Liberal Arts and John Arthur Otley, Harvard law student, are honeymooning today, the third license issued bringing the desired result.

The ceremony took place a few hours before dawn at the home of Rev. E. G. Wahl, Methodist minister at Housatonic. The minister was awakened by a telephone call and performed the ceremony in true movie style.

The romance of the young couple stirred keen interest among their fellow-students for it was while both were attending school last November that Otley obtained the first license at Cambridge City Hall. Again last May young Otley filed a second set of intentions after handing back the first marked "Unused."

Otley, who is 26, is the son of Mrs. H. H. Otley of Nebraska. He will continue his studies at Harvard. Mrs. Otley is 21 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob R. Miller, of Bellwood, Pa.

Says Parents Set Flaming Youth Afire

Chicago, Sept. 25 (INS)—The so-called present epidemic of flaming youth is the result of license indulged in by parents.

"The child," J. W. Faust of New York warned in making this assertion, "no matter how young, knows when the parents have been out at cocktail parties."

Weds in Secret

Former Ruth Miller, B. U. graduate, who became bride of John A. Otley, Harvard law student, in elopement. The couple are now on honeymoon. She lives in Bellwood, Pa.

Francis E. Kelley in Fight for Council

Francis E. Kelley of Ward 15, who worked his way through college and law school, selling Boston Evening Americans, has entered the city council fight in his ward.

He will be supported by Cornelius R. Sullivan, who withdrew his own name in favor of Kelley.

MIGHT SEEK WORK IN FLORIDA

3 High School Juniors, 15 Years Old, Vanished From Home Monday

Three Somerville high school girls, missing since Monday, were sought today throughout New England and New York.

The girls, all 15 years old, and all members of the freshman class, are Ethel Taylor of Thurston st., Marion C Curry o Granite st. and Margaret Bellomo of Sargent ave.

Between them when they disappeared they had a total of $30.

The chums, all members of good families, are believed to have found routine too commonplace and to have fled their studies and homes in search of work.

Marion Curry, according to the Somerville police, had expressed the wish to leave school and begin work and had received from her mother permission to do so providing she secured a position in Boston.

Authorities believe the girls may be attempting to make their way to Florida to work as waitresses in hotels there during the winter tourist season.

HITS "LAXITY" IN PALESTINE

Scoring Great Britain for alleged laxity in applying the powers of its mandate in Palestine, Louis Lipsky, president of the Zionist Organization of America, accused that nation of responsibility for the appalling loss of life and property in the recent Arab outbreaks, in a stirring address before the New England Zionist Region in Temple Ohabei Shalom, Beacon st., Brookline.

Recently returned from Palestine and London, Lipsky asserted that a radical change in England's policy in the Holy Land is now in order. To date, he charged, the only thing done by the mandatory government to make amends for the Arab atrocities has been the restoration of order in Palestine.

Lipsky said:

"Great Britain stands accused before the bar of international public opinion for the recent outbreaks in Palestine, for the loss of life and property, and for the breach that has been made in the international guarantees given to the Jewish people that they might return to their homeland under the protection of law.

"Thus far all that has been done by the mandatory government to make amends has been the reaffirmation of order and the appointment of the parliamentary commission to make a judicial inquiry as to the causes of the disorder. This is insufficient.

"A radical change of British policy in Palestine is in order. Hitherto, it has muffled the aim of the mandate. It has never been made clear to the Arabs what is meant by Jewish National Home.

Hull Is Named Head of Accident Board

State officials were surprised today when Gov. Allen announced the appointment of John C. Hull of Leominster, former speaker of the House, as a member of the industrial accident board to succeed David T. Dickinson of Cambridge.

Gov. Allen made public copies of a letter from Commissioner Dickinson, explaining that the condition of his health made it necessary for him to tender his resignation. Hull was one of a large field of Republican candidates for nomination as lieutenant-governor in the last election.

Hold First Lecture on Youth October 16

A course of lectures on the problems of the youth of today is to begin on Wednesday, October 16, at 4 o'clock in Ford Hall, sponsored by the Judge Baker Foundation and the Massachusetts Civic League.

The first lecture is to be given by Dr. Arnold Gesell, director of the Yale psycho-clinic, and his subject is "Nature and Nurture in the Early Years." Dr. William Healy, director of the Judge Baker Foundation, is to preside and to lead the discussion.

WINDOW CRASH STIRS CROWD

Considerable excitement was caused in Washington st., near Winter st., when a large plate glass window in a women's apparel shop was shattered, less than 50 feet from where Traffic Officer Reginald C. Millett was directing traffic.

Hundreds of persons rushed toward the scene and rumors of a robbery spread through the crowd, causing a number of calls to police headquarters and the La Grange st. station.

LYNN SHOE TRADE WITH CHAIN STORES WORTH $20,000,000 A YEAR

BULK OF IT IN NOVELTIES FOR WOMEN

50 Per Cent of Business Is Going to the Bigger Companies

Fifty percent or more of the shoes that Lynn is making this year are for chain stores.

The value is $20,000,000 or more.

This chain shoe business manufacturers are watching and are trying to figure out how changes in chain store methods and sales will affect production.

Lynn's chain shoe business consists chiefly of the making of women's novelty shoes to retail at $4, $5 and $6 a pair, these goods being McKayed which can be swiftly and economically produced. Most of them carry wood heels. There is some business in making health and arch-supporting shoes for the chains. These shoes sell at from $5 to $10 a pair or more.

But the bulk of Lynn's chain business is on the popular price novelties.

Women buy a variety of styles, taking six pairs, possibly seven or eight pairs a year, and they choose the low-priced novelties instead of the more expensive and more durable shoes.

One of the largest producers in Lynn gets out 10,000 pairs a day of popular novelties to retail at $6 a pair. All of its shoes goes to one chain. Several small firms each make from 500 to 1000 pairs a day, all for chains. Other firms make for chains, wholesalers or independent retailers.

Some wholesalers sell shoes to chains or to independent retailers.

There are, according to the latest figures, about 8000 regular shoe stores as units of chains.

Makers find that chains fix the prices they will pay for shoes, and the makers, in turn, fix the prices they will pay for leather, supplies and labor. Chains handling popular priced novelties do business on a basis of 30 per cent profit. They insist on manufacturers producing shoes at a price that will enable them to earn this profit.

COST OF LIVING GOES UPWARD

A further trend upward in the cost of living in Massachusetts was noted for the month of August, in a report issued by the special commission on necessaries of life.

Increases on all items of clothing except suits, and on food costs generally, brought the index figures on necessaries up to the highest of one per cent.

With the average retail prices in 1913 used as an index figure of 100, the combined figure for all necessaries was 162.8 in August, as compared with 161.1 in July, and 160.5 in August, a year ago. The purchasing power of the dollar for August, on the same basis, was 61½ cents.

The commission announced that it is about to begin a survey of living costs in the city of Pittsfield, at the request of the chamber of commerce of that city. Continuing, it says:

"It will be the first special study by the commission in Berkshire County, Pittsfield, with a population of upwards of 50,000, is commonly regarded as one of the most prosperous cities in the state.

"Chairman Charles H. Adams and Secretary Bernard P. Scanlan will meet with officials of the chamber on Thursday, in Pittsfield.

Man Drops Dead as He Asks for Meal

With a meal set on the table before him, Frank Antoskeccia, 50, dropped dead today in the home of Mrs. Mary Halliborda, Poplar st., West End. Antoskeccia lived in Willard ct.

When he called today at Mrs. Halliborda's home, requesting something to eat, the woman prepared a meal for him.

Police at first believed he might have died from starvation, but they found food in his home.

Largest Map in World at Babson Plant

The biggest map in the world, requiring an entire building to house it, is in process of construction at Babson Institute, Wellesley. The unique map, for which a large sized brick building, known as the Coleman Map Building, has been constructed at Babson Park, has been under way for the past three years, according to E. Leroy Nichols, engineer in charge, and will take at least two years to complete.

Engineer Nichols, expert in photography and economic geography, said that the map is the only one of its kind in the world and will serve many useful purposes.

When completed the map will show the physical contour of the whole United States and a section of Canada, termed the "railroad belt". Mountains, valleys, plains and rolling country, wooded and desert sections, lakes and rivers—all will be shown in relief, Engineer Nichols said.

WILL AID STUDENTS

He expressed the view that the map will be a valuable study, not only for business men and industrial corporations, but also for students in schools and colleges.

One feature in which the map will be very useful, Nichols said, is in the location of landing fields and the establishment of airways for airplane transportation. Plans are under way for indicating such areas in color.

The huge map 1: 63 feet long and 46 feet wide. It follows the curvature of the earth, and is 6 feet, 6 inches above the floor in the center. Upon a painted canvas base, on which the various sections of the United States are outlined, blocks made from gypsum and cut out in proper relief are carefully placed. These blocks, an average of 17½ inches by 15 inches, are slightly curved, to correspond with the curvature of the earth.

An ingenious machine, called the pantagraph, designs the blue prints from which the blocks are made, using geological maps of the United States Geological Survey as the pattern, which is followed with extreme exactness.

A power jig-saw machine takes the blue prints and cuts out the contours, doing work so fine that it resembles a lacework pattern. Another machine, designed by Engineer Nichols, cuts the "curb-cues" in the gypsum block showing all the sharp contours and indicating various mountain ranges and levels in the topography of the country.

EXPERTS GUIDE WORK

From a balcony running around the big room, two stories deep, a bird's-eye view of the whole United States may be seen, or a special study made of a particular section.

Outline maps on the wall will be used to give special and detailed information regarding latest production figures of crops and conditions.

As to why the map takes so much time in building, Nichols said that, contrary to popular impression, the United States Government has as yet surveyed less than half the country. A great deal of time of the Geological Survey is taken up, he said, with the redrawing of geological maps to show new automobile roads.

"Certain sections of the country, particularly California," he said, "have won special attention, to the extent that almost every house and acre-lot is shown on the half-mile-to-the-inch maps of the Geological Survey as against the usual survey of four miles to the inch. This means eight times the usual number of maps of a given section."

The Babson map scale is four miles to the inch horizontally and four miles to the foot vertically.

A committee of geographical experts, headed by President Wallace W. Atwood of Clark University, is supervising the construction of the map.

Charity Whist

U. S. TRAVELERS USE U. S. SHIPS

That American travelers want American diversion was claimed today by W. A. Mcisaac, general New England agent for the U. S. Lines, who returned from a conference of shipping officials at Chicago with the claim that "Americans are showing an increased preference for ships with their own flag."

"In New England as well as in other parts of the country there has been a heavy increase in the bookings of passages on American liners," he said.

"This growth can be attributed fundamentally to the realization of the much travelled—born of actual experience—that the American Merchant Marine is not a highly interesting experiment, but a smooth, highly efficient and splendidly organized service.

"In a sense, America has quietly revolutionized transatlantic travel by its passion for innovation."

Fish Dealer Fined

Louis Green, Chelsea, proprietor of a market in Somerville, in Somerville court today was found guilty of keeping fish that was not fit for food and was fined $100 by Judge Sturtevant. Green appealed and was held in $500.

WELL SUPPLIED WITH TWINS

Three sets of twins registered today in the first grade of the Franklin school in Malden.

And now Miss Adelia Freeman, who has taught at the school for several years, wonders how she will tell them apart. This will be her first attempt at handling so many twins at once.

The six youngsters are Sarah and Eunice Rudoff, William and Willard Beesley and Bernard and Maynard Marcus. Each is six years old and each lives in the Faulkner district.

Pre-Law Courses at B. C. Extension

The pre-law courses at the Boston College Extension School will begin today at 9 a. m. at the Law School on Beacon st.

Rev. James H. Dolan, S. J., president of B. C., will be present at both the day and evening classes to welcome the students. He will be followed by Rev. John B. Creeden, S. J., dean of the Extension School, and Dean Donley of the Law School will both give addresses on the purpose of the law school and its requirements.

ALL N. E. STATES SEND FLAGS TO FRANCE

Will Be Carried by the YD Pilgrims, to Be Hung in Belleau Church

When the YD pilgrimage to France starts next Saturday, leading officers of the 26th Division will carry flags of each of the New England states and of Boston to hang in the reconstructed church at Belleau, memorial of the Yankee division to its members who died during the World War.

Following the lead of Gov. Allen of Massachusetts all the other chief executives of New England states have presented State flags to officers of the division to hang in the church. In addition, the Yankee Division will present a United States flag, French flag and YD flag to the edifice.

BIG HARBOR FAREWELL.

A big farewell to the 250 persons who form the pilgrimage party will be given at the Cunard Steamship Co. docks in East Boston just before the liner Carmania weighs anchor Saturday at 6 p. m. Firebouts will shriek, airplanes will circle overhead and a naval band from Boston Navy Yard will take part.

Fifty other persons who have already left for France will join the main party for the dedication of the memorial church on October 10, at which Premier Aristide Briand, War Minister Paul Painleve and Gen. John J. Pershing will be present.

Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards will present the church to the officials of the town of Belleau.

HONORS FOR YANKS

The French Legion of Honor will be presented to Brig.-Gen. John J. Sherburne of Brookline, a leading Boston lawyer; Col. William J. Keville of Belmont, United States marshal for Massachusetts; Lieut. Bernard S. Carter, French representative of J. P. Morgan banking firm, and Sergt. Ralph M. Eastman of Atlantic, assistant vice-president of State St. Trust Co.

All the funds, more than $75,000, used in reconstruction of the church, which was battered by both German and American guns during the fight for possession of the town, were raised among members of the Yankee Division exclusively.

BIG FORD PLANE ON HUB VISIT

A tri-motored Ford plane, powered with Wright Whirlwind J-4 300 horsepower, on its way across the country for the Firestone Company, arrived at Boston airport today from New Jersey.

The ship, piloted by Capt. Earl McConnell, and carrying among its passengers Charles M. O'Hara, manager of the northeastern division, and A. T. McGrath, manager of the Boston district, was met by M. D. Kalifels, Boston representative of the goodwill tour.

Some 70 Firestone dealers were given flights over Greater Boston and the ship then left for Portland, to return to Boston tonight.

BRITAIN IS RICH FIELD FOR HUB BUSINESS

Commerce Department Official Tells the Export Club of Opportunities There

There are still any number of New England manufacturers whose products should be sold in Great Britain at a profit, Hugh Butler, new manager of the New England office of the Department of Commerce, told the New England Export club today.

He said the bureau is anxious to get in touch with these firms and assist them to enter the British market and that exporters now in the market may expect greater returns in the future.

Butler said conditions in Britain are decidedly promising. The usual summer lull in British industry and commerce has been much less pronounced this year than in years past, suggesting great buying power for the British public, although at the same time it promises more intense competition in various world markets.

Butler, who has made an intensive study of the Irish Free State also, reports he was surprised to find the extent to which American merchandize is used in that market.

WIFE KNOCKED HIM FLAT, SAYS W. L. FORD

Testimony that his wife was frequently under the influence of liquor and that on one occasion she knocked him down and scratched his face, was given in Brookline probate court today by William L. Ford.

Ford is suing Mrs. Laurette P. Ford for divorce on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment and habitual drunkenness. She brought a counter suit charging cruel and abusive treatment.

Ford was the only witness heard by Judge McCool, who continued the case to next Monday in Dedham.

Martin Hays is counsel for Ford, and John P. Feeney represents Mrs. Ford.

Ford testified that from the Fall of 1924 to 1928 when they separated Mrs. Ford was frequently drunk. When he arrived home each night, he said, he found his wife in bed, her breath smelling of liquor, her face red and hair mussed. He said he was forced to get his own dinner.

On New Year's Eve, 1927, witness said, he and his wife with friends went visiting in the Fenway. Up to midnight he saw only one drink served but at 12:30, after an absence of half an hour, Mrs. Ford entered the room, accused him of undue familiarity with another woman, and knocked him down. Ford said she scratched his face until the blood ran. Later they went home to Audubon road and his wife was drunk, he said.

Resume Chorus Sessions

The Chelsea Moniuszko chorus, inactive during the summer, resumed its meetings in White Eagle hall on Broadway, Chelsea. Wallace Niedzwiecki presided.

CURLEY HAS HAD ENOUGH, SAYS MANSFIELD

Sounding his war cry, "Curley has had enough", Frederick W. Mansfield, of the three mayoralty candidates, today issued his first official statement of the campaign. He said in part:

"The demand of the 'bosses' that the people give Curley another four years after he has already served eight years, two years longer than any of Boston's 38 mayors, is repugnant to the citizens of the city who believe in fair play, justice, rotation in office and that Curley has had enough.

"The 'bosses' and the perennial candidate must go.

"It seems to me that ex-Mayor Curley's house of cards, built upon a foundation of sand, is tottering, and hence Curley's efforts to strengthen the foundations are being made."

Merchant Held in Bankruptcy Case

Pleading not guilty to charges of concealing assets in the estate from the receivers of the Sidney Dress Co. after he had filed a petition in bankruptcy, Philip H. Sacks, former head of the company, was held in $3000 bonds for hearing today when he was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Jenney.

Boy, 6, Injured by Truck, Is Dying

The "reducing diet" that stole her beauty

SHE was one girl who was going to be slim and beautiful—so she began a strenuous reducing diet. She counted calories. She shunned this and sought for that. But, all the time, she was missing something every dieter should have. In the dishes she so carefully selected there was scarcely any roughage. Constipation gained a foothold. Her looks suffered as is often the case with constipated persons. She had headaches and her complexion became sallow.

Thousands of women and men are paying the price of diets which are lacking in bulk. Constipation continues to poison the system. No other evil is more widespread. It often ends with serious trouble and disease.

By adding Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to any diet, the ideal roughage is obtained to relieve and prevent constipation.

ALL-BRAN does not add fat to the body. It just sweeps the intestines clean of poisonous wastes. Its regular use restores health and above all priceless beauty and charm.

No pills nor drugs can play the part of ALL-BRAN in a reducing diet. Their dose has to be constantly increased and they do not produce the natural results that ALL-BRAN does.

Don't trifle with pills

You will like the appetizing nut-sweet flavor of ALL-BRAN. It can be enjoyed in many ways. In soups. On salads. Soaked in orange, prune or fruit juice. As a cereal with milk or cream. Delicious with honey added. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases with every meal.

If you write us we will gladly send you a valuable booklet on the subject of safe reducing. It contains many approved diet suggestions which promote beauty as they help you reduce. Grocers everywhere sell ALL-BRAN. Be sure to get the genuine—made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Served in hotels, restaurants and dining-cars.

GUARANTEED!
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

"Flashlight Gun" Bandit Trapped in North End Doorway

ACCUSED OF HOLDING UP TAXICABS

Tebets Is Identified Later at Headquarters by One of His Victims

Trapped in a doorway at Hanover st. and Scollay sq. today by Sergt. Michael P. Carr and Patrolmen John Kearns and Eugene Canney of the Milk st. station, Aloysius Tebits, 19, of Santa Clara, Cal., was arrested on a charge of robbery while armed.

Tebits, according to police officials, is the man who on Friday night lured a taxicab driver into a lonesome section of West End, got out of the machine, told the taxi driver to throw up his hands and then had $22 turned over to him by the cab driver.

Police allege also that on Sunday night Tebits hired a cab on Hanover st. and told the driver to hurry him to Commerce st., and that when he got onto a dark section of Commerce st. he asked the driver to let him out.

Just as he reached the sidewalk, police say, he pulled the "flashlight" revolver out of his pocket, thrust it into the cab driver's stomach and told him to turn over every cent he had. The driver of this cab, Thomas E. McKenna, not taking any chances of being shot, turned over $10.

Both drivers gave a good description of the holdup man to the police. Efforts to locate the man were without success.

This morning Tebits is alleged to have tried to hire a cab in Hanover st. The driver remembered the description of the holdup man and refused to take the fare. He notified the police and Sergt. Carr trailed Tebits to Scollay sq.

On seeing the police officer, Tebits ran as far as Hanover st. where he crouched in a hallway. The officer gave chase and trapped him in the doorway. Police declare that they found what appeared to be a shiny revolver on the man. Close investigation to see the calibre of the gun revealed that the revolver did not contain bullets, but in reality was a flashlight. It resembled a .38-calibre revolver in every detail they say.

Tebits was taken to the Milk st. station where, after being identified by McKenna, one of the two victims, he is alleged to have confessed.

Police say that Tebits said he is a dead passer and was recently discharged from the navy. He said that he was in desperate circumstances from lack of food. He purchased the "flashlight" revolver and decided to holdup cabs. When asked why he held up taxicab drivers, he replied, "Taxicab drivers have plenty of dough with them and they are the easiest fellows in the world to hold up."

At Harvard Dedication

SEES DANGERS IN HARVARD'S LAW REFORM

Asst. Sec. of State Cotton Is Chief Speaker at New School Dedication

Two great dangers mark the law research plan of the Harvard Law School, Joseph P. Cotton, assistant secretary of state, told attendants at the dedication of new Langdell Hall today.

"The first danger of this experiment," he said, "is that it must be undertaken by teachers who carry always a burden of classroom and examination work. Doubtless our plan would be better if there were some way of lightening the teaching burden. But, on balance, it seems the particular job of law research which needs to be done will be best done by teachers.

CHANGING COMMON LAW

"The other point is that the research is to be carried out in so large measure by men steeped in common law and respecters of its authority. In the work of preparing to change the American common law reasonably to fit the conditions of modern life, obviously the learning of the common law will throw a great light. What I am emphasizing is that it also casts deep shadows. Certain it is in no case that danger has to be danger been so soon ascertained, so much understood, as in the Harvard law school."

The exercises of the dedication were held in the courtroom of the new hall, which will house the Harvard law school.

George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's national commission on law observance and enforcement, dean of the leading law schools of the country, federal and state judges sat among the 500 attendants in the courtroom. William Thomas of San Francisco, president of the Harvard Law School Association, conducted the exercises.

DEAN POUND'S ADDRESS

Dean Roscoe Pound of the law school, who is also a member of the President's commission, addressed the gathering, saying, in part:

"It is not merely that we must study the behavior of citizens, of magistrates, of lawmakers, with respect to the relations and courses of conduct which come within the domain of the law. The reason for that study is that we seek to make the behavior of the citizen more consonant with the ideal of the social order, and the behavior of judge and administrative official and legislator more efficacious toward realizing that ideal."

A portrait of Dean Pound, painted by Charles Hopkinson of Boston, was presented to the school by the Harvard Law School Association. President A. Lawrence Lowell of the university then received the keys of the building from Charles A. Coolidge of Boston, the architect.

The court room of the new law school, in which the exercises were held, is modelled after the style of the old English courts in Westminster. The library, with its vast reading room, houses 500,000 volumes. There are two lecture rooms, one with a capacity of 350 students and the other for 200.

Old Boston in Pictures—No. 65

EVEN 77 years ago, it was quite a trick to produce a quart of real brandy, gin, or wine. Prof. Anderson, "Wizard of the North," used to do it, however, with only an empty bottle as equipment. OPEN TRAINING SHIP FOOD INQUIRY

Commissioner Storer Will Interview Capt. Rust on Cadet Complaints

The investigation ordered by Governor Allen into complaints concerning food served the 214 cadets on the training ship Nantucket, on a recent cruise to Bermuda, got under way today with the visit to Provincetown of Theodore A. Storer of Cambridge, one of the commissioners of the Massachusetts Nautical School.

It was stated at the office of the commission today that Commissioner Storer will interview Capt. Armistad Rust, against whom the complaints were lodged, and members of the crew who have been loud in their condemnation of the food served on the trip. Instances of petty retaliation, cited by spokesmen for the cadets will also be gone into, in the investigation.

Action by Governor Allen came about as the result of complaints made by various members of the crew on the docking of the Nantucket a few days ago at Provincetown, after a long sea trip.

Cadets, were outspoken in their denunciation of the food and of the treatment received individual cadets by officers of the ship in the controversy, but were reluctant to reveal their names. They explained that 24 cadets are due to graduate on October 8, and these cadets fear a loss of their diploma from the training school as a punishment for their expose of conditions on the trip.

Commissioner Clarence E. Perkins, of Winthrop, today expressed confidence in Capt. Rust, and held to the view that the complaints would be found to come from a few malcontents who were used to being pampered at home and expected the same sort of treatment aboard ship.

Curley Aid Sends 'Goo Goos' 50,000 Marks

The recent appeal of the Good Government Association for funds to carry on the work of the organization in the coming mayoralty campaign met with success today when Francis J. Brennan, treasurer of the Curley campaign committee, sent them 50,000 marks.

The letter containing the marks was sent to William A. Ainot, treasurer of the association, with the salutation, "My Dear Willie." It read:

"Through the kindness of a friend of mine, I am in receipt of a campaign letter informing me that you are again 'broke' and in the absence of his honor, the next mayor James M. Curley, I am taking the liberty of sending you his customary contribution to the cause which your organization is supposed to represent, namely, 50,000 marks, of the date of 1920."

Former Mayor Curley held a conference at his headquarters today with members of the Building Trades and Building Trades Employers' Association, discussing the question of prevailing scale of wages paid on contract work done by the city.

Mr. Curley informed the committee that the only proper method relative to the payment of labor was the union scale on all contract work done by contractors.

GUN CLUB NOISE IS PROTESTED

All the shooting which William Cullen of Auburndale heard overseas during the World War didn't annoy him a bit more than the shotgun volleys which he now hears daily from the premises of the Waltham Gun Club, he declared in Middlesex Superior Court today.

Cullen appeared as a principal witness against the gun club and its treasurer, Oliver J. Bunton, codefendants on trial for the alleged maintenance of a common nuisance.

According to Cullen 871 shots were fired at the club between 1:30 and 4:30 o'clock on one afternoon.

Other residents of Newton neighborhoods near the gun clubs premises complained that their daily lives were upset by the noise of the shooting.

Chief of Police Bernard F. Burke of Newton told of warning the club that its marksmen must make less noise.

FITZ STOPS PLAN ON APARTMENT

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald today abandoned his plans to erect a 78-suite apartment house on the site of his present home, 39 Wells ave., Dorchester, in deference to the feelings of his neighbors.

He made the announcement following his withdrawal of the petition to the board of appeal at City Hall, for a right to build a structure 60 feet in height in his locality, which calls for buildings only 35 feet high.

Mr. Fitzgerald said:

"I find that many of my neighbors with whom I have lived on friendly terms for 25 years feel that an apartment house in the neighborhood would seriously impair their property. Although I do not agree with this view, the fact that they do is enough for me and I will therefore not press the matter."

Public hearing on the petition was scheduled for Friday.

Press Cameramen Will Pick Beauties

"Miss Massachusetts" and "Miss Boston" will be selected at the second annual dance of the Boston Press Photographers Association for which plans were started at a banquet and meeting at the American House, attended by 40 members.

L. MacLellan

Preparations to have the second annual event more lavish than the first were started and an active committee began work. The dance will be held early in November.

An entertainment program was furnished for the gathering at the American House by Ray Benoit's saxophone quartet, who was master of musical ceremonies. Lester MacLellan, president of the association and members of the Daily Record staff, outlined the season's activities.

Bank Leases Home in New Building

Officers of the Second National Bank, in Boston, announced today that negotiations had been completed for leasing the entire first floor and basement in the New Haven building at Devonshire, Federal and Franklin sts., now under construction.

The basement will probably be used for a safety deposit vault while the floor will serve as banking rooms and offices for the officials of the bank. The arrangements for the lease were made through the offices of Coffin & Taber.

Newton to Get Only One New Sergeant

The plans of Chief of Police Bernard F. Burke of Newton to raise two patrolmen to the rank of sergeant were halted when the Board of Aldermen refused to authorize the appointment of more than one additional sergeant. The aldermen appropriated funds for the salary of one new sergeant after receiving the chief's promise that he would promote Patrolman Patrick J. Ryan, who is attached to the mayor's office.

38,000 on Lists for Somerville Primary

Registration for the municipal primaries to be held in Somerville on October 15, will close in the office of the Election Commissioners at Somerville City Hall at 10 tonight. Approximately 38,000 names of men and women residents of the city are on the voting lists.

Five Republicans and four Democrats have filed nomination papers as mayoralty aspirants.

All papers must be filed for certification of signatures at the City Hall office of the Election Commissioners not later than 5 o'clock next Friday afternoon.

Honor Delegate to Legion Convention

A party will be tendered tonight in the Red Cross Hut at the Chelsea Naval Hospital to Mrs. Mary V. J. Duggan of Lynn, chief clerk at the hospital, who will leave tomorrow for Louisville, Ky., where she will represent Post 6 of Lynn at the national convention of the American Legion.

During the war, Mrs. Duggan was in charge of the civilian employes at the Naval Hospital and has always been active in American Legion circles.

Allen Names Hanify as Superior Judge

Governor Allen today appointed Judge Edward F. Hanify of the Second Bristol District Court as a justice of the superior court to succeed the late Judge C. T. Callahan of Holyoke.

Judge Hanify was born in Fall River, February 2, 1881. He was educated in the public schools there and was graduated from Holy Cross College and from Harvard law school. He was admitted to the bar in 1906 and in 1911-12 was city solicitor of Fall River. He was appointed justice of the district court there in October, 1912.

Hearing on Taxi Stands Tomorrow

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, the street commissioners and traffic commissioners will meet tomorrow forenoon with the special commission created by the Legislature to investigate the licensing of taxicab stands in Boston.

Announcement of the meeting, which will be public, was made today by the chairman of the commission, Senator George G. Moyse of Waltham.

So "Skinny" Couldn't Work. Gains 21 lbs. and New Strength

Miss Doris Brinon writes: "Before I took Ironized Yeast I was an 'skinny'. I could not do my day's work. But now I can work hard all day and rest good all night.

"About 3 months ago my weight was 120 pounds. Ironized Yeast gave me 147 pounds of good flesh. You would think I was another woman. I feel and look so much better."

Stop being "skinny" and always tired. Thousands have gained 5 to 15 pounds in 2 weeks with Ironized Yeast. Scrawny bones change to graceful curves. Blotched skin becomes clear and fresh. Tells how to vanish.

Only when yeast is ironized is it so wonderfully effective—for iron is needed to bring out the weight-building and strengthening values of Yeast. Pleasant tablets in a handy bottle, safe for everybody. Never cause gas or bloating.

So certain and quick are the amazing health benefits of Ironized Yeast that the small amount you pay for the first bottle will be promptly refunded by your own druggist or the manufacturer if you are not delighted.

Experts Pick Loughran
Johnny Buckley Pleased
$300,000 Gate Looms
Gagnon Faces Tough Foe

New York, Sept. 25—"The boys who like to make their carfare by picking the winner of big fights are in somewhat of a fog about the Sharkey-Loughran bout at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night," said Mr. Boston today. "I have seen bets made at odds of 6 to 5 with first Sharkey and then Loughran a choice. Which should mean that the right price is even money and pick your man by pulling a name from a hat.

JACK CONWAY

"I just bumped into Walter St. Dennis, the high pressure publicity man at the Garden. Walter had just taken a poll of the New York sports writers. He talked with 34 master minds and 30 of them named Loughran as the bird who will leave the Yankee Stadium ring a winner.

"The same 30 once picked Sharkey to flatten Dempsey and they were wrong then. Maybe Sharkey got a break when they shifted their allegiance to Loughran in tomorrow night's bout.

"I find that few fighters win when weighed down by expert opinion. When Tunney won the title from Dempsey in Philadelphia all of the experts chirped that Gene was going to be chilled. I think they had convinced Tunney he was going to get beaten. Otherwise why would he have made that last-minute secret deal with Boo Boo Hoff, who has always been a big power in Philadelphia?

"Johnny Buckley is rooting for the other four experts to switch to Loughran during the next 24 hours.

"If everybody is against Sharkey his chances of winning are better,' said Buckley. 'Sharkey is one of those fighters who does his best work when the whole wide world declares he is in for a shellacking. Remember his jams with Godfrey, Wills, Maloney?

"'He was on the short end of those matches and ended up with the decisions.'

"Advance guard of the Boston delegation has already hit town. I met Tommy McFarland, Eddie Mack, Sheldon Fairbanks, Phil Buonola and George Lee standing out front of the Forrest Hotel. They were trying to dope the winner. The verdict was Sharkey, but this was natural, as they are from the Hub.

"I met Midget Smith, old time bantamweight star. He is now a middleweight and looks prosperous. He likes Sharkey for the big fight.

"I understand that Sharkey's contract calls for a guarantee of $100,000 and the privilege of accepting 35 per cent of the receipts. Loughran will drag down 20 per cent of the first $375,000 taken in and if the gate goes higher he will receive 25 per cent of all over $375,000.

"The Garden needs $215,000 to break even. Joe Boynton, who knows his money gates, says the show cannot miss $252,000 and may hit $300,000.

"When the match was made Bill Carey bet five suits of clothes that the show would lose money. Now Bill says he didn't stipulate any price.

"The winner of the Sharkey-Loughran bout is already under contract at Miami, Fla., next February. Bill Carey believes that the Miami show next winter will draw $600,000. Special trains will be run to Florida from all parts of the country.

"Al Lacy and Tony Palazolo will assist Johnny Buckley in Sharkey's corner tomorrow night.

"Jack Gagnon of Boston will meet a free hitter when he collides with Lou Barba in a six-round bout on the Sharkey-Loughran card.

"Phil Scott, British champion who walloped Victorio Campolo, will send in his card to the winner of the Yankee Stadium jam."

Compston-Boomer Tied in French Go!

Paris, Sept. 25 (AP)—Two British stars, Archie Compston and Aubrey Boomer, tied for the French open golf championship on the St. Cloud course today. Both had 72-hold scores of 283.

The question of a playoff has not been decided as both players are engaged in the Anglo-French team matches beginning tomorrow at Biarritz.

Dilboy Eleven in Opener on Sunday

The Dilboy football eleven of Somerville will play its first game of the year Sunday, lining up against the strong Roche Club of Everett, at Dilboy Field, Somerville.

SCRIMMAGE FOR HARVARD TODAY

Harvard first varsity went into its third of a series of scrimmages with the junior varsity today. The eleven looked fresh and strong after a rest from scrimmage, and many of the men on the casualty list last week joined the team again today.

Dick O'Connell started at right end for team A and has apparently fully recovered from the foot blisters that kept him out of the last two practices. His wing mate on the other end of the line was Jim Douglas, he tast traveling six-footer from St. George's. These two are about the best of the end material that Horween has this year. The team A tackles were Capt. Jim Barrett and Foster Davis.

The guard positions have been apparently clinched by Bill Ticknor and John Trainor, both of whom won their letters in the Yale game last year. At center Horween's choice is Ben Ticknor, who won out over three other fine pivotmen, Gildea, Cunningham and Richards.

The starting backs were Ed Maya, the new sophomore find; Willis Harper and Art Huguley. Elliot Putnam was at quarter.

The backfield positions are still in the air as far as first string selection goes.

Sharkey Ends Grind for Loughran Bout

By JACK SHARKEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—"All you have to do now is to knock Tommy Loughran right into my lap Thursday night," said Johnny Buckley when I ended my training for the Yankee Stadium battle at Gus Wilson's camp at Orangeburg today. I shall try to make Buckley happy.

The most important bout of my ring career is now almost here. I am prepared for the big test and ready to put up the best battle of my career.

I came through four weeks of intensive training without a mark or a bruise. Lady Luck was smiling at me, as I had some tough battles with some of my sparring partners.

Injuries in training are merely a matter of luck. I once pulled a ligament training which made it necessary for Johnny Buckley to call off three comparatively easy bouts which carried purses of $100,000.

A week before my bouts with Willis and Maloney I suffered cuts under one of my eyes. This made it necessary for me to eliminate the boxing end of my program during the closing days of training.

I also carried a mental hazard into the ring as I knew that one well directed punch might open the wounds.

FORTUNE smiled on me while I was getting ready for Loughran. I did not meet with a single mishap while training and as a result I can devote all of my time to doping out how I shall lick the former world's light heavyweight champion.

I closed my training at Orangeburg by working out for eight rounds and punched the small bag for three rounds, the big bag for three more and shadow boxed for two frames. When I stepped on the scales I weighed 194 pounds.

Gus Wilson and the others at the camp wished me success when I later left by motor for New York. Other than for some limbering up exercises and some light bag punching at Stillman's gym today my preparation for my clash with Loughran is over.

WHEN I sweep into action on Thursday night, I believe the fans will agree that I'm now more aggressive and a better puncher than at any time during my ring career.

I find that I possess greater hitting power than I did when I fought Godfrey, Wills, Maloney and Dempsey. I have developed more around the chest and shoulders.

I am also hitting with greater accuracy. When a punch lands squarely, it is more damaging. It rocks the opposition to the soles of their feet.

I know that Loughran cannot punch hard enough to knock one's hat off regardless of all this talk about his newly discovered punch.

I am not underrating Loughran. I realize he is a good ring general, courageous, a clever boxer and very fast.

The history of the ring, however, proves that a good big man can always lick a good little man.

GARDEN WANTS MANDELL HERE

Negotiations have been opened to bring Sammy Mandell, holder of the world's lightweight championship, to the Hub to meet the winner of the bout between Andy Callahan and Bruce Flowers which is to be held at the Boston Garden, Wednesday night, October 2.

Both principals in this lightweight match have agreed to meet the champion in the Hub if such an opportunity is afforded.

PERE ELEVEN PLAYS OKOS

The Pere Marquette football team, fresh from its victory over the Quincy Trojans, with an additional week of practice and organization, will play the Brockton Okos next Sunday afternoon at the C. J. Lee Playground, South Boston.

The visiting team, always a strong attraction and recognized as one of the best teams on the South Shore, will present a squad made up of former high school and college stars, including Campbell, Eatson, Brophy and Hayden from Brockton high school, Chester, formerly of Dartmouth; Smith and Sunstrom, formerly with Boston College; Stonkkus, formerly of Williston; Somdstrom, formerly with Upsala College; De Soto, formerly of Tufts; Gerry of Norwich; Setchiffe, formerly of Washington, and Gibbons from Providence College.

The South Boston team under the leadership of Johnnie Hurley, star fullback, who was made captain for the present season, is looking forward to another successful season.

Grid Gleanings

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 25 (INS)—With five members of the squad away on a trip and Tric Bennett and Hockenbury out with injuries, Coach Bill Roper is somewhat handicapped in his work with the Princeton football hopefuls.

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 25 (INS)—Army coaches were to continue their experiments with backfield combinations in an attempt to find the fastest possible four. Coach Jones has been using Stuart and Greene, track stars, as ball carriers and they have both shown up well.

New York, Sept. 25 (INS)—With the Vermont game scheduled for Saturday, Coach Meehan has yet to name a first string eleven that will start the game for N. Y. U. in a lengthy signal drill. Meehan had three teams moving up and down the field and watched one no closer than he did the others.

Farrell to Stay at Third for Giants

New York, Sept. 25 (INS)—It appeared today that Eddie Farrell will be at third base for the Giants the remainder of the season, due to an injury sustained by Freddie Lindstrom in an exhibition game with Columbus.

Nick Flatley Picks Sharkey to Conquer Loughran

BOSTON FANS FAIL TO FIND ANY OF THE 'SHORT END' GOTHAM BRAGS ABOUT

husky gob polished off Jimmy Maloney, when James was all set to be a Gotham idol.

They recall, likewise, the startling knockout of Jack Delaney.

New Yorkers have been crying ever since that fight to prove it was buriapped, as the boys say. It was too sudden for the experts. But nary a bit of evidence has been produced.

New York wants to see Sharkey smacked out of the picture, but really is afraid to say so. And New York will be ready to cheer the squire, if he crosses up the dope again, and comes through.

The dope that is exactly what your correspondent thinks is about to happen. There are several reasons which would incline a non-party to pick Sharkey. Several, and then some.

To begin with, Loughran has never fought a heavyweight. He will be giving away a dozen pounds tomorrow night, regardless of what the training camp yarns have had to say about his weight.

Tommy is fast and clever; a great boxer. But he faces a bigger opponent, a bird who is just as clever and almost as fast. When Sharkey knows he isn't going to be flattened, he tosses discretion to the winds.

Jack can hit harder than Tommy, and, incidentally, can take more. Loughran hasn't been licked for five years, but he has been picking up resin with his trousers in quite a few fights. Sharkey hasn't been staggered, except by Dempsey, in that one fight for which he didn't train.

He saw the squire last night, and it might be well to announce that he is ready. He is down to 194 pounds, two pounds more than he weighed in Miami. But the extra poundage helps him now. It is stacked in his shoulders.

His waist is slim and his legs are lean. The pudginess has disappeared from his neck and shoulders. He has been built up for this one. If he doesn't waltz through the early rounds, when Loughran may slap him, and come through in condition to win, he'll pass out of the picture.

And that is the farthest thing from the Sharkey mind. Jack has gathered a world of confidence in the last six months. He knows that Dempsey retired because he couldn't try a come-back against anybody but Sharkey. The Tiger admitted that the squire hit too hard.

He knows that Loughran never was a knocker out. And, what perhaps means more than anything else, he knows that he can get $200,000 for his next fight if he wins this one.

When Sharkey is confident and anxious to fight, he's a great heavyweight. And both these essentials stick out all over him just now. Jack will be on the short end of the betting, which he hates. He will be booed when he steps into the ring, which he hates even more. He will be fuming to show the hostile throng that he is a champion, when the bell rings.

That's a condition that all his handlers have been praying for ever since the big sailor began to ring loves. It looks like a perfect shot for Sharkey. He has his third chance to become a champion and it a thing on his mind but the arrel.

This, as the boys in the track say, seems to be his perfect spot. If he can't win this time, the dope doesn't mean a thing.

New York has steamed up over this row, all of a sudden. Where the croakers were chirping a few days ago that the fight wouldn't draw the government tax, they are now admitting it will collect at least 300 grand.

A sudden wave of enthusiasm has swept the village. Speculators are getting $15 premiums on ringside seats, and that's the best of the gauges. The weather has warmed up, and the visiting firemen from Boston and Philadelphia are beginning to come in.

A balmy evening, such as the weather bureau predicts, is likely to surprise the experts, in the matter of attendance figures. New York has tired of idols. Schmeling was made a little gold idol and ran back to Germany.

Campolo was nominated as his successor, and the big Argentinian couldn't lick Phil Scott, so New York is turning to Sharkey, the warrior who gets the razz so regularly, but always manages to pop back and be in there when real fighting is needed.

They're beginning to think that maybe Jack is a pretty good fighter, and pretty good fighters are scarce articles there days.

THE NEXT CHAMP?

Jack Sharkey, Hub claimant to the heavyweight title, is shown as he appeared at the end of his training for his bout with Tommy Loughran at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night. Jack looks happy and confident of victory.

Harvard Has Hard Task to Find Crew Coach

BILL BINGHAM, director of athletics at Harvard, was still without the solution to the crew coach problem at a late hour today. For the first time in many years the Harvard varsity crew will be without a coach when they report today.

News of Ed Brown's resignation came as a bombshell yesterday. Some mention of his resignation had been made after the race in New London last June, but the matter was not definitely settled at the time.

It was probably thought at the time that Coach Brown would reconsider his action during the summer months. However, he remained firm in his request to be allowed to resign the position and left the athletic committee in a tight situation.

The fact is that there is apparently no suitable coach available in the country for the job. The names suggested so far have all been found otherwise engaged.

Among those who were considered were Rusty Gallow of Penn, Ed Liedy of Yale, Glendon of Columbia and Glendon of Navy. All these have long contracts with their respective units and cannot be available to the Crimson this season.

No Quarters at Iowa

Capt. Willis Glassgow, Iowa's mincing-footed, flashing half-back, may be shifted to quarter this fall. Plenty of backs but no quarters for the Hawkeyes is the reason.

Have You a Series Ticket? Then You Are Out of Luck

Chicago, Sept. 25 (AP)—Have you a World's Series ticket yet? If you have, it's just too bad—it's counterfeit.

William Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs, issued a warning today against spurious tickets which he said already have made their appearance.

"Official tickets for series are now being printed," Veeck said. "They won't reach the hands of their purchasers before Oct. 2 or 3. Anybody who produces a ticket now is holding a counterfeit."

WOODSIES IN EASY GAMES

PLAYING Pawtucket here Saturday and Hakoah at Brooklyn Sunday, the Woodsies should regain some of their lost laurels, as neither of these clubs have been going any too well of late.

The Pawtucket eleven has a hard task ahead of them before clashing with the Hub eleven Saturday. They meet Fall River at Tiverton tonight and Providence at Providence tomorrow night, a couple of battles that will take a lot of starch out of them.

Providing they cop in these two contests the locals may find themselves at the top of the standing, for both Fall River and Providence, who are in first and second place respectively, have hard schedules this week.

Just when everybody was happy, believing that the soccer war had come to a conclusion, a story comes from New York that another break has resulted and the war will be fought to the bitter end.

According to the report of the latest conference the United States Soccer Association representatives wanted not only the pie, but the cream with it, besides, demanded that drastic penalties be meted out to a few of the parties whom they thought responsible for the war.

The Worcester soccer eleven, which distinguished themselves so well in England, is now on the high seas aboard the S S Scythia, which will arrive here Sunday.

A royal reception awaits these young men, who return undefeated after playing five contests with the best elevens in Worcester County, England.

Plans are being completed in Worcester to banquet the members of the squad immediately after their arrival, and a big crowd will be at the wharf in East Boston when the steamer docks.

VARSITY TEAM PICKED AT H. C.

Worcester, Sept. 25—After three weeks of preliminary drills, Coach Cleo O'Donnell selected his Holy Cross varsity squad when he assigned 36 candidates to places at the training table.

The backs include Captain Clancy, Garrity, O'Connell, Byrne, Finn, Meegan, Griffin, Carnicelli, Baker, Cullum, Evers, Manfreda, Miller, Kiarman and Dougherty.

With the opening game against St. John's listed for Saturday, the makeup of the varsity team is practically complete with the exception of the quarterback post.

U. S. Women Favored in Canadian Golf

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 25 (INS)—Canada's hope to regain the Canadian women's open golf crown was slight today as the tournament moved into the second round.

For of the sixteen players who advanced into the second round of play, eleven were Americans and the Dominion group was minus its outstanding star, Miss Ada MacKenzie, who was eliminated in the first round.

Harvard Eleven to Play Texas Univ. in 1931

THE committee on the regulation of athletic sports of Harvard University has approved the scheduling of a football game with the University of Texas on October 24, 1931, as the fourth game on the schedule. It also has approved the scheduling of a football game with Dartmouth for November 7, 1931.

Approval of those two games completes the four major dates on the Harvard schedule for the 1931 season. The Harvard team will play at West Point on October 17, and will play Yale in the Stadium on November 21.

The scheduling of the game with Texas is the first instance of a southwestern football team appearing in the Harvard Stadium. Negotiations for the game have been under way for more than a year, and the University of Texas athletic council approved the trip of its football team to Cambridge at a meeting on Monday night.

B. C. Freshmen Play St. Anselm's Friday

On Friday of this week the powerful Boston College freshman eleven plays a highly touted St. Anselms team at University Heights.

This contest marks the first game of the season for a Gold and Maroon club, as the varsity does not step out until the following day, when it tackles Catholic University at Fenway Park.

N. B. A. Head Wants N. Y. in Association

Cincinnati, Sept. 25 (AP)—Stanley Isaacs, Cincinnati, elected president of the National Boxing Association a week ago, today announced he had appointed Edward B. Foster, chairman of the Rhode Island Boxing Association, to negotiate with James Farley, chairman of the New York Association, in an attempt to make New York state a member of the National Boxing Association.

Isaacs also announced the membership of the National Association's committee of champions, the purpose of which is to force every champion to defend his title at least once in six months.

The committee was headed by Foster. Other members were Gen. John V. Clinnin, Illinois; J. W. Brown, Michigan; Howard Heickerman, Ohio, and Leslie Edmonds, Kansas.

PERKINS BACK IN B. U. SQUAD

Boston University's football stock has taken a sudden rise due to the appearance of Cy Perkins, veteran halfback, and Ernie Tutton, regular end of the past two seasons among the ranks of the Terrier gridiron aspirants.

Although the chances of these two men winning starting jobs at their old berths in Saturday's encounter with West Point are slim, it is quite likely that both of these lettermen will be in the starting lineup against New Hampshire a week later.

The food question, which has been threatening to break up the training camp at Riverside for the past two days, was settled.

Boston Latin Plays Groton in Opener

Boston Latin will open its football season on Saturday, meeting Groton at Groton. They played a scoreless tie last year. Coach Fitzgerald has a sweet pair of backs left over from last year, including Rabinovita, a smart quarterback and ball carrier, and Lichtenstein.

Captain Kopans at tackle is one of the best and will be helped out in the line by letter men, including Russell Lynch, end, and Shea, at guard. Jim Mullen is another veteran ball carrier who fits in nicely.

Record Crowd Due at B. C. Opener on Saturday

GAME AT FENWAY IS ONLY LOCAL COLLEGE GRID ATTRACTION LISTED

THE biggest opening game crowd in Boston College history is expected at Fenway Park next Saturday afternoon when the Eagles make their first flight against Catholic University.

The chief reason for the expected throng is that the B. C.-C. U. clash will be the first opportunity that the grid fans will have of appeasing their appetites.

With B. U. playing at West Point and Harvard not opening until a week from Saturday, the Gold and Maroon holds the center of the football stage without interference.

Catholic University will arrive in Boston on Friday with one of the best elevens it has sent North in many years. Jack McAuliffe, the coach, has enough veteran material on hand to form the nucleus of a husky eleven. The team will invade Boston with strong hopes of whipping B. C.

A year ago Catholic University's team was one that showed great promise despite the fact that they were trounced by the Eagles by a score of 38-to-6. But the Eagles of a year ago were the Eastern football champions. The visitors may hand B. C. a walloping to insure the 1925 grid season.

More clicking of the turnstiles will be caused by a flurry of Joe McKenney fans. There's a flock of grid followers about the Hub who never cared to see a Boston College football game until the Brighton boy became coach at the Heights.

His stock jumped a good deal with his production of a championship outfit in his first year and his personal following now is the largest than any coach hereabouts enjoys.

Fenway Park won't be filled for the Eagle debut, but it is expected that 15,000 of the seats will be occupied. The Red Sox are playing at Braves Field on Saturday and this will distract a few of the athletic following. President Quinn of the Red Sox decided to move the ball game to the Tepee and the Braves Field management permitted it.

Which is sort of a double favor by both baseball companies as far as B. C. is concerned, for you know the Braves management and B. C. broke a year ago when the Heights team decided to play its football at Fenway and not at Allston.

Catholic University will practice at Fenway Park on Friday morning and Coach Joe McKenney intends to bring his squad to the ball orchard in the afternoon in order to get them acclimated to the Fenway turf and surroundings.

This isn't exactly essential, for there's only one starting member of this year's B. C. eleven who hasn't had his nose pushed into the dirt at the home of the Red Hose.

He's John Maloney, sophomore guard, and the only member of his class to make good on the varsity. Maloney is a stocky guard who tips the scales at 195 pounds.

FAMOUS HORSE TRAINER DEAD

New York, Sept. 25—Samuel C. Hildreth, 68-year-old trainer of Harry F. Sinclair's Rancocas stable died at the Fifth Avenue Hospital, following a delicate abdominal operation yesterday. Hildreth ranked as America's greatest trainer of race horses for years.

Funeral services for Hildreth will be held at St. Patrick's Cathedral, tomorrow morning. Burial will be at Saratoga Springs, where the veteran trainer purchased a magnificent estate several years ago.

His other residence was near Jobtown, N. J., on his Stromboli farm, which got its name from the famous horse by that name which once sported the Hildreth colors.

Sam Hildreth was a unique character on the turf. At five years of age he owned and trained a horse and never once during the remainder of his life was he separated from the "Sport of Kings." Hildreth was a gambler. He often bet a small fortune on a horse, going broke no less than a half-dozen times. Yet each time he battled back again to accumulate another fortune, until a few years ago he gave up wagering large sums.

He died a wealthy man.

Last Night's Fights

By International News Service.

At New York—Ruby Goldstein, Ghetto, scored technical knockout over Teddy Hayes, Brooklyn, seventh round (:45). Arturo Sebobles, Belgium, won 10-round decision over Canada Lee. Harlem Joey Leonard, brother of Benny Leonard, knocked out Al Palmer in seventh round (:45).

At Los Angeles—Ace Hudkins, Nebraska, scored technical knockout over Joe Anderson in sixth round (:10).

At Cairo, Ga.—W. L. (Young) Stribling, Macon, signaled out Johnny Gibbons, St. Paul, in third round (:10).

At Portland, Me.—Joe Kelsey, Boston, knocked out Pal Dooley, Trenton, in first round (:19).

At Philadelphia—George Courtney, Oklahoma, won ten-round decision over Billy Jones, Philadelphia.

At Pontchartrain—Charlie Smith, Cleveland, won ten-round decision over King Solomon, Panama. Joe Hassler, Cincinnati, won ten-round decision over Billy Robins, New York.

BROOKLINE READY FOR OPENER

DUMMY scrimmages and signal drills are occupying much of the daily practice periods of the Brookline high eleven these days.

Coach Tom Fitzgerald is giving his close attention to the work of the squad for he realizes that Lynn Classical, Brookline's opening foe, is a strong outfit.

The three-year ruling left Brookline with a hole at tackle, a gap at one of the ends, and robbed the Red and Blue of a promising halfback. Blunt, Lewis and Robinson are the trio whose shoes must be filled before the band leader gives out the music at the opening contest.

A much heavier line than that which represented Brookline last season is giving Coach Fitzgerald some hope of a successful season. The forward wall averages around 118 pounds per man.

Louis Wolock and Ferguson are stationed at the ends; George Racheotis and Golden are after tackle berths; Nayor and Nyman are battling for the pivot job; Goldman and Herman are seeking guard positions; John Kelley is calling signals in the backfield made up of Bernard Hootstein and Jarvis Woodward at the halves, and McCone at fullback.

Tom Kelley, a promising tackle, is out with blood poisoning and may remain inactive indefinitely. Yalnes, a comer in the gran and hold department, may be able to step in at Kelly's position to Coach Fitzgerald's satisfaction.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Golf's Greatest Teacher

I have instructed you on the detail of wrist, or hand, action as you get the clubhead started back.

Now the reverse action of that is getting the hands through the ball in the forward swing. I have mentioned that as you swing the club forward—and swing it, don't hit with it—you pull your left arm clear through. There are two principles which are used successfully with the hands in going through. Some teachers say to pull the left arm and hand through "and stay with the ball as far through having been marked out by Coach Sampson for the entire week with a scrimmage, in which every man will have a chance to show, being the highlight of each session.

Team A will line up with Arianson and Macftas on the wing, Littleton and Story at tackle, Ruggerio and Cole, guard, and Tobey at the pivot position. LeMaistre, LeCain, Muskavitz and Gibbons will carry out the backfield assignments.

TUFTS SQUAD IS WORKING HARD

A long scrimmage is on tap for the Tufts gridmen this afternoon at the Ova, as an intensive program having been marked out by Coach Sampson for the entire week with a scrimmage, in which every man will have a chance to show, being the highlight of each session.

Team A will line up with Arianson and Macftas on the wing, Littleton and Story at tackle, Ruggerio and Cole, guard, and Tobey at the pivot position. LeMaistre, LeCain, Muskavitz and Gibbons will carry out the backfield assignments.

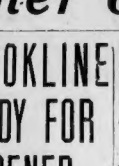
DINE AND DANCE

WHERE YOU GET GOOD FOOD, MUSIC, VAUDEVILLE AND DANCING

Special Features Tonight at Mah Jong

Although one of Boston's newest Chinese and American restaurants, the Mah Jong has been newly redecorated to give the patrons a cozier atmosphere and a better view of the cabaret. All this redecorating was under the supervision of Winton D. Bee, who has been manager of this restaurant since its opening a year ago.

Sam Bittel and his augmented orchestra are introducing many new numbers for the initial opening of Theatrical Night this evening, in addition to the regular show headed by the Two Hops and a Miss and Chickie O'Day, soft shoe dancer.



Sam Bittel

Whirlwind Dancers on Palais d'Or Bill

Russell and Duestte, worldwind dancers, are entertaining again this week at the Palais d'Or. They are offering a mile a minute whirlwind dance never she — by any other dance team in Boston. Manager Steve Hung announces that the first theatrical guest night will start tonight. This affords the patrons an opportunity to see and hear some of the leading stage artists appearing in Boston.

Jimmy Gallagher and his red hot orchestra will play host to the many stars on this occasion. Jimmy has been taking dancing lessons from Ray Marr and has proved an apt pupil unde his fine tutelage. Jimmy's first appearance as a dancer will also be very entertaining and po bly humorous.

Zinn at American House Rathskeller

The American House Rathskeller on Hanover st., will open on Saturday, September 28. No expense has been spared to prepare for the coming season. A new dance floor has been installed and is one of the best and largest in the city. "Billy" Dooley's orchestra, featuring "Cy" Zinn, will supply the music. "Cy" Zinn has a world-wide reputation as a musician. He has been affiliated with the George M. Cohan shows—a very clever and entertaining man, too. He will be a big favorite with all of the folks who attend. The American House is an old favorite among the theatrical stars and they will be much pleased to know that "Cy" Zinn is connected with the famous Rathskeller.

Russell Howard Tops Symphony Bill

Russell Howard, o — Boston's foremost entertainers, is heading the vodvil bill this week at the Symphony Restaurant, 253 Huntington ave. Howard has just returned from a tour with Ray Marr's musical show and is offering for the first time in Boston — new novelty dance.

Juan and Anita, Mexican dancers who have only been entertaining in this country for four months, are making a decided hit with the patrons of this restaurant. Perley Stevens and his famous recording orchestra are broadcasting from this restaurant daily and have received a number of letters for request numbers.

SHORT STORY: THE VAN FLIM MURDER MYSTERY

CUTHBERT VAN FLIM, mystery writer and society detective, was annoyed. In the first place he didn't like all the fuss people were making over him. Just because he had solved a few murders—in books. Everywhere he went little groups would follow, crying, "Who's all right? Van Flim's all right. Society detective. Rah!" Or was it "Bah!" He wondered.

And, in the second place, he had just 28 minutes to use his appointment. He had to address another luncheon club. Would they never stop asking him to substitute for regular speakers? He glanced at his stockings. One was tan, one black. Pahaw. He hurried to his bureau drawer. No use. The other pair was like that, too—one black, one tan. He would have to make the best of it, and go as he was.

Van Flim sulked as his big Rolls-Royce glided smoothly into town. Now he was getting out. People stopped to eye him suspiciously. "Van Flim!" he heard them mutter. He glanced at the address in see if it corresponded with his notes. Yes. He made a neat check with his fountain pen, using invisible ink. He was getting nervous. Had that fellow tried to kick him? Surely not. Yet it felt distinctly like that. Yes. He had been kicked. But he hurried on.

Seated, he began to toy with his soup. Suddenly his eyes bulged. This was strange—a fish in the spoon. No matter.

Then, suddenly, the chairman arose. He looked coldly at Van Flim. Calmly he turned. And while the assembled gentlemen cheered, the chairman seized Van Flim by the throat. His strong fingers closed. Van Flim's face turned purple—he was being choked. Slowly. Surely. The crowd looked on. No one arose to his aid. It was all over in a second.

Van Flim had been initiated into the Mysterious Crime Club. The object of the club, according to the chairman, was merely to benefit humanity by mysteriously murdering all mystery story writers.

Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey as quoted in the Paris Tribune—

"That unholy 18th Amendment has taken the 'meri' out of America. It is dreadful. Three-fourths of the dry enforcement agents have been thrown out because they are crooked. You can't find a decent red-blooded American any more who would take a dry enforcement job. I wish more Americans would come over here to France and learn how to drink."

MISS FAIRFAX WARNS OF ROMANCE AND HEROES

Do Not Dread the Idea of Marrying, She Says

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

EBBIE doesn't state her age in her letter, which I am printing today, but I surmise she is not more than 16. She feels a vague but intense longing for—well, she isn't sure just what—for thrills, adventure, romance, freedom and heroes. But her letter speaks for itself:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Please tell me if I have the correct idea of marriage. I think marriage ends sweetheart days. I don't believe in it at all.

"I've been in love, or infatuated, probably was, many times, but always found my mistake very soon. I seem to be not wanted by boys as a friend. Always, I should be the steady or none. What can I do?

"Boys have the idea they want the girl, alone. Girls take fellows as they are. They do not expect to change a dry old 'steady' and later the hubby. I do not see how I could ever change my mind and settle down. I want freedom always.

"At present, I hate boys, but at times I feel myself soften at a curly head or blue eye, or, possibly, an athlete figure, so I know that it can't always be.

"I have never met one whom I consider a real man—just here and there a boyish man, and then he always belonged to someone else, if he was at all interesting. Why do I never get a chance?

"I am good-looking, jolly, and have a way of my own. Fellows tell me I'm cute. Can it be love when they don't bar smoking, drinking and petting of a girl?"

I know just how you feel, Ebbie. You are hungry for life and you don't want to miss a single thrill or adventure, do you now!

You hate boys because they are everyday and humdrum, but you dream at times of heroes, and above all, your own hero—isn't it true? And although you adore freedom and feel you can never settle down, yet you dread the idea of not marrying and wish your chance would come?

What are you to do about it all—about the clash between your dreams and the actual world about you? Not a thing, Ebbie, save continue to grow up sweetly as a spring lilac. Your letter is really a song of springtime, and that song sings fresh and sweet throughout the year, even in autumn.

PLATE LUNCHEONS

HOWEVER fervently we may vow that we will have no company until the warm weather is really a thing of the past, there's always the old friend passing through town, or the wife of a "good customer" to be entertained, and upset are our good resolutions.

For one of these occasions, I wish you would try a company plate luncheon which we prepared during the late spring in the Martha Lee kitchen. Here is the menu:

Shrimp Scallop
Peas in Butter
Sauted Pineapple Cubes or Cucumber Cups
Fruit Fluff
Vanilla Wafers

SHRIMP SCALLOP

Make a tomato sauce by the recipe given below. Clean 1 can of shrimps and heat them in the sauce; and add 1 tbsp. of wine flavoring. Turn into a scallop dish, cover with buttered crumbs, and bake until the crumbs are brown.

Tomato Sauce

Stew half a can of tomatoes and half a small onion 10 minutes. Rub all the tomato pulp through a strainer. Cook 1 tbsp. butter and 1 heaping tbsp. of flour in a granite saucepan. Add the strained tomatoes gradually, and 1 saltspoonful of salt and a shake of white pepper.

CHICKEN MOUSSE

1 c. chicken stock
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. paprika
1 c. cold cooked chicken
2 tsps. granulated gelatin
¼ cup diced celery
2 tbsps. cold water
1 c. beaten cream
1 tbsp. chopped olives
2 egg whites

Heat chicken stock; add seasoning, gelatin, which has been soaked in cold water. When dissolved, add chicken finely chopped, beaten cream; beat well; cut and fold in the beaten whites, pour into buttered moulds and chill for two or three hours. Serve as a salad with mayonnaise; ¼ cup celery may be added with the chicken meat.

RIBBON CAKE

1 c. butter
2 c. sugar
4 eggs, yolks and whites beaten separately
1 c. milk
3½ c. pastry flour
½ tsp. soda
1 tsp. cream of tartar or 2½ level tsp. baking powder.

Have three long shallow pans of equal size. Divide the dough into three equal parts. Bake two parts as plain cakes. Add to the remaining part or dough ½ c. raisins, stoned and chopped; 1 c. currants, ¼ lb. sliced citron, the fruit all floured; 2 tsp. molasses, 2 tsps. brandy or wine flavoring, 1 tsp mixed mace and cinnamon. Bake and put the fruit cake between the two plain cakes, with jelly between. Press it lightly with the hand in putting it together, trim the edges even, and frost.

CUCUMBER CUPS

Wash and cut fresh sweet cucumbers into cylinders about 2 inches long. Hollow out, and let stand in salted water to which has been added a little vinegar. Meanwhile, dice finely red or green pepper, celery, onion, or any other good salad vegetable. Blend with mayonnaise a generous amount of vinegar, or French dressing and fill the cups.

Faithfully yours,

The Victor Vanquished

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

THE tables have turned at last and she who has been victor so long in the game of hearts is at last vanquished. And by none other than Dan Cupid himself!

It has been fun all these years to play with the hearts which were offered to her, but she never took it seriously and laughed her way through all the little flirtations. True, she has left a train of broken hearts, but what does that matter—to her? Not a thing! At least, it hasn't until now.

Dan is an uncanny little gentleman. He lets us go along our own merry way, having our fling and toying with hearts as though they were shuttlecocks. But some day he gets mad—good and mad—and then—well, then Love comes truly and what a shock it is. A sweet shock, however, for she who has been the victor in so many heart tilts is now vanquished. And Dan laughs at her, as she sighs over her dilemma.

It's not a sigh of regret; rather, it's one of happiness and deepest content, and she's more than satisfied to know that at last she's been admitted to the realms of Love, and sees the glowing path of happiness opening ahead of her.

A KISS FOR CORINNA

CHAPTER 24
By MAY CHRISTIE

"He wants to take Miss Dugan to the Jungle," explained Van Tuyl. "So he's now—as you see—going into rehearsal."

"I didn't know Miss Dugan indulged in anything so fierce as jungle courtships!" exclaimed Denise, attempting to be witty at the other girl's expense, but merely succeeding in being catty. "I thought she was a little mouse devoting her life to making other women pretty, and fixing their hair and doing their nails and attending to their faces."

"There you are wrong," corrected Corinna with unprotected spirit. Those cocktails had been unusually potent. "I enjoy a good time as much as anybody else, and if I come to that, YOU, too, with your friends and your social life and your late nights, work as hard as I do, any old day of the year, though without so much to show for it."

Mortimer and Van Huyl gave a great guffaw.

Denise was furious. She had never thought that a girl from Julian's would dare to stand up to her in this manner.

She presented a cold shoulder to Corinna.

Ignoring Mortimer, she said to Malvey (who, being a decent fellow was sorry for her, imagining she must feel embarrassed), "Speaking of jungles, I'd love to go big game shooting in Africa. Hunting's my middle name—"

"You said it!" grinned the unquenchable Mortimer. "Anything in trousers, and especially other girl's beaux if you can get 'em."

This was too much. Denise had aimed at playing the great lady in front of Malvey and Corinna, and now Mortimer had done his best to cheapen her.

"You come with me." She put her hand again possessively on the arm of Malvey. "I'm not going to stay here and listen to Mortimer's vulgarity.

Malvey thought these fellows were cads to go to such lengths in baiting her. And the deuce of it was that Corinna seemed to be quite taken with them. He said, his keen eyes going from her flushed countenance to the spattar of cocktail on her dress: "Corinna, aren't you coming with us?"

But Corinna couldn't overlook the humiliation Denise Van Wyck had made her suffer. Also, she resented Malvey's brusque manner.

She replied, with an air that was worthy of Denise: "I'm quite happy where I am, thanks. You go and enjoy yourself."

And, to make matters worse, Mortimer exclaimed: "I've a whole lot of things I've wanted for a long time to say to this young woman. You may beahead of me in the office, Craig, but here and now I'm going to have my innings with the fascinating Miss Dugan."

Out in the main hall of the Garden, crowds were dancing. Denise set forth in the arms of Malvey.

She danced beautifully. Was well aware of it. Malvey moved easily, effortlessly. Yet with a gay vivacance that accorded with her mood.

"How perfectly our steps fit each other!" She was a tall girl, and as she spoke, her eyes were almost on a level with his own. She had been curious for a long time about the color of his eyes—had longed for an opportunity to look closer into them.

She wanted to see them dilate and darken—because of his feeling for her—to see them melt in tenderness—and then stir up storms in them to match her own violent emotions.

She said with a breathless gasp: "My cloak's slipping. Would you put your hand on my hip—please —so as to hold it?"

As he did so, she gave a shivering sigh, and trembled closer—close—to him.

It was half-past in the morning when Malvey and Corinna left the ball in Madison Square Garden.

Corinna felt as though never would she forget the queer blend of excitement and misery of this evening.

PARTY BID INQUIRY

By MRS. BEECKMAN

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I would like to have your advice. I am giving a luncheon for 12 girls for my birthday and I would like to know if this kind of invitation would be all right?

"Dear So and So:

"I would like to have you come to a luncheon to be given at my house at 1234 Lane ave.

"Sincerely,
"Jane Underwood."

2. Is it correct for me to say that it is a birthday party?

—READER.

THIS (1) form of invitation is correct, but yours could perhaps be worded so that it would not sound quite so brief and angled.

DEAR MARY:

It would make me so happy if you will come to luncheon at my home on Friday, the fourth of October, at one o'clock. I am inviting a few friends, and I think that you know them all. Do say that you will join us.

Cordially yours,
Jane Underwood.

2. You may mention this, if you wish.

This Day in History

ON September 25, 1513, Balboa, a Spanish explorer, discovered the Pacific Ocean from the top of a mountain in the Isthmus of Panama. He called it the South Sea and claimed it in the name of the King of Spain. He little knew its extent or to what lands its further edges washed upon.

Otero Shoots Down Police Officer

CHAPTER 33

OTERO and Rico went down the fire escape. They stopped at the foot of the fire escape and Rico took Otero by the arm.

"Listen," he said, "here's the dope. We got to get to Ma Magdalena's. She's got most of my jack and a good hide-out. It ain't gonna be easy, because the bulls're probably scattered all around. But once we get there, we're O. K."

"All right," said Otero.

They started. Rico knew every alley in the district, and he led Otero by such a safe route that they were soon within a block and a half of Ma Magdalena's without having crossed a main thoroughfare.

"Now," said Rico, "we got to watch our step. If the bulls are cruising, they're cruising this street sure."

"All right," said Otero.

"Listen," said Rico, "don't be afraid to use your gat if the fun begins. They can only hang you once."

"I ain't afraid," said Otero.

They left the alley and were half way across the street when somebody shouted at them to halt. Without turning, they broke into a run.

"It's only one bull," said Rico.

A bullet sang over them and they heard the blast of a policeman's whistle. Otero stopped in his tracks, turned, took a steady aim and fired. The policeman staggered forward three or four steps and fell to his knees.

"Got him," said Otero.

Rico cursed. The policeman was kneeling in the middle of the street, trying to steady his hand for a shot.

"Duck," cried Rico, simultaneously with the firing of the policeman's gun.

Otero twisted sideways, looked at Rico with surprise, then dropped his gun, and began to walk up the alley holding his stomach. Rico put his arm around him and, pulling him over to the side of the alley where he could keep a telephone pole between them and the policeman, guided him along. But after a few steps, Otero pulled away from Rico and cried:

"Run, Rico, run. They got me sure. I can't feel nothing."

Rico grabbed him and tried to pull him along, but he resisted.

"Damn you, Rico," cried Otero, "run! I can't go no farther. I'm done for."

Rico heard the roar of a police car. He released Otero, who staggered away from him and then fell flat on his back.

"Run, Rico," said Otero.

Rico climbed a fence, ran up through a filthy back yard, and in at an open back door. There was a young girl sweeping in the hall. At Rico's sudden appearance, she dropped her broom and flattened herself against the wall Rico took her by the arm.

"Listen, sister," he said, "the bulls're after me. I'm going out the front way, see, but if the bulls come through here you tell 'em I hopped the fence next door and doubled back. Got it?"

"Yes, sir," said the girl, then looking up at Rico, "I know you."

"Yeah?" said Rico. "Well, do you stuff then, sister."

In the alley behind the house there was a shriek of brakes and someone cried in a loud voice:

"He went in that way!"

The girl picked up her broom and went on sweeping. Rico ran out through the front hall, down the long flight of stone steps, and crossed the street leisurely.

Ma Magdalena let him in at the alley door.

"Well, Rico," she said; "got yourself in a nice fix, didn't you?"

Rico grinned.

"Yeah," he said, "who told you?"

The bulls were here and searched the place."

"Didn't find the hide-out, did they?"

Ma Magdalena laughed.

"What a chance!"

Rico followed Ma down into the basement. She led him through a short tunnel and back into the hide-out. A small, round opening just large enough to admit one person had been pierced in a heavy stone wall. In front of the wall rows of pine shelves had been built and these were filled with canned goods. The section of the shelves which hid the opening was hinged and could be swung open.

Rico followed Ma through the opening and came out into a little room with a cot in one corner, a table, and one chair. Rico took off his hat and sat down.

"They got Otero," he said.

"Yeah?" said Ma.

Rico took out a cigar and lit it. "Listen," he said, "I want to stay here a couple of days. Then I'm gonna pull out. Get me some magazines and keep me posted."

"All right," said Ma, "but it's gonna cost you, because I'm taking chances, see, I'm taking big chances."

"Well," said Rico, "you got my roll, help yourself."

Ma Magdalena smiled broadly.

"That's the talk, Rico. Old Ma'll sure take care of you."

"O. K.," said Rico; "now, get this: "Arrigo's got a car. If we go hooking one, it might spoil your get away."

"That's good," said Rico; "all right, I want a jumper suit, you know, one of them suits like a garage mechanic wears, and a razor."

"All right," said Ma Magdalena.

When she had gone, Rico took off his coat and shoes, and lay down on the cot. His nerves were jumpy and he couldn't seem to get settled. He flung his cigar away and turned his face to the wall.

"Just when I thought things was on the up and up," he said.

Rico felt resentful, but his resentment was not directed at any specific group or person; it was vague as yet. He turned from side to side on his cot, then he gave it up.

Ma Magdalena came back with a big mug of coffee and a couple of papers. Rico sat down at the table.

"They got Sam," said Ma.

"Well," said Rico, "that's hips for Sam."

Rico took the papers from her and glanced at the headlines.

GENTLEMAN JOE WILTS GANG CHIEF NAMED AS SLAYER

Ma Magdalena went out. Rico sat reading the paper and sipping his coffee.

"Gentleman Joe Massara looks more like a movie actor than a gunman. When arrested he was wearing an expensive Tuxedo and the rings that were taken from him are valued at $2000.

"To hell with that," said Rico.

He read on:

"Cesare Bandello, known as Rico, the Vettori gang chief, was named as the actual slayer of Courtney . . .

"Yeah," said Rico, "and I'm the only one they ain't gonna get."

CHAPTER 33

ALICE had fallen asleep, still holding her burning cigarette in her fingers.

But at the sound of the door opening and closing she opened her eyes and sat up on the day-bed.

"Hello, Babesy!" she greeted Ann Marie in her company-voice, and then she got up and kissed her. "I got here at two and made the janitor let me in. I took a bath in your cunning little bathroom and made myself right at home. I knew you wouldn't mind."

She surely had made herself at home.

On the table were the remains of a meal she had had. Part of a lettuce sandwich and a half cup of cold coffee.

Her suit-cases were open on the floor and part of a box of powder had been spilled on the carpet. A pile of pale-pink silk underclothing decorated one of the chairs in the room, and three little felt hats were piled on another.

Ann Marie could see that she had left her towels lying on the floor after her bath and that she had not even emptied the water out of the tub!

"I hope you won't mind my staying with you for a couple of months," she said, flopping down on the day-bed once more and lighting another cigarette.

A couple of months! . . . Ann Marie groaned inwardly. She had loved having this peaceful orderly little place to herself. The quiet mornings when she could pad around the room, putting her coffee on to boil, taking her bath and then going back to bed for a luxurious half-hour with the coffee on a table beside her and the morning paper propped up on her knees.

Besides it was going to be expensive, having Alice there for two months. For Alice never had any money of her own.

"It'll take every dime I can earn to keep us both," Ann Marie thought. "I'll never get those painting lessons now! I know I'm jinxed!" And despair closed over her like darkness.

"Why don't you ask me why I'm here?" Alice wanted to know after a moment, flicking her cigarette ash on to the floor.

"Why, I just suppose you'd come for a visit. I just took it for granted—" answered Ann Marie, picking up the damp towels from the bathroom floor and letting the water out of the tub.

Alice shook her sleek golden head.

"No. I came because I just couldn't stand living in that house of ours another minute! It isn't ours, any more, really. It's Stella's!" she said. "Do you know what she's done? She's discharged Mrs. Leavy, and she told me and Jeanie that the three of us could do the housework!—Can you feature that?"

Ann Marie couldn't. For she knew that neither Alice nor Jeanie knew anything about housework, and had always refused point-blank to learn anything about it.

"She said that Jeanie and I would have to take care of the upstairs," Alice went on in her brassy voice, "and that she would do the downstairs work. She said she would do the cooking, but that Jeanie and I would have to do the dishes! —Can you imagine THAT?"

No, Ann Marie couldn't imagine that, for the life of her.

"She said that we would send the bedding to the laundry—and that the three of us would do the rest of the washing ourselves!" Alice wound up her story, "Jeanie and me standing over a wash-tub when we're all but married to the two richest fellows in town!—I liked her nerve—Well, the long and short of it is that I rowed with her and came here. And I'm going to stay until I marry Johnny in June!"

Ann Marie found herself hoping that nothing would happen so that the wedding would be postponed.

"When Neal comes we'll ask him to take us out to dinner somewhere," Ann Marie said presently. "There are a lot of little restaurants near here that serve good meals, so he tells me."

"Neal?" asked Alice opening her eyes very wide, and her hands flew to her hair. She began to fluff it out over her ears and to moisten her lips with the tip of her tongue to make them redder. "Is he coming tonight?"

"He lives in the flat next door," answered Ann Marie, wishing suddenly that he didn't live there. . . . The thought flashed across her mind that she would be gone all day tomorrow, and that they would be here together.

"He does!" Alice was all excitement in a second. "How thrilling!"

She jumped up from the day-bed and reached for the vanity case in her hand-bag. Then, lying back against her pillows, she began to outline her lips with paint and to fluff powder on her nose and rouge upon her cheeks.

"Maybe he's at home now," Ann Marie said and went across the hall to knock on his door.

But there was no answer. He was not there.

He had not come at half past seven.

"Let's go out and have a sandwich or something by ourselves," Ann Marie proposed, looking at the clock. "I'm starved."

Alice shook her head without raising her eyes from the magazine she was reading.

"I'm not the least bit hungry. You go out and eat something, and I'll stay here," she said. "I'm too comfy to move."

Ann Marie knew that she was waiting to see Neal.

But she left her there alone, anyway, and went across the street to eat a ham sandwich at the drug-store counter . . . If Alice had made up her mind to have one last flirtation with Neal before she married Johnny Lawler and settled down, Ann Marie knew that nothing could stop her.

She got back to Susquehanna Hall at five minutes past eight.

Neal had come home while she was gone, and he and Alice were in his apartment.

They had left the door open so that they could watch for her, and she heard the loud music of the radio as she came up the stairs . . .

"—Do a dance called Raccoon. "It's the craze—nowadays—

"And it will get you soon—"

Through the doorway she could see the two of them dancing, their arms around each other and their faces all but touching as they moved slowly across the room. Together, they hummed the melody.

"It's just like the old Front Parlor stuff back home!" thought Ann Marie with a sinking of her heart as she paused for a second on the threshold, watching them.

Neal saw her before Alice did.

"Ah, here she is!" He dropped Alice like a hot-cake and came swiftly across the room to her. "Here's our Working Girl!"

There was a smell of cocktails on his breath and a brilliant, reckless light in his blue eyes as he bent to kiss her.

"Alice, and I have a grand idea!" he told her. "This being her first night in our midst, we thought we'd go out and celebrate! How about it?"

Ann Marie hesitated. She was tired, for one thing, and she was going to have to get up very early in the morning . . . and "celebrating" meant spending a lot of money.

"I suppose Neal has his mother's check," she said to herself. "But he shouldn't spend it foolishly. He ought to keep it and pay his bills with it." She knew how little money he had.

"Come on, let's go, Ann Marie. Don't be a wet blanket," Alice cut in sharply. "It's my first night, and I'd like a party!"

And so, against her will, Ann Marie found herself giving in to them.

"All right," she said slowly, wondering why she said it.

"Whoop-as-es!" sang out Alice. "I'll put on my coat right away!"

She went dancing out of the room, and Anne Marie was starting after her when Neal stopped her with his hand on her shoulder.

"Wait a minute, Sweetheart!" he said. "It's all right with me if Big Sister wants a Big Night—but who's going to put up the money for it? You know how flat I am."

He turned away from her suddenly and walked over to the window, staring into the darkness outside.

"Lord, but it's humiliating to be short of money like this!" he said. "To have to ask my girl to lend me money!"

Ann Marie's heart went out to him. It was humiliating, no doubt of that . . . Her fingers went into her handbag and came out with a $20 bill in them.

"Dearest," she said, crossing the room to him, "don't feel like this. It kills me— Money isn't so important. When I happen to have some we'll use it, and when you have some we'll use that. Let's not think about it." She put her arms around him, and when he kissed her she slipped the bill into the top pocket of his vest.

At 12 o'clock that night they were still "celebrating."

They had found a tiny basement "night club" sort of place and there they had settled themselves at a little table in a very dark corner.

The whole place was dimly-lighted by orange-colored covers on the table. The tiny orchestra banged out the worst music that Ann Marie had ever listened to, and the dancers all looked cheap and common to her. They made violent love to each other as they danced, and between dances, and nobody seemed to mind.

"It's a tough place," thought Ann Marie, yawning as she watched Alice and Neal dancing their tenth dance together.

"You don't mind my dancing with Alice most of the time, do you, Sweetheart?" Neal had asked her earlier in the evening. "You want her to have a good time, just as I do, don't you?—Next time we go out we'll get a man for her."

There was no doubt that Alice was having a good time. She had had three tall glasses of ginger ale mixed with gin from the two flat bottles that Neal had brought with him from his flat. And her cheeks were flushed and her eyes bright now as she swung slowly around the shadowy spaces of the dance floor with him.

All evening she had been making eyes at Neal. Great childish blue baby-eyes at him.

But now, Anne Marie noticed, she was making baby-eyes at another man who had been sitting alone at a table near the flight of stairs that led up to the street.

He was standing beside his table and as Alice and Neal swept by him he tapped Neal on the shoulder.

Ann Marie saw Neal stop with Alice in his arms and look up at the man who had spoken to him, say something to him, but she couldn't catch what it was.

Then, without warning, the big man's arm shot out—and Neal, with Alice still clinging to him—crashed down upon the floor!

WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

Now that shaving is so easy and simple, a beard seems as superfluous as an extra wife in Paris.

To some men, the "Don't" sign in a woman's eyes is an insult; to others it is a warning; but, to most of them, it's just a dare!

Telling a man that you "don't believe in marriage," somehow, always arouses his determination to convince you that you are wrong, even if he has to go as far as the altar to prove it.

It's perfectly astonishing, how easily a college girl can tell you all about men"—considering that you can't possibly know anything about ANY man until you have been married to him, at least once.

"Petting," says Dr. Horn of New York University, "involves emotional excitement." Sometimes, Doctor. And sometimes it's just a little formality, through which a man goes, because he thinks that the girl expects it; and which a woman endures, just to avoid being classed with high-button shoes.

Life is so unfair to a woman! She can't even run over a man in her car, now and then, without getting a reprimand from the judge and her picture in all the Sunday Supplements!

Of course, you can't buy real love; but a man will never give up the hope that he can buy some substitute "just as good"—and not half so troublesome and exacting.

Trying to mix marriage and individual freedom leads to more tragedies than trying to mix lobster salad and milk, or even than trying to mix cocktails and high-powered motor-cars. You just can't take the lock out of wedlock and make the darned thing work!

Deodorizing is necessary for complete sanitary protection

Kotex deodorizes . . . and so offers complete protection to women who will not run the risk of offending

YOU simply can't be sure you never give offense . . . unless you use a sanitary pad that deodorizes.

This undainty risk is one that no woman of any pride of person wants to run; so it is not surprising that 9 out of 10 well-dressed women use Kotex.

After all, this precaution is so easy. And Kotex offers so many other superior features!

Kotex is inconspicuous

Kotex, for instance, is non-detectable. Corners are rounded and tapered so no revealing outline can show.

And Kotex offers such a world of comfort . . . more than most women ever dreamed of getting in a sanitary pad.

Kotex is filled with Cellucotton absorbent wadding, a wonderful substance that absorbs 5 times more than cotton . . . thus giving protection without weight or bulk.

Preferred by hospitals

Cellucotton absorbent wadding is the same filler that is used in 85% of the country's leading hospitals for surgical dressings . . . showing a medical preference you can't afford to overlook.

Please read the column of Kotex superiorities at the right. It tells several important reasons why millions of women all over the world insist on this one sanitary pad.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Safe, secure . . . keeps your mind at ease.

3—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

4—In hospitals . . . Kotex is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.

5—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a patented process.

CHAIN STORES' BUSINESS HAS LARGE GAINS

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Study by a big bank shows that 32 chain stores increased their business in the last reported month by per cent as compared with the volume for the like month a year ago. This remarkable showing indicates in part the growing customer popularity of the chain store. Unfortunately, figures are unavailable to show the trade gains of a like number of large units outside the "chains."

Chairman W. T. Grant of the W. T. Grant Co. is naturally an advocate of the chain store idea. Nevertheless, what he has to say regarding it is of interest. Chairman Grant states: "A few years back only such staple items as handkerchiefs, hosiery and small household utensils were susceptible of standardization. Now we find standardization in what used to be classed as luxuries. Silk stockings were exclusively for the rich. Today the chain stores sell them by the million of pairs, with no apparent decrease in sales of higher priced hose. The chain stores have co-operated with manufacturers to create for popular use, at a popular price, merchandising ideals in part had been for the few. Destroy chain stores and let your imagination tell you what it would mean to manufacturers, to shippers, to railroads, to truck lines, to farmers, to miners, to the whole world of industry.

Such resentment as has been expressed against the rapid growth of the chain store originated with a relatively small group who have been disturbed because the chains have actually accomplished great things in the way of speed, economy, convenience, and cleanliness.

"The older chains have been making a wonderful showing for 50 years and even a better one during the past 10 years. It is my prediction that they will make greater records from now on because they are learning all the time how to cater more efficiently to the great masses of people."

• • •

The "chain" idea, by the way, is not confined to store merchandising, but includes as well hotels, the food trade, the steel industry, and many other fields as well.

Chicago bankers announce formation of a new $25,000 investment trust. Wall Street has previously interpreted skyrocketing of new investment trusts of good standing as bullish, inasmuch as they have been known to indicate confidence in the bull market.

Progressive banking is not confined strictly to financial transactions. A Quincy bank advertises free parking space for its patrons.

The old reliable business barometer of carloadings is again cheerful. Total number of revenue freight on railroads of the United States in week ended Sept. 14 totaled 1,153,060 cars, according to American Railway Association. This was an increase of 15,002 over corresponding week in 1928, 25,419 above the week of 1927 and 135,900 over preceding week this year, when loadings were reduced somewhat by Labor Day. All districts except Central Western reported increases in loadings of all commodities compared like week in 1928, while all except the southern showed increases above 1927.

At a directors' meeting of Mohawk Mining Co. President Charles D. Lanier resigned and Lunsford P. Yandell was elected president, to take effect Oct. 1, 1929. Mr. Lanier was elected chairman of the board of directors.

In Clearwater, S. C., the Clearwater Manufacturing Co. has been chartered with capital stock of $3,000,000. The officers are: Homer Lovejoy, Boston, president; W. W. Thomas, vice-president; M. L. McLane, secretary and treasurer; J. W. Bofgen, assistant secretary and treasurer.

At a meeting of the governing board of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Gerrit Fort, president of Raymond & Whitcomb Co., was elected chairman of the association to succeed Harris Livermore, who died in a transcontinental airplane disaster in New Mexico. Mr. Fort has long been known internationally as an authority on transportation.

High Money Rate May Hurt Building, Says Forbes

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—Expect building operations to fall off until money rates drop well below the charges now ruling in the nation's chief financial center—money for any period from thirty days to six months costs 8 per cent, while day-to-day loans range from 7 to 10 per cent.

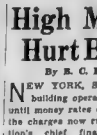
That building would be the first major basic industry to be hurt by long-continued dear money was foreseen from the start. A very great percentage of building is done on borrowed money. Relatively few skyscrapers to which the public has rowed capital.



B. C. Forbes

buildings, from modest homes, are paid for in full out of cash on hand. Except in the case of affluent corporations that build additions or new plants, money is almost invariably borrowed on mortgages.

It is well known that a large amount of America's record-breaking volume of construction during the last half-dozen years has been of speculative character. The war checked building and brought scarcity. Many of all well remember, rose terribly. That stimulated contractors and many who were not contractors, to start building homes, stores, office buildings, etc., on the chance of being able to sell at a liberal profit.

Unexampled activity thus sprang up in nearly every part of the country. New structures were either bought or rented as fast as they could be completed. This condition naturally attracted more and more operators, and the country has enjoyed an era of construction activity such as never before known.

Now, this was all very well and fine so long as the war-bred scarcity had not been overtaken and so long as money could be really borrowed on reasonable terms.

But 1929 developments have indicated, especially more recently, that the scarcity has been overtaken and that money for construction is no longer readily available on reasonable terms.

As matters now are, we are thus confronted with a new and different condition.

A builder who operates in and around New York said to me: "You fellows in Wall street have played havoc with building and real estate. You are willing to pay such fancy prices for money, and are hogging so much of it, that there is mighty little left for us. Very little new work is being started. The coming up of new subdivisions has received a black eye.

"But this setback to new building is maybe a good thing. New York and its surrounding districts have already been somewhat overbuilt, especially in the way of suburban property. A lull in building will give the population a chance to catch up with the vacancies."

Authoritative estimates are that 1929 will fall a full billion dollars below 1928. Says one well-posted authority.

"During the first eight months of the current year contracts awarded for building construction in the United States aggregated $4,600,000,000. This total was nearly 10 per cent below that for the corresponding period last year. The figures seem to foreshadow a 1929 total in the neighborhood of $7,000,000,000 for the entire country—a marked recession from the $8,000,000,000 record made last year. While heavy construction work is proceeding in large volume, a decided let-down in residential and some other classes of work is evident in many sections.

"The decrease in contracts awarded since January 1 has been especially conspicuous in New York and New Jersey, as well as in the New England States."

Abnormal money rates, if much longer continued, will cause dislocation of various parts of our economic structure. Already not a few business organizations have been influenced by high rates to send funds to be invested out in Wall Street rather than put these sums into additional bricks or mortar or machinery or other business purposes.

The enormous increase in brokers' loans has come, not from banking channels, but from corporations and others not engaged in banking. In the last 12 months, the aggregate increase of non-banking money by Stock Exchange brokers has exceeded the impressive sum of $1,734,000,000. Today 55 per cent of total brokers' loans of $6,969,000,000 consist of this "hooting" money, obviously money rented out by the day in Wall Street isn't available for building.

How long dear money may or may not last is another question.

WORLD output of slab zinc in August totaled 138,406 short tons (2000 pounds) against 136,034 tons in July and 129,347 tons in August, 1928.

BOND PAYMENT IS HELPFUL TO NEW HAVEN

The following statement was issued by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. today:

"For the first time since the New Haven Railroad started 17 years ago to pay the bond interest on the 4½ per cent first mortgage bonds of the New York, Westchester & Boston property under its guarantee, amounting to $564,000 a year, the Westchester company has itself assumed part of this obligation. It received from the New Haven $300,000 of the New Haven to apply on the current year's interest, and expects to pay an additional $200,000 before the end of this year.

"It is assumed that the New Haven's guarantee of the Westchester bonds will cost it only $264,000 annually for the last 16 years.

"The improved prospects for the New York, Westchester & Boston are such that it is anticipated that next year it will undertake to guarantee a larger proportion of this bond interest, and it is quite probable that by 1931 the Westchester will be able to assume the entire fixed charge.

"This guaranteed interest has heretofore been taken into consideration by the New Haven in declaring dividends on its common stock. The proportion assumed by the Westchester this year is equivalent to 32 cents per share on the New Haven common"

DUVAL Texas Sulphur Co., subsidiary of United Gas Co., has sold its entire output of 150,000 tons of sulphur for next 12 months to domestic and foreign users.

NEWS-VIEWS OF MODERN HOMES

FINE POINTS OF MODERN HOMES

By BETTY BONNELL

TIME was when I thought that an oil burner was just an oil burner. Combustion took place in a sealed chamber, which heated the atmosphere and sent it warmly scurrying into every room of the house.

Betty Bonnell

That seemed simple enough until I began to look more closely into this marvelous new comfort-development for the modern home and then it was that I discovered that there are so many, many different types of burners. Each is designed for the same result, of course, but all of them differ in operation and principle.

For instance, there's one well-known burner with a patented metering device that dips up an exactly measured number of drops with each movement of the piston. It also has an atomized mechanism that whips these drops into a froth, mixes it with the air stream and in this way sends it through the burner nozzle.

Then there's another famous burner that relies on atmospheric pressure to do the work. When the burner starts, the motor operates a pump which causes a vacuum and the atmospheric pressure then forces the oil from the tank through a feed line into this vacuum.

At the same time, a rotating fan creates a current of air of sufficient pressure to feed the oil from the flame directly downward below into an atomizing cup, where by an ingenious process the oil is atomized and carried into the combustion chamber.

It seems to be most advisable to have air for combustion provided by a fan rather than by natural draft, since the latter depends upon weather and is therefore unreliable. Poor draft causes smoke, while excess draft brings excess air to cool the fire and waste heat.

Fortunately, heat by oil has become more practical and popular than ever, due to the usefulness of operation, made possible by eliminating the many parts, better sealing, and improved methods of lubrication. Many burners work so quietly today you simply wouldn't know they were in the house.

Remember, it's a pretty easy matter to install a burner, but to refit it is a new home or whether you already have another type of heater in the house, one of the most reliable concerns in the business and let them tell you about heat by oil.

LITERATURE on standard materials and products used in the construction of Modern Homes will be sent to you, if you will check the subjects that interest you and mail to the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 6 Winthrop sq., Boston.

English Bungalow, Costing $8800

COMFORTABLE BUNGALOW WELL PLANNED

By National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc.

HERE is a unique bungalow, A-118, along English lines. Low broadness gives the appearance that the house has "grown" in its setting—it fits.

Comfort and substantiability are suggested by the large chimney of brick and stone and it provides the living room with a huge fireplace where the large logs can burn cozily in the winter.

Stucco sides, brick vestibule gable, variegated shingle roof, half timber work, sturdy door of solid sticks, iron hinges, lantern and hardware, all lend their charm to the general effect.

In addition to the charming exterior, the house is well planned within. The combined living room and dining room is large and there is an attractive dining alcove off the kitchen where one may serve the meals on more informal occasions.

Two bedrooms, both with ample light and cross ventilation and space allowed for the various pieces of furniture, are to be found in one end of the house. One of these bed rooms has a very attractive window seat and both have plenty of closet space. A tiled bath and well equipped kitchen complete the arrangement.

Cost about $8800.

COMPLETE working plans and specifications of the house illustrated above may be obtained for a nominal cost from the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc. Any technical questions regarding this house will be answered without cost or obligation. Address the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. Refer to House A—118.

MODERN HOME DEFINED

The meaning of the word "modern," as applied to home building and remodeling, is discussed by William W. Jenness of L. Grossman Sons, Inc., as follows:

"Old houses have a strong appeal to many people, an appeal that almost assumes the proportions of prejudice. It is expressed in the oft heard saying, 'They don't build houses now the way they used to.' That's so. They don't. They build them better. If you are remodeling, modernize.

"Asphalt shingles in beautiful color blends that are fire resisting will modernize your roof. And insulation, an unheard of feature in old houses, may be obtained today by the proper use of wall board, insulating, lumber and building board.

"Code designs for kitchen or bath or a smooth surface that may be painted or papered add beauty to insulating qualities. The result is a house that is warm in winter, cool in summer, and beautiful the year round.

"The wasted space in your attic can be converted into spacious rooms by remodeling with wallboard. A positive luxury in old houses, beautiful and durable flooring is a universal feature of newly constructed dwellings.

"And old houses can be remodeled by laying oak over the old floors at less than the cost of a good rug or carpet. To modernize is to economize. This economy is extended to time and space by built-in furniture.

"Telephone cabinets, medicine cabinets, china closets, ironing boards, breakfast nooks and colonades bring convenience and beauty of a Riverside Drive apartment to the modern home.

"As for the meaning of modern, it is synonomous with safety, beauty, durability, convenience and comfort."

Papers Passed on Brookline Realty

Final papers have passed on the property at 100 Columbia st., Brookline, a two-family house and 5125 sq. ft. of land. The total assessment is $15,000, of which $3600 is on the land and $10,000 on the house.

Irwin Springer conveyed to Isaac Rosenfield, who intends to occupy as a home. Henry W. Savage, Inc., negotiated the sale.

National Shawmut Bank Leases Space

The National Shawmut Bank of Boston has leased for a long term of years from the Commonwealth Improvement Co., the westerly portion of the second floor at 54 Commonwealth ave. This will make a considerable addition to the premises which they already occupy for their branch bank at this location.

The lease was negotiated by Whitcomb & Co.

HOME BOOK FOR BUILDERS

Complete house framing instructions, covering details of wood dwelling construction, are contained in the newly revised third edition of "House Framing Details."

With the handbook in his pocket the home builder or buyer can promptly check the quality of construction of any house, it is declared.

The new book begins with methods of staking and laying out the foundation of a structure and follow through with framing recommendations until the house is completed. Three types of general framing, the balloon frame, the braced frame and the Western frame are illustrated. Details under the three general types include bridging, girder construction, hanging of joists, cross bridging, stud framing, corner stud framing, furring of walls, partition framing, porch framing, framing for tile floors, framing methods for windows and doors, roof framing, dormer framing, stair construction, framing around chimney and fireplaces, draft stopping at girders, partitions and sills, and fire stopping.

"House Framing Details" is a commercial publication prepared by the architects and engineers of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association, Washington, D. C.

Clean Out Lobbyists

They Are a National Disgrace

WHY should the administration at Washington and the United States Senate confine their investigation of the iniquitous activities of lobbyists to one little Mr. Shearer?

He is not the only persistent and pernicious lobbyist who endeavors to promote the interests of his employers.

He is not the only one and he is not the worst one.

Moreover, he is not the most highly compensated one.

He is not the one who has interfered most with the public benefit. He is merely one who has opposed certain plans of the administration and incurred the displeasure of certain government officials.

There are other lobbyists and worse lobbyists who have opposed the most cherished desires and hopes of the American people.

There are lobbyists who have consistently opposed and eventually defeated measures mainly for the public welfare.

There are lobbyists who have represented oppressive trusts and greedy tariff barons anxious for laws to enable them further to blind and bleed the public.

These lobbyists have not been attacked by the administration. They have not been investigated by the Senate.

Their evil acts have been condoned by the administration and the Senate, and some of these lobbyists have even been publicly rewarded—and that phrase means both rewarded in public and also at the public expense—by the very administration and the very Senate who are now investigating little Mr. Shearer.

Take Senator Lenroot for example, who became an active and aggressive lobbyist for the Power Trust, the gigantic organization for public plunder, which spends millions in buying up newspapers and editors and school book publishers and college professors and politicians and in opposing the public will and welfare throughout the United States and particularly at Washington, the seat of government and the source of laws.

WHAT BECAME of LENROOT? When he was exposed as a lobbyist for an iniquitous trust, operating at Washington in the anteroom of the Senate and in the very halls of the White House?

WHAT BECAME OF LENROOT, rejected by his own state and repudiated by his own fellow-citizens at the polls?

WHAT BECAME of LENROOT? Was he denounced by the President of the United States?

Was he investigated by the Senate of the United States? Did he receive just condemnation and punishment?

No. Ex-Senator Lenroot, Power Trust lobbyist, was appointed by President Hoover to be a judge in a federal court.

He was rewarded with a high and honorable position and given power to interpret the laws for or against those who came before him.

AND HIS APPOINTMENT WAS CONFIRMED BY THE SENATE WHICH IS NOW ENGAGED IN INVESTIGATING ONE LOBBYIST OF WHOM THE ADMINISTRATION DOES NOT APPROVE.

To be sure, the Senate had conscience enough to be ashamed of its discreditable act.

To be sure, the Senate drew the curtains against the light of publicity and darkened the Senate chamber AND WENT INTO SECRET SESSION.

To be sure, the Senators decreed that their whispered vote should not be made known to the public who elected them and to whom they were in honor and duty responsible.

But ashamed or shameless, the Senate DID confirm the Power Trust lobbyist, Lenroot, as a judge of a federal court and there he sits today, as a monument to the sincerity (?) of the President's denunciation of ONE lobbyist and the Senate's investigation of ONE lobbyist who happened to oppose the administration's plans.

It is time for the people of the United States to take a hand in this investigation.

It is time for the citizenship to insist that ALL lobbyists be investigated—those whom the government opposes and those whom the government condones and those whom the government approves and rewards with high office.

It is time, too, that the people of the United States insisted that the Senators, whom they elected by popular vote, abolish secret sessions in domestic affairs and throw open the windows of the Senate chamber to let in the wholesome light of day and henceforth do nothing which has to be done secretly, silently, shamefully and in the dark.

Citizens, if you are indifferent, your public servants will be indifferent.

If you take no interest in your public servants, your public servants will take no interest in you.

If you are neglectful of your own welfare, your public servants will be neglectful of your welfare.

If you only half do your duty as citizens, your public servants will only half do their duty as public officials.

THE SENATE IS ONLY HALF DOING ITS DUTY NOW. Write your Senator, insist that the Senate do its full duty. Insist that it investigate ALL lobbyists, those that are denounced by the administration and those that are appointed by the administration to high office.

Insist that the Senate act fully and openly and honestly and sincerely and CLEAN OUT ENTIRELY THESE RATS' NESTS OF LOBBYISTS WHICH HAVE IMPEDED THE WORK OF YOUR GOVERNMENT AND BLEMISHED THE CHARACTER OF YOUR PUBLIC SERVANTS FOR YEARS.

Do your full duty as citizens and the Senate and the administration will do their full duty and political conditions in this country will be freed from a national disgrace and a national danger.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—One of the mystic mazes of civilization is the upper berth.

This anachronism of barbarism is a relics of savagery and superstition, of the days when prehistoric man went to bed in a tree.

The man in the upper berth is isolated and insulated against contact with his fellow men. When the porter takes away the ladder he is not quite in bed and not quite in jail.

With a fair modicum of good fortune, the man in the upper terrace will be discovered in the morning by a searching party

Otherwise, he must stay there until a Stanley or a Russian icebreaker hears his cries and carves him by means of the latest range-finding devices.

Getting undressed in one of those meezanine hammocks is a job for a chimpanzee or a Houdini. Every time you try to shed your trousers you crack your skull on the roof.

The intelligent citizen, who draws an upper, keeps his nat on until he gets his shoes and sox off. You can manage to get rid of your coat and vest without dislocating more than one shoulder blade.

But we know of no traveling man who ever succeeded in taking off his underwear in an upper. It's too much like trying to see Americas in a telephone book.

The air in uppers is also very beautiful and luxuriant. You breathe second-hand atmosphere at the boiling point.

A bundle on a shelf has the same viewpoint on life as a passenger marooned on the top floor in a Pullman.

The railroad companies must have been thinking about this state of conditions. For their latest ukase proclaims that they are going to put windows in upper berths.

Which is adding insults to rabates. In other words, the man in the upper will now be at the mercy of window-shoppers and morbid curiosity grabbers.

We resent, protest against and disparage this latest improved atrocity. If we must travel in uppers, give us at least the comforting aroma of privacy.

When we are trying to get our trousers off at the rate of 50 miles an hour on a curve, we don't want strangers looking in the window.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

PEOPLE say very scornful things of mothers who seek jobs when they might stay home with their children

I used to say them myself I was a mother and I could not see how any mother could possibly prefer office work to the care of her baby. Everything about my baby filled my heart: His tiny, bird-like cries . . . the aimless waving of his little hands . . . the soft pressure of his sleeping body in my arms . . . his helplessness, his constant need of me . . . these made life rich beyond words.

And yet other young mothers whom I knew were "worn to shreds" by that same helplessness, those same demands. They escaped from them into any job that offered. They assured me that they loved their babies, but I didn't believe them. I believe them now, for I've come to see that a woman may have a MOTHER HEART and yet not be gaited up for the detailed task of MOTHERING

We take it for granted that any woman who can HAVE a baby and LOVE a baby is also able to care for it. That doesn't follow. There's many a man who can design a building beautifully who'd go crazy if he tried to build one. There's many a woman who can love a child dearly who is driven frantic if she tries to rear one.

Sentimentally, we revolt against the idea of a baby being raised by "anyone but his own mother." We feel that there is a special virtue in that mother's service. There may be, if she is an intelligent, controlled, trained worker as well as a mother. But, actually, many a mother's service is the worst thing that could happen to a child. She is too ignorant, too emotional, too sentimental and too edgey for the job.

Dr. Watson thinks that all children should be taken from their mothers after the first few months and put in the hands of experts. That's what a famous psychologist thinks of the average mother's ability.

Whether we approve of her or not, we must face the fact of the working mother, for she has become an established part of our new social program. Russia has met her advent by establishing municipal nurseries, where the child may be left with trained women while the mother works. America, less radical and perhaps less wise in handling certain human problems, has made no such provision for the working mother. But she works, nevertheless, by the thousand.

Virginia MacMakin Collier tells about some of these mothers in a survey which she made for the Bureau of Vocational Information. Her book is called "Marriage and Careers." It's good stuff. You'd better read it. She cites two cases.

"Mrs. R's interests are intellectual. She becomes irritable with the children and they with her when they are constantly together because they are so very much alike. She finds the manual labor connected with the children very tiring. It completely fatigues her and makes her ill. As she now arranges to see her children and be with them, they adore her. They consider it a great joy to have her with them or go out with her and she gives them a great deal in the time she is with them. As the children grow older I think they and their mother will be very companionable. Part of Mrs. R's difficulty about the children is due to her conscientiousness. She can't rest until every tiny detail is perfect and she overworks herself as a consequence.

"Another mother who belongs in the same category told of the two hours' romp she has with her children each evening. 'We have glorious times together,' she said. 'I have discovered that children can be splendid company, and I find the very things which irritated me when I was with them at the time interesting me now, and stimulating me to try to understand them and their development better. Oh! there is no doubt about it. WHEN I WAS A MORE DUTIFUL MOTHER IN THE TRADITIONAL SENSE I WAS CERTAINLY A CROSSER ONE.'"

That may not convince YOU or ME that there's any job on earth half as wonderful as taking care of our own babies. But—it may make us a bit more tolerant with that young mother who lives across the street and would "give anything on earth to be holding down my old job again." Maybe she isn't such an inhuman monster, after all.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—The gourmet in New York finds a thousand and one gastronomic thrills. Every famous restaurant features a special dish to delight the epicure. And there are many out of way haunts known only to those luxurious eaters with seasoned palates

Brooklyn has an obscure hole in the wall where snails in the shell are cooked in garlic sauce just as in Paris. West st. has a lunch counter where steaming, heavy onion soup is served at sunup to stevedores. Stayups found it and are trekking there.

A French restaurateur serves a select clientele at his home near Lynbrook, L. I., and offers famous dishes of Europe along with choice wines and liquors. Many who know say New York has the widest range of food of any city in the world.

A man whose life has been spent largely in chasing culinary surprises and who in gouty invalidism likes to recall culinary symposiums has turned over a brief list of favorite dishes. They are his choices—not mine—but might perk up a jaded appetite.

Chicken consommé and coffee ice cream at Schraffft's, coffee and stewed fruits at Lindy's, waffles at Alice Foote MacDougal's, steaks at Archambault's; mixed grill at Keene's; roast goose at Ganesmeyer's; steamed clams and lobsters at Tappen's and Irish bacon and eggs at Cavanaugh's.

A swell addendum to this list would be hot buttered cakes with maple syrup at any Childs. And without coaxing I can always make away with a bowlful of chow mein at the Port Arthur in Chinatown.

One of the loneliest jobs in town is that of the seedy photographers along upper Riverside Drive. They are there summer after summer like statues beside their tripods. They make three pictures for a dollar and deliver at any address in the years I have observed them I never saw a customer.

A local clown stepped out of a taxi in front of a refrigerated movie house wearing a fur coat and cap and ear muffs.

Two Feet

Yours, and a Gorilla's

(Copyright, 1929)

HOMO SAPIENS is what man calls himself. It means literally "A man, knowing."

Possibly the gorilla that once owned the foot on the right, had he known any Latin, would have called himself "gorilla sapiens," convinced that HE was the knowing creature.

Scientists tell you that these feet, one of highly developed man, the other of his humble "cousin," the gorilla, illustrate and prove evolution and show how two of earth's two-legged creatures, one powerful physically, the other powerful MENTALLY, have gone their separate ways on earth.

Man's foot is built or has "evolved" solely to hold up a body. The toes mean little, century by century they are shrinking.

The gorilla's foot upon which he walks, leaning over to one side in order not to make the flat of the foot hard, is one of his most important tools.

He uses it for climbing. He also uses it for seizing and holding things.

According to the Reverend Mr. Drummond, who wrote an excellent book, "The Ascent of Man," parental affection was born when some gorilla stayed awake all night at the foot of a tree, with a female gorilla up in the branches taking care of the new born gorilla baby.

Sitting there the gorilla, watching for leopards that might climb and attack, or snakes that might wriggle up and steal the baby, used that big hind foot "hand" as well as his front "hands." On the gorilla's foot the big toe is set like the thumb on your hand, so that he can use it for seizing. Wrapped around the neck of a big snake that powerful gorilla's big toe and four little toes would soon end the snake's career, breaking its back.

Homo sapiens could only kick the serpent feebly and ineffectually. The snake beat him, long ago, in Eden.

These feet are important because they show you the great importance of the thumb, developed in connection with the brain.

The big toe, which is the "thumb" of the foot, is undeveloped in man, although it is bigger than the other toes.

Man's thumb attached to his hand, working in connection with the four fingers and the brain, has been more and more developed through the centuries.

You are told by the readers of character that the thumb means as much, almost, as the face itself.

The thumb on a gorilla's hand is tiny compared with his fingers. That is because he uses it only as a hook to put around trees or hold a club.

As man's brain developed, as he invented new things to do with his hands, from shooting an arrow, to playing the violin, the thumb has been obliged to do by itself as much work as the four fingers do, so it has grown and become stronger.

That's what EVOLUTION tells you.

But you are at liberty to believe that Adam, first of all men, had a perfectly developed thumb which he handed on to his descendants.

Evolutionists tell you also, which need not annoy you because you need not BELIEVE it, that study of infants proves our descent from some primitive man much LIKE the higher ape, although not necessarily from any ape or monkey now known to us.

A baby, for instance, can pick things up with its feet. It loses that ability later.

A baby, when new born, can hold its own weight, when its little fingers are hooked around a stick. The scientist tells you "The MONKEY baby had to hang on to its mother's fur while she leaped from branch to branch in the forest and thus holding on TIGHT is inborn even yet in human babies, although they lose that power later."

Also you are told that a new born baby thrown into the water can swim. Two or three years later that same baby would drown.

Believe as much or as little of what evolutionists tell you as you please. In any case you will find the contrast of these two feet interesting.

A Fat Goldfish How to Show Emotion $200,000,000 Too Much Justice for Mrs. Potiphar

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

FRENCH scientists at La Rochelle say the sunfish is intellectually the most stupid animal, its eyes five inches in diameter, its brain measures only two-thirds of an inch in diameter. And the fish weighs 822 pounds.

A full brother of the sunfish is the American pacifist, who believes that this country can make itself safe and help the cause of peace by remaining unarmed.

Ask the fat sunfish what happens when a hungry shark comes along. This country is a VERY fat goldfish.

There are many ways of showing deep emotion. Ladies faint, Nordics curse and swear, Latins make complicated gestures. Nothing so simple would satisfy a Japanese merchant named Sana living in Paris and in love with a French lady who spurned him. As she approached him on the street he drew a cutlass and committed hara-kiri, ripping open his abdomen, causing his bowels to fall out.

That is the Japanese method of committing suicide when a point of honor is involved. You can imagine how it surprised all the French that saw the thing done publicly.

Uncle Sam collected from his nephews this year $200,000,000 more than he needs. President Hoover and Secretary Mellon are said to agree that income taxes may safely be cut.

It is said that collecting income tax costs the Government $500,000,000 a year, which seems a great deal. It should be possible to find a better system.

Britain's National Sunday School Union prints an expurgated "Better Edition of the Bible."

The incident of Joseph and Potiphar's wife is toned down, which may be belated justice to Mrs. Potiphar.

There is nothing except Joseph's own statement to prove that he is innocent.

Potiphar's yarn appears in many religions. It is told by Ovid, in his Metamorphosis, with a mythological character in place of the young Jewish boy with the fancy coat and the Egyptian woman.

Ovid's "Joseph" was less fortunate in the end than Joseph, son of Jacob.

Wall Street didn't know whether to go backward or forward yesterday. The day was called "one of unsettlement."

Money had something to do with it. Time loans for a definite period were made at the rate of 9 per cent, and even higher.

When bankers and others can lend money on safe security at 9 per cent, or even for as high as 15 per cent, they will not bother with 6 per cent bonds for building or other industrial work.

In time that will show in lack of employment, but money lenders will make money without effort, and the Federal Reserve will have had the satisfaction of putting this country on a basis of usury.

A talented American actress decides that she must play Shylock, and does, in London. Critics say that her false whiskers are not convincing. The young lady probably will die convinced that she is a great unappreciated Shylock.

Millions of young women make the same mistake, undertaking work for which nature did not prepare them.

They would laugh if the men insisted on nursing a baby with-

She's Cruel, Star Says

Florence Oakley Stone, who Lewis S. Stone, screen star, sues for divorce on charges of cruel and embarrassing treatment.

LEWIS STONE IN DIVORCE SUIT

Los Angeles, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Times today said Lewis S. Stone, screen star, had filed a divorce suit against his wife, Florence Oakley, and would appear in Superior Court here for hearing next Monday.

The fact that Stone had instituted divorce proceedings against his wife, known in private life as Florence Pryor Stone, remained a secret until yesterday when it was learned the action was started July 13, last, under the name of Shepard Stone.

When Stone and Miss Oakley were married in 1926 he used his middle name, Shepard, on his marriage license to escape publicity.

The newspaper said Stone asked for a divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty, charging his wife "lacked consideration" for his "feelings and sensibilities," was uncongenial in his presence and was subject to fits of anger which interfered with his work and caused him anguish of mind.

Rumors in film circles of Hollywood recently that the Stones had separated and that Miss Oakley had taken an apartment in Los Angeles were denied by the couple.

GRILL DRIVER IN REINSTEIN KILLING

Maloga Surrenders; Said to Have Shown Victim to His Killers

Harry Maloga, alleged driver of the Pennsylvania automobile in which Samuel Reinstein, slain New York racketeer, was "spotted" by the gunmen who later killed him in a Huntington ave. hotel, surrendered to Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doole late today.

He was immediately interrogated about the ride around the city two days before Reinstein was shot, and during which Reinstein was twice pointed out to his slayers "so there would be no mistake."

SHE HOLDS KEY

Meanwhile Department of Justice agents are seeking "Queen Pauline" for questioning in regard to the federal investigation of the white slave ring war which resulted in the death of Reinstein and three others.

SHIP IN PLEA FOR HELP IN HURRICANE

British Freighter Caught on the Rocks as a Terrific Storm Sweeps Near

Miami, Fla., Sept. 25—Wh\'s a hurricane was sweeping toward the Florida coast today, the British freighter Domira was reported aground off Abaco Island in the Bahamas.

The report said there was little chance of saving the 35 crew unless a breeches buoy can be rigged to land within a few hours.

The Domira radioed it was aground 100 feet off shore in a raging sea and being battered by winds of hurrican force. It asked for the immediate dispatch of a wrecking tug equipped with a breeches buoy.

The coastguard base at Ft. Lauderdale said at noon it was informed a tug was held in readiness at Nassau to go to the assistance of the steamer as soon as high seas and strong winds made it possible.

Tropical Radio was advised from Nassau the Colonial Government's lighthouse tender Firebird had steamed up and was ready to stand out for Abaco as soon as possible. It was not known if the Firebird carries breeches buoy equipment.

The coast at Abaco is a forbidden rock fringed shore, making the use of boats for landing impossible in a heavy sea.

Fear of the approaching hurricane was felt all along the south east coast.

The weather reports broadcast by the government are being scanned by anxious thousands, and all possi-

Gave His Life for Yanks

Miller Huggins' worry over the Yankees' failure to win the pennant and his refusal to leave the field when he was sick contributed to his death, his doctors say.

MILLER HUGGINS DIES

DEVOTION TO YANKEES IMPERILED MANAGER'S LIFE, SAYS DOCTOR

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, died today at St. Vincent's Hospital. He was 49 years old.

The little Yankee pilot fought a game but losing battle for his life from the time he was taken to the hospital Friday on the orders of Dr. Edward H. King.

He suffered an attack of influenza several weeks ago. An infection under his left eye also set in. Erysipelas developed rapidly at the time he was taken to the hospital, and the infection spread.

Two blood transfusions were made Monday, when his condition took a turn for the worse, and two more employed Tuesday, when he failed to respond as had been hoped to this emergency treatment.

After the second transfusion, Huggins asked:

"How much chance have I got, Doc?"

"We are very hopeful," Dr. King replied.

Thereafter, however, Huggins was unconscious most of the time, although occasionally he recognized and attempted to speak to his sister, Miss Myrtle Huggins, with whom he lived in New York, or his brother, Arthur Hugg ns.

Huggins' death was caused by pyaemia, the process of pus-forming organisms in the blood, with infection of the face and oedema, the filling of the lungs with water, as contributory causes.

At the bedside when the end came were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Huggins and Col. Jacob Ruppert, president of the Yankees, who selected the little manager to lead the Yankees 12 years ago and backed him to the limit regardless of Yankee fortunes.

Worry over the failure of the Yankees to win this year and refusal to leave the field, even when his health became impaired, contributed to his death, according to Dr. King.

Tribute to the departed leader was paid when, at the start of the sixth inning of the Yankee-Red Sox game, all the players and fans stood with bowed heads, for one minute. The flag was placed at half mast over Fenway Park.

Miller James Huggins was born in Cincinnati March 27, 1880, and spent his childhood and youth in the Ohio town. It was there that he first learned the principles of baseball, playing the game on the Cincinnati sandlots.

VETERAN OF GAME.

Ever a midget in size Hug made his spirit count for lack of pounds age and became a regular at the University of Cincinnati, where he studied law. At the end of his college career he was offered a baseball job, and for some time he was torn between the two loves.

Baseball finally won, however, and in 1899 he signed a contract with the Mansfield, O., club and

PICK SHARKEY TO DEFEAT TOM

By NICK FLATLEY

New York, Sept. 25—Nine out of ten New York experts pick Tommy Loughran to lick Jack Sharkey tomorrow night at the Yankee Stadium. So you might make a note that Sharkey, the Squire, will take Thomas and perhaps flatten him before mids get eleven up around the Bronxs.

Jack will go into this $100,000 venture of his on the short end of not too much 8-to-5 betting. They don't like Jack in New York. They would like to see him knocked silly; knocked so flat that he never could get back.

But they respect him just the same. If Sharkey was as popular as they would like to make out the betting would be 10 to 1 on Loughran. Matter of fact, a lot of Boston boys are over here, looking for the 8-to-5 stuff, and finding little, if any.

The New York boys remember the Sharkey who stepped in with Harry Wills when Dempsey and Tunney and all the rest were ducking the ebony menace. They remember the impressive way the

BASEBALL'S LOSS

WITH the passing away of Miller Huggins, leader of the New York Yankees for the last decade, baseball has lost one of its finest characters.

Animated by the spirit of true sportsmanship, Huggins was always "in there" fighting for victory, and his efforts resulted in seven pennants and three world's championships for the Yankees.

Coming to the New York American team from St. Louis in 1918, Huggins found himself faced by a prodigious task, but proved equal to it. Small, quiet and unassuming, he nevertheless was able to instil his fighting spirit into a team not noted hitherto for its harmonious relations. Friends declare his death was hastened by worrying over the fortunes of the outfit he led.

His death has cast a pall over the team he brought home in front so many times, and over big league baseball as well.

Miller Huggins will be missed.

LOBBY AGENT AT SECRET SESSIONS OF SENATE TARIFF DRAFTERS

ON SENATE'S PAYROLL AT TIME

Connecticut Man Helped to Draft Some Sections of Smoot-Hawley Bill

By JOHN A. KENNEDY.

(Copyright, 1929, by the Washington Herald and International Service Inc.)

Washington, Sept. 25—An executive of one one of the country's most important lobbying organizations sat in the secret sessions of the Senate finance committee's tariff meetings, investigations by the Hearst newspapers disclosed today.

As the attention of the Senate and high Government officials was focussed on lobbying activities in Washington—activities which represent an expenditure of more than $10,000,000 annually—it was ascertained that for part of the committee sessions the lobby executive was on the Government's own payroll.

Charles L. Eyanson, assistant to the president of the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut, is the man.

He admits he helped draft some of the provisions of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill.

He acted as tariff "expert" for Senator Hiram Bingham, R., of Connecticut, during June, July and August, when the Senate committee was revising the bill's various schedules.

Senator Bingham was chairman of the textile sub-committee of the Senate finance committee. Textile manufacturing is one of Connecticut's major industries. Individual manufacturers are among the large contributors to the State and national Republican campaign funds and the textile companies subscribe rather generously to the support of the manufacturers' Association of Connecticut.

Eyanson—admirer and close associate of Joseph R. Grundy, Pennsylvania political boss, king of the Washington lobby and practical dictator of the present tariff fight—had a desk in Senator Bingham's office for the entire three months.

For approximately one of the three months he helped Mr. Bingham, Eyanson was on the Senate's payroll as clerk to the committee on territories and insular affairs. He was paid at the rate of $4900 per year from July 23 to August 25.

ADMITS EMPLOYMENT

In an interview Senator Bingham took full responsibility for the employment of Eyanson, saying that he had paid the Connecticut tariff expert out of his own pocket for the first two months of the employment.

Officials of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association at Hartford told an investigator that while Eyanson was on the Senate payroll he was on a leave of absence from the association—though he is still an active executive of that organization and was back at his office desk in Hartford most of last week with the exception of a hurried visit to Washington on Wednesday.

During an earlier visit to the Hartford office one of the girl clerks in the manufacturing association office said "Mr. Eyanson is not here. He is hurrying to the tariff fight for us down in Washington." Eyanson says this is obviously an error.

In addition to handling a large amount of Mr. Bingham's tariff activities—which included compilation of data for use by the senator in speeches on the Senate floor—Eyanson acted as sort of liaison man between the manufacturers' association and the senator's office, the association files reveal.

Eyanson is one of the best informed tariff students in the country.

SERVED AS "OBSERVER"

He was in Washington last spring when the Smoot-Hawley bill was before the House of Representatives. At that time, he told an investigator last week, he served as "observer" for Senator Bingham.

His manufacturing association, however, joined with Grundy in signing a brief in behalf of the lace industry before the house committee. Grundy has the unique distinction of winning practically every point in his tariff battles thus far. The rates he wanted boosted were boosted—those he wanted lowered were given just that treatment.

Eyanson and Grundy have been in frequent consultation during the progress of the long fight.

HOOVER SCORED BY LA FOLLETTE

Washington, Sept. 24 (AP)—President Hoover's statement advocating retention in the tariff bill of the flexible provisions was attacked in the Senate today by Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin.

He, with other Republican Independents, is expected to join with many Democrats in opposition to the principle.

Pointing it was difficult to reason why the President had not "broken his silence" on the tariff before in view of his action in "throwing the great weight of his office against the debenture plan" during the debate on the farm bill, LaFollette said Mr. Hoover had not spoken to indicate whether he approved the pending bill.

"He has not indicated whether the bill complies with his ambiguous statement in his message to the special session," the Wisconsin senator asserted.

LaFollette said, in the course of his speech, that "intrigue and political influence of President Harding and Coolidge destroyed the usefulness of the Tariff Commission" and had resulted in "tragic failure" of the flexible provisions of the tariff law.

"Harding's simple faith in the Ohio school of protection and Coolidge's New England view of the tariff," LaFollette asserted, "led to a packing of the commission with tariff lobbyists."

With the exception of five cases he added, the flexible tariff had been used in but one direction and that was upward.

President Hoover, as secretary of commerce LaFollette continued, told the committee hearing the nomination of Vice-Chairman Dennison of the Tariff Commission that the flexible provision had been "miserably administered."

La Follette said it was not difficult to understand why the executive desires to keep the "enormous power conferred upon him by the act of 1922." He added the people had seen the "continual absorption of power by the President until today the framers of the Constitution would not recognize that great document."

The flexible clause, La Follette said, constituted the "power of life or death over the institutions of business and agriculture in this country."

national boundary, as at first supposed, but rather was hiding not many hours' journey from his recently bought and costly Brookline home.

Attention of authorities was particularly centered upon a Massachusetts seaside colony.

Close questioning of all persons satisfied detectives that the former "hand-flying" fruit and produce wholesaler was "stone broke" when he fled.

From the family of Lewis Guseman, youthful salesman who is believed to have accompanied Hatch, investigators learned that the fugitives planted themselves likely to have to "get along on one meal a day."

All available evidence, according to the police, pointed to the improbability of any fast and long-distance traveling by the missing men.

Witnesses, interviewed today, told stories indicating that Hatch and Guseman quit Boston in a Ford sedan, leaving behind Hatch's big Packard car, for which dealers agents were already searching with repossession papers.

Investigators declared that they had unearthed nothing to connect Guseman in any way with Hatch's alleged larcenies. They considered it possible, however, that Guseman, through loyalty to his employer, was assisting him with loans from his own scanty savings. Accounts alleged to have been opened by Guseman with North End and Fairfield, Me., banks were being checked up today.

SEE LOSS AT $200,000.

While indications of Hatch's present lack of money were piling up, the missing man's business associates declared themselves headier loser than they had at first supposed. Frank H. Stevens, partner in the firm, said today that he believed it possible that the alleged defalcations might amount to $200,000.

Close scrutiny was being made of records to show Hatch's equities in his elaborate home on South st., Brookline. It is valued at $50,000 to $75,000.

Mrs. Hatch, mother of a three months-old daughter, was near prostration today though able to confer with Boston detectives. Her father, a wealthy business man of Dallas, Tex., was reported on his way here to offer assistance.

cases in the country, which includes Boston in its circuit.

IS "REVENGE MURDER"

It has been revealed through the activities of Dist. Atty. William J. Foley and his assistant, Frederick T. Doyle, and federal authorities, that Boston is linked up with New York and Pennsylvania cities in the white slave circuit.

Reinstein was an important figure in the ring and his slaying was primarily the result of discord between him and his associates. He was killed in revenge for the slaying in New York East Side of Eddie "Duke" Winger, Pennsylvania white slaver.

The federal authorities entered the case when the investigation of the murder by Foley and Doyle revealed the white slave connections of the slain man.

Department of Justice agents working on the case are experienced in running down violators of the Mann Act, and confidently expect to smash the ring, despite its powerful protection.

SHE MAY HOLD KEY

It has been established that men high in Boston's political circles are lending their influence to the ring, and that interest continue to flourish despite complaints to the police.

U. S. Atty. Tarr and his first assistant, Hubert Thompson, are keeping in close touch with Dist. Atty. Foley and Asst. Atty. Doyle.

"Queen Pauline," as she is known, is believed to have more information about South End "butterflies" than any other person in the city, and it is expected she will be able to give important information.

LEAGUE SESSION OVER; ANTI-WAR WORK LAUDED

Assembly Fixes $5,600,000 Budget for 1930; Bid Is Made for U. S. Favor

Geneva, Sept. 25 (AP)—The assembly of the League of Nations today adjourned its tenth annual session. Delegates from more than 50 nations hailed the meeting as the most constructive and progressive during the ten years' existence of the league.

The assembly unanimously agreed that the spirit of conciliation and mutual concession which reigned marked a long step forward in the movement for international peace and security.

The assembly disposed of the few remaining subjects on its program by approving committee reports. The most important subject discussed was the international bank to be established in connection with the Owen D. Young reparations plan. M. Motta of Switzerland, president of the committee, explained why no action was taken on the proposal to establish close connection between the reparations bank and the league. This project was withdrawn by Norway and Denmark when opposition was offered by France, Great Britain, Belgium, Italy and Japan.

It was intimated the United States might be discouraged from co-operating in the organization if the proposal were pressed.

The budget committee presented its report recommending a budget of $5,600,000 for 1930. This represents an increase of $510,000 over estimates by the secretary-general.

The assembly has witnessed a concerted move to outlaw war and to adopt compulsory arbitration as means of settling international disputes. During the session three great powers and eleven other states signed articles recognizing compulsory jurisdiction of the world court of justice at The Hague.

MANAGER OF YANKS DEAD

since that time he had never been out of baseball.

He went with the St. Paul club in 1900 and remained there for four years as a second baseman. It was while a member of that club that Rug established a record for chances which endures to this day. His mark was 19 chances without an error.

Huggins broke into the big leagues with the Cincinnati club where he remained for a while before going to St. Louis where he assumed the managership of the Cardinals.

DISCOVERED HORNSBY.

Once he went to St. Louis Rug quit active play entirely and devoted all time to managing the club. At St. Louis he met with success, taking his club to third place, which was the highest position a Cardinal club had ever held in all previous baseball history.

It was in St. Louis, too, that Rug brought up Rogers Hornsby—his most important baseball discovery. Hornsby, a raw kid in Texas, was for sale for $500, and after a great deal of argument and haggling, Huggins prevailed on the St. Louis owners to buy him.

Now this day Hornsby not only gives Huggins credit for discovering him, but for developing his batting style as well.

In 1918 Col. Ruppert and Col. Huston, then joint owners of the Yankees, brought Huggins to New York. His start here was not auspicious. His players, who refused to respect him. Col. Huston was his sworn enemy, and many sports writers and followers were opposed to him.

During that period Huggins was the butt of newspaper attacks that would have completely wrecked the nerve of a lesser man than Rug; but he continued to bear down.

WINNER OF PENNANTS

The result was a pennant-winner in 1921 and a world's championship in 1923. Since that time he has won six pennants and three World Series, only equalled only by Connie Mack, who was a baseball manager when Huggins broke into the game as a rookie.

The high light of Huggins' career probably came in 1925, when with an eight-game lead he began struggling against adverse sentiment both among the players and the fans. Ruth was carousing, other players were disregarding rules and scoffing at his discipline.

Then Rug fined the Babe $5000 and made it stick. From that time on the players learned real respect for him.

Much has been written about Hug's relations with his players. Most of it is bunk.

There isn't a man on the Yankee club today but pays him his ability and his purpose; there wasn't a man on the club but would go to any limit for him. They were proud of Huggins in their own way, just as he, in his quiet way, has always been proud of his players.

LABOR MAN ON 'L' BOARD

Labor today won its fight for representation on the board of trustees of the Boston Elevated.

The resignation of Stanley R. Miller of Winchester, and appointment in his place of Ernest A. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the United Building Trades Council and a "public council" man, were announced by Gov. Allen.

Johnson is the first labor man to sit with the trustees since former Gov. Fuller failed to reappoint Frank O'Hare, Labor organizations throughout Boston have been agitating for representation on the board ever since.

Johnson resides with his bride of a month at 163 West Sevilla st., West Roxbury.

The announcement of Miller's resignation was a surprise in political circles. How long it was tendered to the governor was not announced. He was at one time private secretary to Gov. Samuel W. McCall.

As a member of the "El" trustees, Miller had been under fire since 1927 by labor organizations.

Miller used Elevated employes during construction of a house he was building in Brookline and as a result, Governor Fuller was called upon to conduct an investigation.

Only a few months ago a request for another investigation of Miller's personal activities in relation to his position on the board was made of Governor Allen by M. M. Comerford, secretary and business representative, International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers, local No. 283.

Comerford moved for an investigation by the Department of Public Utilities.

In view of dissension attending Miller's occupancy of a place on the board, Governor Allen was asked, following his announcement today, whether he had demanded the trustee's resignation."

"I did not ask for Mr. Miller's resignation," he replied.

SECOND TRIP TO ANTARCTIC TO BEGIN SOON

Wilkins-Hearst Group Will Conduct Scientific Study in Southern Regions

Universal Service

New York, Sept. 25—The second Wilkins-Hearst Antartic expedition leaves New York Saturday morning.

In announcing his plans, Sir Hubert Wilkins revealed that he intends to penetrate much further into the depths of the "Great White South" than he went last winter on his trail-blazing expedition to lands never before trod by man.

Sir Hubert also disclosed that he plans a visit to the camp of Commander Byrd at the Bay of Whales. The noted explorer expressed the hope that, with their planes working from opposite ends of that great unexplored region, they might be able to determine whether the Ross sea is connected with the Waddell sea, a question which has puzzled geographers since man first ventured into the southern wastes.

Accompanying Sir Hubert when he boards the steamer Northern Prince will be three aides, Percy Spencer, and a number of volunteers. Sir Hubert has selected these three as those best fitted to face the hardships and privation and the unremitting toil that comprise scientific exploration.

HOLDS FLIGHT RECORD

Parker Cramer of Clarion, Pa., one of the pilots chosen by Sir Hubert holds the Nome to New York record. He has spent all but the first 14 of his 33 years in aviation.

Al Cheeseman, of Winnepeg, Canada, the second pilot, is perhaps aviation's outstanding example of that resourcefulness which Sir Hubert has made a cardinal requirement. Cheeseman gained his pilot's license by repairing a wrecked airplane and flying it away from the scene of the crash, without previous experience at the controls.

Orvil Porter again will be the mechanician of the party. He has been with Sir Hubert for the past four years.

Tractors and a motor car, with special wheels and skis to provide for all emergencies, are being loaded on the Northern Prince. In the Antarctic the expedition will be joined by a boat loaned by the British colonial office.

TELLS OF WORK

This craft, Sir Hubert said, will be equipped to carry to a base to the south of Deception Island, where headquarters of the first expedition were located, the two airplanes left there when winter forced abandonment of the work temporarily.

Leaving Montevideo, Uruguay, on the second day of November, or end of October, Sir Hubert expects to reach Deception Island before the middle of November.

Discussing the work which he has mapped out, Sir Hubert said: "I expect to add at least another 2000 miles to the known shore line west of Graham Land. My first attention will be devoted to completion of the geographical work which I started last year. Not until that is done shall we turn our attention to the purely scientific phase of the expedition."

Mexicans may kill each other to a limited extent on election day, but Mexico knows enough to close gambling houses and forbid slot gambling machines.

Some day this country will obey the laws against gambling at race tracks and elsewhere.

It is not that gambling is a sin, but that it is a substitute for effort. When a young fool gambles in a day 10 times what he can earn in a week, his real work seems not worth while and usually is not worth while.

Goodwin Called a Public Scold at Auto Insurance Hearing

MORAN BACKS NEW PLAN OF PROTECTION

Mansfield Senator Opposes Scheme Advocated by Former Registrar

A triple flareup enlivened the hearing before the legislative commission on compulsory automobile insurance at the State House today.

While former Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin was rebutting the address made yesterday by Atty. John W. Downs, representing a large group of insurance companies, he inferred that Thomas H. Canning of the Knights of Labor was "rather friendly with the insurance interests" and that the commission "should look into that."

Canning retaliated by calling Goodwin "a public scold."

After the first skirmish had quieted down and Downs had taken the floor, Representative C. F. Nelson Pratt of Saugus attempted to speak out of turn.

TELLS PRATT TO SIT DOWN.

As Downs and Pratt glared at each other, Chairman C. Wesley Hale of Springfield, stepped into the breach and signified Downs had the right to continue speaking.

Chairman Hale turned to Pratt and said: "Take your seat. You are not running this commission."

The substitution of a trust fund for automobile owners who do not take out liability insurance for the present compulsory law was advocated by Senator James G. Moran of Mansfield.

He declared his opposition to the State fund plan, proposed by former Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin, in its entirety.

"If we should do away with the present compulsory automobile liability insurance law," he said, "at least 65 per cent of the automobile owners would continue to carry liability insurance for their own protection.

ON COMPETITION BASIS

"The insurance rates would then be quoted on a competitive basis.

"The remaining 35 per cent of the drivers should be compelled to pay either $2, $3 or $5 toward a safety fund, to be governed by a board of trustees.

"If an accident should occur in which one of these uninsured drivers was responsible, the owner of the other car could obtain a judgment against the man at fault.

"To further penalize the uninsured driver, he should be taken from the road until such time as they satisfied the judgment."

Stephen S. Gregory, representing the Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, also appeared at the hearing and asked the commission to allow his company's general counsel, John W. Cronin, to be heard at a later date.

The application was taken under advisement by the commission.

GOODWIN GIVES FIGURES.

Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin allowed by the commission to rebut the arguments made against the State fund by Atty. John W. Downs for the insurance companies, declared that while there may be a difference as to the policy of a State fund there could be no misgiving on the score that the State would run such a fund honestly and with fairness to the people as a whole.

He held that the increase of $1 in the extra territorial coverage rate, announced by Downs, was unjustified, as the "loss ratio for this coverage was but 44 per cent."

He then went into the receipts and losses from property damage, a purely voluntary policy on the part of the automobile owners.

"In 1928," he said, "the companies took in $4,953,116 and paid out $2,443,230 in losses." In 1927, they gave the records as being $4,736,568 and the losses paid out at $2,-759,504.

SHOWS BIG PROFIT

"Then in 1928, they changed the rates, so the insurance commissioner having no authority to stop it, and took in approximately $7,378,862 and paid out $2,838,000.

"That's what you get from the insurance companies when the rates are not regulated."

Atty-Gen. Joseph E. Warner today refused to certify an initiative petition for legislation to bring about a state fund for compulsory automobile insurance. The petition differs materially in form from another petition filed by Frank A. Goodwin to bring about the same result. The petition turned down today by Warner was presented by David W. Cameron and nine other residents of Brockton.

The attorney-general ruled that as the proposed petition read, plaintiffs in actions arising under it would be limited as to the legal means through which they might secure compensation thus depriving citizens of their constitutional rights.

BOARD TO GET CRIME REPORTS

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—Police chiefs of the nation have placed their proposed uniform records system at the disposal of President Hoover's law enforcement commission.

This system calls for organization of the United States into a crime reporting area, to be administered by the Department of Justice for compilation of month-by-month comparative statistics on crime.

A 300-page handbook, prepared by the International Association of Police Chiefs, in session here, is to be distributed to all cities as a guide in gathering uniform statistics.

"The investigations of the law enforcement commission have hitherto been handicapped because no reliable crime figures are now available in the United States," Police Commissioner William F Rutledge of Detroit, explained.

About 650 cities, he said, are now pledged to submit crime reports.

LINDY BATTLES WITH SQUALLS

Miami, Fla., Sept. 25 (INS)—Col Charles A. Lindbergh, who is returning home after blazing a new air mail and passenger route over the Caribbean to British and Dutch Guiana, ran into squalls near the Venezuelan coast, according to radio advices received direct from the plane by the Pan American Airways radio station here today.

The message said all aboard the plane were "O. K." and Lindy "didn't mind the squalls."

Col. Lindbergh, who is accompanied by his bride, Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh, hopped off at Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, early in the day in an amphibian plane for Port of Spain, Trinidad, with an intermediate stop at Georgetown, British Guiana.

BODY OF REED FOUND IN BAY

Bar Harbor, Me., Sept. 25—The body of William Reed, 19, sought by airplanes and more than 100 boats since he disappeared in a small sloop Sept. 10, was found in Frenchman's Bay, near Egg Rock Light, today.

A lobsterman who recovered the body will receive $1000 reward offered by the youth's father, Prof. Elmer Bliss Reed of New Haven, Ct., and New York

Hope of finding Reed alive was abandoned 10 days ago when his duffle bag and charts were washed ashore near Winter Harbor.

He boat sank while en route from Little Gott's Island to Hancock Point where his parents have a summer home.

Indict Girl Who Confessed Burning 8

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 25 (INS)—Rosebud Ankton, 15, negro girl who confessed to police she started the fire in the Industrial Settlement Home Orphanage, which claimed the lives of eight negro children, today was under indictment for murder and arson. She confessed she started the blaze because of alleged mistreatment of the inmates.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

General Motors in British Market Drive

Luton, Eng., Sept. 25 (INS)—A smashing attack upon the British sales market by General Motors Corporation, which has a plant here for making Chevrolet cars and motor trucks, is anticipated. An official announcement is expected soon.

General Motors bought the Vauxhall works at Luton four years ago and have been greatly extending them ever since, equipping them with the latest machinery from the United States.

Senate Smashes at "Dope" Smuggling

Washington, Sept. 25—Vigorous drives to suppress narcotic smuggling will result from the Senate's action in restoring the House anti-opium provisions to the tariff bill, officials of the Customs Bureau declared today.

The new provisions will enable the government to asses penalties of $25 an ounce against ship owners who engage or connive in smuggling and to hold vessels, including common carriers, on which opium is found unmanifested.

Under existing laws, the anti-opium ban has been circumvented, officials assert, because no fine was attached to the owner and the vessel could not be libelled. As a result, ship companies have been able to escape with meagre penalties or no fines at all, even when as much as half a ton of opium has been found on board a vessel by customs agents

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, who led the successful fight on the floor to prevent a weakening of the bars against opium, issued a statement praising the Senate's action. He said:

"The Senate has taken a vigorous forward step in the humanitarian fight to stamp out the opium traffic.

"No vice is half so devastating, half so degrading, half so ruinous to its unfortunate victims as the habit of narcotic addiction.

"The traffic in deadly drugs must be combatted with every power at our disposal if we are to prevent its encroachment into the very heart of civilization

WANT BEDS FOR 40,000 VETS

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 25 (AP)—A plea that the government begin at once a building program that will provide hospital beds for all mentally disabled veterans, is made in the report of the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion, announced today at the legion's headquarters for the convention next week.

"There are at present 52,000 mentally afflicted World War veterans whose disabilities are connected with the service and for which they are now in receipt of compensation," says the report. "Yet less than one-fourth of these veterans—12,000—are now in veterans' bureau hospitals, receiving government care and treatment."

"The condition of many of these 40,000 veterans is steadily growing worse," the report continues. "Soon thousands of them will require hospitalization. It frequently takes from a month to three months or longer to secure a hospital bed."

U. S. Couple to Build Huge Paris Hall

Paris, Sept. 25 (INS)—Two generous Americans have made possible a plan for an international concert hall on the outskirts of Paris, capable of seating 15,000 persons.

It was revealed today that Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Moulton informed the principal of the Claude Debussy Conservatoire that they are prepared to make a gift of $5,000,000 for this new establishment.

Eckener's Son Gets Job in America

Friedrichshafen, Ger., Sept. 25—Knut Eckener, son of Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, will leave Germany for the United States early in October to take up a new job

He will have a position with the Goodyear-Zeppelin Co. of Akron, O.

JOHN AND BRIDE IN OLD HAUNTS

Plymouth, Vt., Sept. 25 (AP)—John Coolidge and his bride, after a night under the ancestral roof here, were up and about today before the dew was off the grass or the chill had burned off a typically Vermont autumn morning.

Up at half past seven, the son of the former President and the daughter of Connecticut's governor, on a honeymoon tour of New England, visited some of the townfolk who had been friends and neighbors of the Coolidge family for many years and who had known John since he was a small child.

They went for a motor ride and were back at the Coolidge farmhouse, the home of his grandfather, before 11 o'clock, where a chicken, given by John's great aunt, Grace Wyler, aged 85, was being prepared for dinner.

The plain white farmhouse where the couple spent the night was that in which, six years ago, John's grandfather, now dead, gave the oath of office to his son, the thirtieth President of the United States. The couple would give no indication of the plans for the remainder of their trip.

PEACOX REACTS KILLING OF HIS WIFE

Torch Slayer Calm, but Pale, Under Gruelling Fire of Prosecutor

White Plains, N Y., Sept. 25.—Earl Peacox resumed the witness stand today to continue his story of how he killed his wife, whose body he burned, and for whose murder he is being tried.

Under direct questioning he denied the killing was premeditated, or intentional, but on cross-examination he admitted the blows and choking that caused death were deliberate

He demonstrated on the courtroom floor how he struck his wife on the head with a pistol, using a court officer as a lay figure he showed how he choked her "to stop her screaming."

He was composed as he climbed into the witness box today, but his face was pleaser white, thrown into striking relief by his ill-cut black suit and his black forehand tie.

CLEANED UP BLOOD

Dist-Atty. Coyne at once resumed cross-questioning Peacox told again of "everything going black" and then seeing his wife lying on the floor, her head in a pool of blood

"You cleaned up the blood and removed stains from yourself and your wife?" Coyne asked. A.—I did

Q.—That was before you carried the body to your car and drove it to the woods, where you later set it afire? A—It was.

Q.—Did you ever help support your wife" A—Yes, I gave her some money every week when I was working

Q.—Did your wife sign the lease for the apartment in which you killed her? A.—There was no lease

Q.—How did you get blood on your face that night? A.—I don't know

Then the questioning went jumping from one thing to another, to times long before the killing, until after it and back again.

Peacox answered all the questions in an even low voice, without a trace of emotion

Coyne asked Peacox why he had not called the neighbors when he saw the pool of blood under her head.

Peacox said, "I did not think she was hurt"

Judge Arthur S. Tompkins interjected: "You didn't think she was hurt?"

THINKS HE'S SANE

"I meant not seriously hurt. I thought she had fainted. I was panic-stricken."

Q. (By Coyne)—Are you of a jealous disposition? A—I am not inordinately jealous

Q.—Then you didn't care whether Dolly did the things you said she did? A—Oh, yes, I did.

Q.—Do you regard yourself as insane? A.—I am not qualified to say as to that. I feel all right. I hope I am not insane. I don't think I am.

"That's all," said Coyne, and the witness was taken over for redirect examination by Chief Defence Attorney Sidney A. Syme.

Britain Not Ready to Scrap Airships

Aga Khan to Wed French Brunette

Paris, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Aga Khan, Moslem religious leader of India and Africa and famous as a race horse owner on all the tracks of Europe, is to be married in November to a brunette who first attracted his attention in a candy store in Chambrey, says Paris Gazette writing in the Paris Midi today.

The ceremony will be performed by the mayor of Chambrey, says the writer.

Worcester Boy, 3, Victim of Rabies

Worcester, Sept. 25—The death of William Lavoie, 3, of Ma[illegible] was due to rabies, also known as hydrophobia, the result of a dog bite, according to the report made by Dr. William A. Hinton of the Harvard Medical School.

The boy was bitten by a dog on August 5 and was not seriously affected until September 5, when he became unconscious and was taken to the City Hospital where he remained in a coma for 24 hours and then died.

3000 LURED TO SLAUGHTER

Hankow, China, Sept. 25 (AP)—Additional details of the alleged Chinese massacre of 3000 Moslems in a remote part of Kansu Province indicate the affair took place at Taochow, an old city in southwest Kansu, on the Tao river

According to information considered authentic following the period of the Moslem conflict in south Kansu, which is a part of a general Mohammedan rebellion in Kansu which has been going on during the last two years, Chinese authorities, under the order of provincial authorities at Lanchow asked Moslems to convene at Taochow for a conference and to receive roasted barley.

Following the Moslems arrival all of the males between the ages of 15 and 50 were separated from the women and children, taken outside the city walls and "butchered like sheep."

No word reached the women until the following day when pitiful scenes were enacted while women sought to identify their dead. Their mournful cries echoed through the city.

The Moslems were concentrated in Taochow as a result of intense famine in southwest Kansu which culminated in thousands of Mohammedans being reduced to desperation by starvation

Because of these conditions it was considered that the Moslems were willing to meet the Chinese at Taochow in the hopes of securing food.

However, 100 miles northwest of Taochow, is reported besieged and Chinese of the Taochow neighborhood are reported panic-stricken owing to the reported massacre.

Chicago Is Such a Thirsty Place

Chicago Sept 25 (INS)—Chicagoans are the country's heaviest drinkers

This startling disclosure was brought to light in an announcement by the Chicago Association of Commerce, which revealed that Chicago will consume this year more than 300,000,000 bottles—of "pop." Statistics show that the average thirst of men, women and children in this city will account for 85 bottles of this type of beverage apiece. This volume of bottled refreshments is produced in 110 factories.

Dry Agent Shot in Fight With Bootlegs

Break Ground Soon for Club House

Now that $11,000 reposes in the treasury of the Milton Woman's Club, ground will soon be broken for that eagerly anticipated clubhouse, Milton women have wanted for so many years. Sixteen years ago the project was born in the heart, mind and dreams of Mrs. Richard Gorham, club president. And before many moons the fruition of that infant hope will be realized.

Sixteen years ago the project was born in the heart, mind and dreams of Mrs. Richard Gorham, club president. And before many moons the fruition of that infant hope will be realized.

Mrs. William W. Churchhill, Mrs. Edward Cox, Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, Miss Catherine W. Faucon, Mrs. Carlton A. Rowe, Mrs. Thomas F. White and Miss Isabella Whittier have been working on a building committee and their report at the opening meeting of the club October 7, will be of the utmost importance.

The observance of "New England Day" will be held on that date with Elliot Wadsworth as the speaker. The meeting will be at the Milton High School at 2.30 p. m. Mrs. Cox, president, will preside. The hostesses are to be Mrs. Raymond Bolles, Mrs. William Crosby, and Mrs. Alexander Abell.

From a handful of ardent clubwomen who in 1898 organized the Milton Woman's Club, one of the oldest in the state, the club has grown in power, scope and vision. The membership now totals 400.

The club's glee chorus will furnish entertainment at the initial meeting next month.

WOLLASTON WOMAN'S CLUB

This group starts their year next Tuesday. One of the large clubs in the Federation, having a membership of 500, it is among the most important along the South Shore.

MAJESTIC TEST CONTINUES TO DRAW STARS

Radio and screen stars making personal appearances in Boston continue to be attracted to the Miss Majestic Popularity Contest Headquarters, and to spend part of their time greeting contestants.

Among the latest visitors were Charles Farrell, featured player in "Lucky Star" now showing at the Keith-Albee Theater and Miss Aileen Huddlestone, a Majestic entertainer.

The offer of free airplane rides for twenty of the contestants who filed their nominations before midnight on Tuesday resulted in a flood of entries to supplement those already received. As soon as the entries are tabulated a public drawing of names will be held, and the winners announced in the Boston Evening American. The winners will also be guests of the Grigsby-Grunow Co., sponsors of the Miss Majestic Contest in plane rides Sunday over the North and South Shores and over metropolitan Boston.

In speaking of the contest, Edward McCarthy, contest director for Grigsby-Grunow Co., makers of Majestic Radio, said: "I hope that no one will get the idea that we are conducting a beauty or a brain test of any sort. The Miss Majestic Contest is a popularity event which will be decided on the basis of votes cast."

Another surprise announcement is that the manufacturers of Majestic Radio have offered three Majestic Radios to be given away to women attending the Boston American Martha Lee Cooking School at the Hotel Statler and casting ballots in the Miss Majestic Contest. Each person entering the Statler ball room to attend the cooking school sessions will be assembled on the stage of the ball room at the final session of the Cooking School, and the names of three winners will be chosen by a disinterested person.

Interest in the contest prizes continues unabated as the girls and women entering their names consider the possibility of winning the first prize, which is a model 181 Majestic Radio and phonograph combination in a magnificent cabinet, a round trip to Bermuda with all expenses paid and a companion of her own choice. Also a complete sports ensemble from the Fairbara Stone Shops of Boston.

Second prize winner is to receive a Majestic model 92 Radio and a complete sports ensemble. The third prize is a model 91 Majestic Radio and an Elgin wrist watch. Numerous other prizes have been announced and others are to be added.

SHEARER PAID $32,500 FOR GENEVA WORK

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—Henry C. Hunter, counsel for the National Council of American Shipbuilders, today told a Senate investigation committee William B. Shearer had been sent to Washington in 1926 by shipbuilders to "cooperate" with the Shipping Board in formulating a merchant marine legislative program.

This was the year preceding Shearer's assignment by three shipbuilding corporations to act as "observer and reporter" at the 1927 Geneva naval limitations conference.

Hunter testified that Shearer, who described himself as a big navy advocate, received $7500 for his Washington services from the three firms which paid him $25,000 for work at Geneva.

The three firms were the New York Shipbuilding Corp., Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corp. and Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Corp.

Hunter said for the Washington assignment Shearer was to receive $2500 a month.

RULING SOUGHT ON MASH

Worcester, Sept. 25—Whether ordinary mash in the process of fermentation is classified under the list of intoxicants barred by the Volstead act will be decided by the Supreme Judicial Court, now sitting in Worcester, in the case of the Commonwealth against Charles Ambrosievitz of Barre.

The defendant's home was raided by Deputy Sheriff Daniel H Rice of Barre and Officer Louis E. Kitchen and a quantity of mash taken. He was found guilty in the Barre court of violating the liquor laws and later in the superior court.

Atty. Anthony I. Bazydlo, appearing for the defendant, argued that mash is not classed as an intoxicant, and asked for a reversal of the lower court decisions.

The attorney contended mash is not intoxicating liquor and the officers had no right to take it until it was in its completed form.

Notables Are Guests at N. Y. Radio Show

New York Sept 25 Nearly 75,000 persons have clicked the turnstiles at Madison Square Garden to see the newest and latest in radio at the Sixth Annual Radio World's Fair, being held this week.

About 150 sets of model sets and hundreds of accessories valued at more than $1,000,000, are on display at the show.

Demonstrations of television and the crystal studio, in which broadcasting over chain network is performed in view of visitors, rank as leading attractions. In the television exhibit, which is developed by engineers of the Radio Corporation of America, under the direction of Dr E F Alexanderson, images are thrown on a 6 pound glass screen, 14 inches square.

Notables of the stage and movie world are among the subjects "televised" daily. Seated before the televisor, their voices and likenesses are carried in synchronism over wires to a booth adjoining.

TELEVISION FEATURE

The television device is not being offered to the public, according to officials in charge, who would not say when it will be released. It is the opinion of radio experts at the show, however, that public sale and use of television apparatus is still distant, as present equipment is said to be expensive.

Among the new sets, the screen grid tube and circuits, various types of remote control, automatic tuners, unusual cabinet designs and speaker developments attracted most attention.

One of the most interesting booths is conducted by the Hearst newspapers. An exhibition of equipment used in the speedy transmission of news by wire is drawing interested crowds. Leading Boston and New England radio dealers were visitors in the booth.

The pageant of progress, revealing in miniature models, the growth of radio on land and sea from its earliest days to the present time is another of the leading exhibits. Attendants in charge explain processes and equipment used by chain broadcasters and shipboard operators.

LIPTON ATTENDS

Among the prominent personages at the show are Sir Thomas Lipton, Count Felix von Luckner, Clarence Chamberlain, transatlantic flier; Capt. Frank Hawks, holder of cross-country non-stop flight record, and others, including a score or more noted stars and screen stars.

Thursday will be football and New Jersey day, with Jack Hardin, former Dartmouth football coach and Governor Morgan F Larson of New Jersey, as honored guests. Friday will be veteran wireless operators' day and Miledon P Hanson chief radio operator with the Byrd expedition in the Antarctic, will be awarded a medal, with a special short-wave broadcast to the South Pole regions. Saturday will be talkie star night.

Leading figures in the radio industry are among the visitors and before the show is ended next Saturday night, practically all the big manufacturers will have put in appearance.

NEW FLOODS IN ARIZONA

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 25 (AP)—The lowlands of southern Arizona were inundated again today, the second time this week.

Rivers which ordinarily at this time of the year are small streams, were tearing at their banks. Several bridges had been torn from their piers and others were being weakened. Rail, air and highway traffic were disrupted.

In many places the lowlands resembled lakes. Douglas, near the Mexican border was surrounded by great sheets of water. Many motorists were reported marooned.

The Santa Cruz river at Tucson was nearly out of its banks and threatening to course through the city's streets. Man-made barriers were insufficient to withhold the torrent of flood waters flowing down the Rio Grande river.

Jean Lamont Proctor Presented Today at Tea Dance In Concord

BETWEEN 500 AND 600 members of the debutante set will gather late this afternoon at the Concord Country Club for the formal presentation of Miss Jean Lamont Proctor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Proctor at a tea ance. This will be one of the smart affairs of the week, with the debutante receiving in a gown of silver and white tulle. Her mother will assist in receiving the large company. A group of the season's debutantes will pour, assisted by Mrs. Le Baron C. Colt (Josephine Jewell) and Miss Katharine Mayhew of Detroit, house guests at the Proctor home, and Miss Mary Curtis. The buds at the tea tables will include Miss Elizabeth Bird, for whom presentation honors will be held at the Cohasset Golf Club Saturday; Miss Marjorie Borden of Fall River, Miss Elizabeth Pratt of New Bedford, Miss Frances Burnett, Miss Mary Cool, Miss Helen Curtis, Miss Mary Ives, Miss Margaret Emerson, Miss Mary Cleveland, Miss Edith Gray, Miss Rosamund Holton, Miss Barbara Holdsworth, Miss Elizabeth Hovey, Miss Mary Lovering, Miss Elizabeth Morison, Miss Dorothea Newman, Miss Katharine Robinson, Miss Phoebe Russell, Miss Helena Thompson and Miss Elizabeth Pratt. Following the tea Mr. and Mrs. Proctor will give a dinner in honor of their daughter, the guests including the pourers at the previous tea. The dance will follow. Several dinners will be given before the dance by other hostesses, including Mr. and Mrs. T. Mott Shaw of Nine Acre Corner, Mr. and Mrs. Stedman Buttrick, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Eaton, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Cleveland and Misses Helen and Mary Curtis, all of Concord.

INTEREST IN DEB AFFAIRS is keen at the moment and the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop Brown and their daughters, Misses Halla and Camilla, at the Ritz-Carlton is therefore important, since Miss Halla is to be presented here this season. The Browns are superintending the refurnishing of their new home, the old Wadsworth house on Beacon st., which they purchased last spring. This old Colonial place lends itself admirably to the extensive entertaining planned by the Browns this winter. Mrs. Brown was the former Helen Hooper, a neice of Mrs. Louis Frothingham and of Oliver Ames, and is keenly interested in horses. The family are coming here from New York in order to launch the two daughters in the same social environment in which Mrs. Brown was a popular deb.

SPEAKING OF TOWN houses and debs reminds me that there are three houses on Marlborough st., side by side, each of which is the home of a deb of this season. At 142 Marlborough st. lives Grace Minot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Minot; at 144 lives Charlotte Hopkins, daughter of the James C. Hopkins, and at 146 lives Vivian S. Kendall, youngest daughter of the Waldo S. Kendalls. Each of these girls will have elaborate coming out parties this fall. And across the street lives another deb, Miss Laetitia Orlandini, at 125 Marlborough st. The Orlandinis have just returned home after summering at Squam Lake, N. H.

MRS. CHARLES K. CUMMINGS of Rye Hill, Pride's Crossing, and Mrs. Dudley L. Pickman of Cove Cove have been elected vice presidents of the Beverly Improvement Society. On the executive committee are Mrs. Keith Merrill of Avalon, Pride's Crossing, Mrs. William H. Moore of Rockmere, Pride's Crossing, and Mrs. William Phillips of Highover, North Beverly. Mrs. Phillips and the U. S. Minister to Canada, have returned to Ottawa after a late season stay at Highover.

THE WINTER RESIDENCE of Mr. and Mrs. George Wendell Phillips of Chestnut Hill ave., Brookline, will be the Hotel Roya at Bordighera, Italy, where they have lived for several winters past. Much of their summer was spent this year motoring through France and Italy. They were also entertained at Monte Catini for a time.

Mrs. Benjamin A. G. Thorndike Miss Katharine Cunningham Gray Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, Jr.

Mrs. Benjamin A. G. Thorndike, Miss Katharine Cunningham Gray, and Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, Jr., were among the Marblehead colony who served as salesgirls at a recent charity benefit there. Miss Gray has returned to the town residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Gray, and has resumed her vocal studies.

ANOTHER GROUP OF post-debs departed today for college. Miss Ruth Lyman, who returned from Europe recently, has gone to Bryn Mawr, and Miss Gertrude Marean and Miss Mary Young, both of Cambridge, are entering Smith. Miss Young and her sister, Miss Lucy Young, have been abroad since June, traveling in England, France and Italy.

THE WEDDING OF MISS BEATRICE FLINT of Montclair, N. J., and Benjamin Brewster, son of Mrs. Benjamin Emmons Brewster of Dedham, will be solemnized on October 15 at the First Congregational Church at Montclair, with the Rev. Archibald Black officiating. The wedding reception will be held afterward at the Montclair Golf Club. Miss Flint, daughter of Bertram Pierpont Flint, is a member of the Montclair Junior League. Mr. Brewster is a Harvard graduate.

INTITIABLE OVERBIDDING

SALIENT POINTS OF BIDDING

Auction: South's holding might well justify a three Spade bid to start with. The fact, however, that it contains side strength counsels prbably an original one bid to distinguish the type of holding. South's second unassisted rebid, even though a slight overbid, was unosestionably justified with his holding.

East's unassisted rebid to three Clubs was a distinct overbid of between one and two tricks, justified perhaps to save a threatened game at comparatively small cost, considering the four honors held.

West's assist to four Clubs is wond, assuming East to hold the number of Probable Tricks shown by his three bid. The same is true with respect to North's assist after South's second rebid of Spades.

Contract: While it is possible that a game contract would have been reached by North and South had South opened with a one bid, there is always the danger of such bid being passed by both partner and opponents, particularly if the outstanding bidding strength be held by the opponent last to declare. Consequently, to safeguard against this danger, South should open the bidding at Contract with three Spades. To start with a two bid would signify distributed strength in at least three suits, false information that might well lead to partnership overbidding Following South's three-bid, North, holding 2½ Probable Tricks in support, is justified in bidding four Spades for game.

THE PLAY

West opens the 4 of Clubs, East winning with the King and returning the Ace. East shifts to Diamonds and leads low from Ace and two others up to Dummy's weak cards as apparently the best possible play in a situation that offered no well defined lead South false-cards with the King and wins.

South now leads the Ace of Spades followed by a low Spade, winning the second trick with Dummy's Queen, at the same time exhausting the adverse trumps. Incidentally, Declarer establishes the 8 of trumps as a second entry in Dummy. Declarer now plans if possible to establish a long Diamond in Dummy for the discard of a losing Heart. East wins the Diamond lead from Dummy, and, to drive out if possible Dummy's Ace of Hearts as an entry, shifts to the Queen of Hearts.

Declarer wins with Dummy's Ace and leads another Diamond from Dummy, winning in his own hand and establishing Dummy's long Diamond as planned. Declarer then enters Dummy with the 8 of trumps and discards his losing Heart on Dummy's Diamond.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

How the Treasurer of a great corporation

uses the foremost bank in NEW ENGLAND

PRESIDING over the finances of an organization which does business in every major country of the world demands conspicuous executive ability. One reason for his success is his knack of making his associates share the load—his bank included.

"Your foreign department," he tells us, "is virtually a department of our own business." Money transfers to any country he names are expedited by the fastest bank cable service in America. His transactions in foreign exchange benefit by the same cable time-saving. Accurate foreign credit information is to be expected from a bank which maintains its own foreign credit files in Boston and is linked with 22,000 correspondent banks throughout the world. This vast network is equally useful to him in foreign collections.

His attention is occupied constantly in keeping his corporation's money at work. Whether his requirements are short term obligations or more permanent investments, he knows that The First National Corporation will place a broad list on his desk in a matter of moments. The securities he selects need not leave the bank, for they are held in safekeeping in our Great Vault.

THE stock of his corporation is actively traded in on the Exchange. He delegates the entire routine of handling transfers and dividend disbursements to our Trust Department. It is handled at a substantial saving to his corporation.

His case is typical of hundreds of men whose business touches every phase in the handling of money. They have learned that there is much to be gained by dealing with an institution which offers at a single source every banking service.

'WHOOPEE' HIT BY O'CONNELL AS SLOGAN

At the home of Mr. and Mrs John Harrington, 9 Cook st., Charlestown, a women's rally was held in the interest of Thomas A. O'Connell, candidate for school committee.

Mr. O'Connell, addressing the 150 women present, urged them to stand with him as Roxbury and the other sections of Boston were doing and make him their representative on the Boston School Board. He claimed none of the candidates in the contest have ever held public office except one who terms himself the "Whoopee" candidate, adding that when a man voluntarily tells the people of Boston if elected he will make "Whoopee" he automatically eliminates himself from any serious consideration for such a highly responsible position as school committeeman.

Mr. O'Connell pledged himself that he would make every employee of the Boston school system become a resident of Boston and pointed out a recent case, where a teacher of one of our high schools played a leading part as a voter in a heated town meeting in Marblehead.

Mr. O'Connell is the publisher of Catholic Directory of New England, an overseas veteran, a member of Boston Lodge of Elks, M. C. O. F., St. Francis Court, Columbia Yacht Club and Marshall Club.

Candidate

Thomas A. O'Connell, running for Boston School Committee, addressed a meeting of Charlestown women, and attacked the introduction of "whoopee" in the campaign. (Conlin photo.)

Girls to Patrol English Roads

London, Sept. 25 (INS)—The first girl road patrols will soon be seen in Britain. Wearing smart uniforms on motorcycles, they will patrol the main roads to deal with breakdowns and other accidents.

"The girls must be slim, intelligent and able to stand the life on the open road," says the Hon. Mrs. Victor Bruce, British motorist, who is trying to find the ideal type of girl for the work.

A car needs a home. Have you a garage for rent? Tell about it and give service in the Want Rent Ads. That's the way to fill it.

START WORK ON DRAFT FOR TAX SLASH

Washington, Sept. 25 (INS)—The work of drafting a tax reduction program for submission at the December Congress started at the Treasury today.

Figures available showed that even though Congress trikes up expected appropriations exceeding $100,000,000, there still will be a safe margin for a slash in rates.

Because of the extraordinary business and speculative activity from the very beginning of the year, which in virtually every phase of commerce has exceeded 1928, it was thought that, barring a most unexpected upset before January 1, income and corporation taxes for 1930 might reach $2,000,000,000, or even reach $3,000,000,000, on the basis of present rates.

The income and corporation tax collection for the year ending June 30 was $2,330,711,000, a gain of $157,000,000 over the preceding year, despite an estimated loss, on the basis of the same business of $150,000,000 from the 1½ per cent reduction in the corporation tax.

The increase, therefore, represented an actual gain of $307,000,000 in productivity of the tax law on corporate and individual business. Thus, providing there were no changes in the rates, the heavier business and speculation of 1929 should result in an even greater gain in tax collections in 1930 than was noted between the current year and 1928.

Prince of Wales Has Special Air Pilot

London, Sept. 25 (AP)—Personal air pilot to H. R. H. the Prince of Wales is the new post created in Great Britain's royal establishment today by the appointment of E. H. Fielden, 26, of the air force officers' reserve corps, to fly the plane that belongs to the heir to the throne.

Fielden will fly the prince in a new two-seated light airplane bought recently. The prince has no pilot's certificate, but as the plane is fitted with dual controls he sometimes will fly it.

Nephew of Dry Chief Held on Wet Count

Portland, Me., Sept. 24—George H. Talbot, whose wife is a niece of the late Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, state and national W. C. T. U president at the time of her death, went on trial in the Cumberland County Superior Court charged with the illegal possession of cider.

Mrs. Talbot, the only witness for the defense, said she had no knowledge of her husband selling any of the cider. She admitted that Talbot's drinking had caused some unpleasantness between them and that she had been forbidden to enter the cellar.

"ANIMAL CRACKERS" EPIDEMIC OF LAUGHS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

AFTER all, it's the simple things that matter, especially in the musical comedy. A single sitting with the Marx Brothers at the Shubert strips you of all doubt; leaves you gasping for breath between laughs but still eager for more of the same kind of happy punishment. Aching sides become an epidemic.

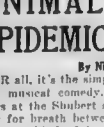
FOR reasons not clear these clowning boys, or their fellow conspirators in the entertainment, have titled the composite mixture "Animal Crackers." There is an absence both of animals and of crackers. All of which gives persuasion to the idea that, no matter what you call it, a good show will hold its own in any company or in any season.



Nicholas Young

"Animal Crackers" presents no staggering mental test for those on the upholstered side of the footlights. That makes it easy for dull customers and enlivening for those just out for a night's fun.

IN any event, "Animal Crackers" gives you more than a pocketful of peanuts for your nickel. For purposes of identification and introduction a gaudy show is spread around the Grucci opera dinner. Stately ladies welcome them into society; less stately but more nimble lassies dance furiously and bit golden voices in tunes dashed off by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby. The special numbers, both vocal and for the high stepping chorus, could have been made less impressive and still run far ahead of the average musical comedy fare we are so frequently asked to face.

IF the music is of high quality, the comedy is corresponding by low. And right here, it must be supposed, is found the perfect balance. The Marx brothers rush through their scenes like acrobats on a wild trapeze. And it all seems very nice. You must either hunch or draw a private glance from your fiendish neighbor. No healthy man ever lived that could resist the coarse but natural comedy of Groucho, Chico and Harpo. It fits into any classification—comedy, farce or burlesque, and I am inclined to give burlesque first choice.

THERE are moments however, when Chico and Harpo turn from the rough to the artistic—Chico with his piano and Harpo with that old familiar but always intriguing harp. The talents of this half of the buffoon ing quartet go far toward pulling down what appears, at first glance, to be a heavy preponderance of comedy packed with loud guffaws but not reeling under any pressing burden of refinement.

• • •

THIS Marxian entertainment is lavishly set up—a costly gilt frame surrounding rough and tumble caricature. There is an evenly fine touch to the beauty, but that is incidental. Glorified burlesque is what pays the dividend.

Blonde Beauty

BLANCHE LeCLAIR

BLANCHE LeCLAIR is one of the eight Spots in Great Day, which has been extended for an other week at the Colonial. It is Vincent Youmans's new musical comedy.

Stage Who's Who

MARSHALL VINCENT, latest addition to the ranks of E. E. Clive's players who play the part of Carrall in the current attraction, "The Cooked Rabbit" at the Copley, likes that particular role. For a fellow that likes such a fierce role, it might be well to state that he is very mild-mannered off the stage and thinks his part more sport is fish ing. He scored a distinct personal triumph in "White Cargo." Born in Burton-on-Kent, Eng., Vincent majored in oratory at King Edward's College, Birmingham.

Marshall Vincent

With an excellent baritone and bass voice, it was not surprising that he began his career in grand opera. During his grand opera life he performed with the Carl Rose, Moody Manners, and Brushey Opera companies at Covent Garden, Drury Lane and the Lyric Theater, London.

Got Cue in "What Price Glory"

WHEN "What Price Glory" was produced as a silent picture the movie wiseacres declared that the limit of success had been reached in the successful exploitation of Flagg and Quirt, its roughneck heroes, but William Fox thought differently

"If," figured this showman, "these two amusing marines could appeal as strongly as they did in pantomime how much greater their success would be could the audience hear them talk!"

He therefore set to work producing a talking sequel which opened a new week ago at the Roxy Theater in Gotham under the title of "The Cock-Eyed World" and since then it has broken all known records of the show business. The film is now at the New B. F. Keith's.

In the four weeks of its run at the Roxy it played to more than one million people and over a half million dollars—more business than the big circuses plan to at the huge Madison Square Garden which seats about 16,000 people while the Roxy only seats 6,000. But the difference in capacity and money was made up by the Roxy giving seven shows daily including a midnight performance and by while the circuses only gave two shows a day.

Role in Music Play for Dorothy Knapp

Dorothy Knapp, the famous beauty who recently appeared in the title role of Earl Carroll's "Florentia," has been signed by Herman Timberg to appear in his new intimate musical comedy, "Take It Easy."

Music for McLaglen

Walter Donaldson and Edgar Leslie have turned out three song for "The Well-Dressed Man," in which Victor McLaglen will sing.

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

ALL unmindful of his public, clamoring eagerly for tidbits of news concerning his activities, Lionel Atwill has slipped secretly into rehearsal, and what a surprise it will be to all of us when he opens in Baltimore on the evening of October 7, rain or shine!

Lionel's pageant is "Stripped," the drama by Jane Murfin, which he tested cautiously for a week down by the sad sea waves of Atlantic City's shores last June. The star is staging the production himself, a habit he has been acquiring this year.

Miss Murfin, the author, is not unknown to the theater, as we actors say. She it was, you may recall, who collaborated with Jane Cowl on "Smilin' Through" and "Lilac Time," in both of which Miss Cowl cavorted hereabouts some time ago.

Another portentous item of information from the Shubert headquarters has to do with the inauguration of rehearsals of "Nina Rosa." This is the pretentious operetta which is to set a new high mark of profligacy in the way of costumes and scenic effects, if present plans are carried out. And, of course, they will be.

Phil Goodman is the beneficient broacher of such high-falutin operas as "Rainbow," is producing again. This time, however, it will be a straight play, stripped of any pretense of music cues or lithesome tripping. In short, to get right down to fundamentals, Phil is going us Vincent Lawrence's new comedy, "Among the Married," at the Bijou Theater next Thursday evening of next week. And, moreover the production will open cold in this city without benefit of the usual out of town ministrations.

Frank Morgan has the leading role, while the only two feminine parts are distributed between Katherine Alison and Peggy Allenby.

Fritzi Scheff returned to town to begin rehearsals for her revival of "Mlle. Modiste" at the Selwyn Theater on October 7. In which as she played the prima donna role three years when he Victor Herbert operetta was a big hevdey. If that's a good word for it. Fritzi won't have to do much practicing to learn her lines.

Sorel, "Toast of Paris," Buys a Farm

Bandol, France, Sept. 25 (INS)—Cecile Sorel, France's most celebrated actress, who took up the role of the late Sarah Bernhardt, is preparing for a quiet old age near this little town in Southern France far from the footlights, applause and milling crowds.

She has purchased an extensive estate near here, including a large chateau. Like Miss Marion Talley, the American singer, Mlle. Sorel is "Cellonne" when she effectively said, "is going back to the farm." She intends to raise chickens, ducks and geese, flowers and vegetables.

Champlain Bridge Reaps $15,000 Tolls

Crown Point, N. Y., Sept. 25 (AP)—Independents paid a total of $15,130.35 tolls for the privilege of using the Champlain bridge between August 26, the opening date, and September 20, operators of the structure announced today.

Labor Day, on which the bridge carried its heaviest load of traffic, accounted for $2209 of the total.

Barrymore to Direct

Lionel Barrymore will direct Lawrence Tibbett in the latter's romantic drama for M-G-M, "The Rogue's Song." Original plans called for Robert Z. Leonard to serve as director, but Leonard was unable to complete final editing of "Marianne."

'BLACK CROOK' REVIVED

CENSORED by the police and press, "The Black Crook" was a gratifying success in spite of the denunciation it evoked. The management of "The Black Crook" began publishing in the newspapers every day, a Time Table of the dances. The show began at 7:30. Then followed the Ballet du Fleur, the Incantation Scene, the Grotto of Stalacta, the Pas de Naiad, the Undine Ballet, the Dance of Mermaids, the Demon Dance, The Crystal Cascade, the Moonlight Garden Scene, The Ta-ra-ra-Boom-de-ay Dance, The Amazonian Dance and the Grand Transformation last of all.

At the Shubert Apollo where "The Black Crook" is playing, the same dances are seen, the same costumming and the same music, in fact an exact replica of the entire censored production of the sixties. The curtain will go down ten minutes after eight and go down at eleven, and the dances will be seen in the same order as in grandpa's day.

Ollve Logan said of "The Black Crook" in a magazine article in the seventies:—"Men actually grew pale at the boldness of the thing; a deathlike silence fell over the house, broken only by the clapping of a band of claquers around the outer aisles."

Gen. Hodges, "Genius of Panama," Is Dead

Chicago, Sept. 25 (AP)—Maj-Gen Harry Foote Hodges, 69, U. S. A., retired, spoken of by Maj-Gen George W. Goethals as "the genius of the Panama canal," died suddenly of a heart attack in Lake Forest.

In 1901 the then Lieut.-Col Hodges was with Gen Leonard Wood of the American Army of occupation in Cuba, serving as chief engineer. Six years later he went with Gen. Goethals to the Canal Zone, spending seven years there designing and constructing the locks and dams.

OPERA SINGERS FLOCKING TO TALKIES

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

[Universal Service Motion Picture Editor.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25—Hollywood can have its own personal and private opera any time it chooses to borrow talent from the movies. Most of the opera singers now in Hollywood or about to come here for a talkie. Alice Gentle had a tryout at the Warner Brothers studio and was so satisfactory she was signed immediately to sing the prima donna role in "The Song of the Flame." This is the same role that Tessa Kosta, who is one of Broadway's favorite singers, sang in the stage version.

I believe I mentioned the romantic lovers are played by Alexander Gray and Bernice Clair, and that Noah Beery's baritone will be heard in the villain's role. Miss Clair and Mr. Gray are doing their bit in a big way for the National, for while they are on the job in "The Song of the Flame" they are also lending their presence to "Spring Is Here."

MEN GET THE BREAKS.

I was right—Edward Robinson is slated for an important role in "All Quiet on the Western Front." He and Louis Wolheim play two of the principal roles, and James Murray draws the male lead, that of the boy. Women do not figure in this picture, but probably will suit Lewis Milestone, who is essentially a director of men's pictures.

Mexico is awaiting Spanish translations of new talkies. Jose Crespo, who has appeared on the stage in Mexico City with great success, writes to tell something of the intense interest in these talkies. "All of the latest talkies have been shown in English," says Senor Crespo, "and now the Mexicans are asking for dialogue in Spanish." Senor Crespo first played opposite Dolores del Rio, and he says he is returning to Hollywood to further his screen career. He has been given a big reception in Mexico City—a sort of "home-boy-makes-good" glorification.

CALIFORNIA IN PLAY

If the Uplifters' Club could carry California's natural scenery along with them, I would suggest that "The Golden Trail" be given an encore performance all over the country. Frank Dazey, the author has written a fascinating story of early California, with its beauty, romance and religious influence, ably presented by three of our best-known motion picture players, Hobart Bosworth, Lionel Belmore and Tom Moore.

I suppose Al Jolson's going to United Artists is all in the family, for as you know, Jack Warner is himself that Joseph Schenck and United Artists are now associated with First National Bros. through the Paramount deal. Figure it out if you can. We can't; it is all too complicated. But, any way, we believe Jack Al Jolson makes two more for Warners, the "Mammy" and another one not yet named. Then he goes to United Artists to join the company of Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Norma Talmadge, Charlie Chaplin and other headliners.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Owen Moore and his attractive wife, Betty Compson, accompanying Tom Moore, who played in the Uplifters' Club play with Bebe Daniels getting much applause for his comedy characterization of the Fat Monk.

Long May It Wave!

Berlin, Sept. 25 (AP)—Whenever American corsets, chewing gum or what not sold in this town it is the fashion of storekeepers to hang out an American flag.

"Gold Digger"

ANN PENNINGTON

TRIM AND tiny Ann has one of the leading roles in "The Gold Diggers of Broadway," opening at the Uptown and Washington St. Olympia on Friday.

NEW POLICY FOR NETOCO

THE NETOCO Modern and Beacon which for the past 20 years have been two of Boston's most popular playhouses, inaugurate a new policy beginning next Sunday. Double feature talking pictures together with talking acts, will be shown at popular prices. There will be two changes a week, Sunday and Thursday.

Beginning Sunday, "The Mysterious Dr Fu Manchu," all-talking picturization of the well-known novel, with Warner Oland, Jean Arthur and Neil Hamilton, heads the bill.

REVUE HONOR FOR MARION DAVIES

MARION DAVIES, star of innumerable film successes, makes her debut as a singing and dancing comedienne in "Hollywood Revue," which has the distinction of being the initial effort in the field of motion picture revues, and which is showing twice daily at the Tremont.

In this big revue special, Miss Davies surprises her legion of admirers by being seen for the first time out of general characterization and is "just herself," with a spectacular song and dance specialty that reveals hidden talents. Her blonde beauty and grace is more apparent than ever before in this revealment of the real Marion Davies.

Donning the uniform of a British soldier, anotner of her popular male masquerades, Miss Davies appears in "Tommy Atkins on Parade," a musical number written especially for her by Herb Brown and Arthur Freed of "The Wedding of the Painted Doll" fame.

Singing the number first, Miss Davies musters her dancing ensemble of 32 girls and sailors, handpicked for the feature, and puts them through their paces. After drilling the dancing giants, Miss Davies lets them throw her about in an acrobatic number, finally tossing her over the head of a huge drum and she does a sensational military tap dance in time with the stirring music.

The number was staged with a lavish hand by Sammy Lee, noted Broadway revue producer, and directed by Charles F. (Chuck) Reisner. Costumes are extravagantly designed, and the settings atmospherically impressive.

Four Injured in Canadian Wreck

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 25 (AP)—Four persons were slightly injured when two Canadian National Railway passenger trains were derailed at Cataraqui, Ont., today. The injured were Carl Vogue, New York; Arthur Barrett, Ontario; Wynn Seawing, Montreal, and Norrance L. E. Parl, Hawthorn, N. J.

Coming Events

Janet Beecher in "Courage" is announced for the Wilbur starting next Monday.

Grace Mitchell in "The Tailor Made Man" will be the attraction at the Plymouth starting Monday, October 7.

"Harlem," the theater story of the negro in New York, his delights and his tragedies, will be the attraction at the Shubert-Apollo starting Monday, Oct. 7.

Earl Carroll Vanities will take the stage at the Colonial on Monday, October 14.

Gets "U" Contract

Ben Holmes has been signed to a long term contract by Universal to direct the "Sporting Youth" series.

Allan Dinehart Directing Play

Bernard Levey has engaged Allan Dinehart to direct the play by Louise Connell and Ruth Hawthorne, now in rehearsal under the working title, "The Queen Bee." Gertrude Ryan and Curtis Cooksey have been signed for the leading roles.

BIGGEST ACT NEW SCREEN AT SCOLLAY OFFERINGS

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

VARIETY in film fare will be the keynote of the next batch of new pictures for Boston theaters. At the Metropolitan tomorrow Richard Dix will be seen and heard in "The Love Doctor," adapted from the stage play, "The Nervous Wreck." In a farcical tale, in which June Collyer has the feminine lead Winnie Lightner is to be seen in her rival in love. The latter was last seen with Adolphe Menjou in "Fashions in Love."

TO the Uptown and Washington St. Olympia on Friday will come the Warner Bros. Vitaphone picture "Gold Diggers of Broadway," entirely in technicolor. It is a lavish production based on the story Hopwood play, "The Gold Diggers." In it will be seen Nancy Welford, Conway Tearle, Winnie Lightner, Ann Pennington, Nick Lucas and numerous other celebrities.

OTHER new films will be Billie Dove in "Her Private Life," opening at the Keith-Albee Saturday; Monte Blue, Betty Compson and Davey Lee, in "Skin Deep," at the Public Big Six, also opening Saturday, and on Monday, "Three Live Ghosts," at Loew's State, and Eleanor Boardman in "She Goes to War," at Loew's Orpheum.

THE holdovers will be "The Cock-Eyed World," at the New B. F. Keith's, "Broadway" at the Park, and "Hollywood Revue" at the Tremont.

ALASSIE, evidently much interested in Charles Farrell, asks us to tell her what he looks like. Our answer is that the films do him justice. He is tall blonde, good looking, and the best thing of all about him is that he is whole heartedly unassuming. He is a "regular fellow," which is more than can be said of some stars.

• • •

AS we stop to gaze at the phalanxes awaiting the chance to get into the New B. F. Keith's this week, we are reminded of the trouble we had getting the correct Hollywood spelling of Charles Farrell's first film. We asked various folk before the picture arrived in town; all responses differed, and none was more than guesswork. Then came the press sheet; this proved no authority at all, for it also varied in its spelling. It took the title flash in the film itself to settle the argument, and it is (as it ought to be) "The Cock-Eyed World."

DRY LAW PUTS BEER COST UP, SAYS DORAN

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 25 (INS)—Rising beer prices in Chicago and other large cities were cited by Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran as proof of the effectiveness of prohibition enforcement in an optimistic review of the entire prohibition situation before the convention of the National W. C. T. U. today.

"Even illicit alley beer has increased in price from $20 to $55 and $60 a barrel in Chicago as the result of the enforcement of prohibition," Doran told the 3000 W. C. T. U. delegates.

Doran ascribed the steady improvement in the prohibition situation to the following causes:

Reduction of liquor smuggling to one-sixth of what it was four years ago.

Virtual stopping of the diversion of industrial alcohol into bootleg channels, and quantitative control over the alcohol.

80,000 RUM ARRESTS

Obtaining of the moral support and co-operation of American industrialists by the prohibition bureau.

Tightening of regulations governing liquor permits.

Intensive training of prohibition agents and workers.

Nearly 80,000 arrests in one year by dry agents.

Peering into the future, Doran predicted that "it seems certain to me that greater effectiveness in enforcing prohibition will come with time."

Doran pointed with satisfaction at the record of the federal dry agents during the past year. He said:

"Last year the agents made 66,878 arrests and an additional 12,000 in company with state officers. They seized 15,730 illicit distilleries, 5,000,000 gallons of whiskey and beer, and 7300 automobiles valued at $2,880,000, and generally made a most creditable showing. The agents also recommended 65,366 prosecutions in federal court. In addition 7396 civil injunction suits were instituted and 5605 were successfully concluded."

HITS RUM HYPOCRITS

Besides all these activities, Doran said that the 200 special agents assigned to investigate interestate liquor conspiracies caused the prosecutions of 1087 persons on conspiracy charges. The convictions of 396, each of whom received an average sentence of one year in jail.

Doran attacked as "inconsistent" business leaders who regard liquor drinking as an evil for their employes, but who feel the law should not interfere with their own drinking.

Defending raiding activities of Federal prohibition agents, which have been under fire during the year as the result of attendant shootings, Doran said that "untrained men are not sent out to enforce the law."

DRY LAW SCHOOLS

He pictured the prohibition bureau of today as being composed of highly trained men "who will compare favorable with any like body of men in the land."

"The officers and agents of the bureau of prohibition are men who are trained as attorneys, as accountants, as physicians, as chemists, as technologists, as pharmacists, and as criminal investigators," Doran said.

"Schools or dry agents and other prohibition workers are conducted in the district of every prohibition administrator," he explained. "In addition special lecturer are sent by the bureau into each district."

SOCIETY WIFE IS SENTENCED

Hartford, Ct., Sept. 25—As the outcome of a raid headed by Police Commissioner George S. Stevenson June 7, Mrs. Lillian S. Hastings, society woman, and Atty. Edward W. Broder in Superior Court were sentenced to four months in jail for a statutory offence.

The sentence of Mrs. Hastings, who has exhibited her prize string of horses at many shows, was suspended.

As a result of Stevenson's activity in connection with the case he was removed from the police board by Mayor Walter E. Batterson, after Democratic members of the Board of Aldermen had requested his removal.

R. Cleveland Hastings, Hartford broker, accompanied the raiders to Highland Court Hotel and found his wife in a room with Broder. It was alleged by city officials that Stevenson used his office as a committeeman to prevent publication by the police while Broder was severely beaten by Hastings. Later the Hastings home in West Hartford was guarded by police.

Soviet 24-Hour Day Wipes Out Holidays

Moscow, Sept. 25 (AP)—All religious holidays, including Sundays, are abolished under the new 24-hour system of labor introduced throughout the Soviet Union. Details of the arrangement were published today for the first time. Workers in virtually every department of the community are given a day of rest every five days.

The new system provides for a continuous 24-hour working day. While one set of employes is resting, another group will be actively at work, thus ensuring an "endless chain" of labor day and night.

BOMB THEATER IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Academy Theater, a burlesque house, was bombed after the evening performance, but while a chorus rehearsal was in progress on the stage.

Choristers and actors, still in costume, ran to the street. One chorus girl said she saw a man, his face bleeding, running away.

Leo Stevens, manager, said the bombing was "direct action," threatened by unknown persons ever since last April. He said he had received letters and phone calls warning he would be "taken for a ride." He attributed the bombing to the theater's policy of charging less for seats than some other houses.

SEE TRIUMPH FOR MARIE IN ROYAL TROTH

Bucharest, Sept. 25 (INS)—If the reported marriage proposal by King Boris, of Bulgaria, to Princess Ileana, of Rumania, is confirmed, it will mean one of the greatest diplomatic triumphs of Dowager Queen Marie's "marriage policy," according to belief expressed in court circles today. It is assumed that Boris would be accepted.

Dowager Queen Marie, mother of Ileana, long ago planned to become the dominant figure in Balkan politics through the nuptial affiliations of her children with other reigning families.

The reported proposal of King Boris is important because Bulgaria and Rumania are ancient enemies, especially since the great war when Rumania took over the Dobrudja district from Bulgaria.

The dowager queen's daughter Marie is queen of Jugoslavia, being wife of King Alexander.

Another daughter, Elisabeth, married former King George, of Greece.

The dowager queen would become Queen Mother of Jugoslavia and Bulgaria, and since Princess Helen, mother of King Michael, is not a political personage, of Rumania as well.

U. S. Flag Champions Thrilled by Paris

By FLOYD E. WILLIAMSON
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

Paris, Sept. 25—"More beautiful than we expected."

That was the verdict of the four boy and girl champions of the United States Flag Association's flag contest after their first day in Paris.

They enjoyed a day of sightseeing before the public and private functions that have been arranged in their honor during their stay here.

While the group was anxious to start on a tour of the city's famous boulevards, the two boys and two girls refused to leave their rooms until they had finished reading the scores of letters awaiting them here from friends at home.

In addition to seeing Maurice Chevalier on the stage, they had the pleasure of meeting him behind the scenes. They were the guests at the theater of Mme. Ganna Walska, who is their hostess in Paris.

Before starting for Versailles the champions will be formally received by officials of the French government. Tomorrow they will be luncheon guests of officials of the department of fine arts, and later have their photographs taken with Adolphe Menjou, who recently arrived in Paris and who is anxious to meet the young American patriots.

Arrangements for their reception by the officials of the French government were made known by Norman Armour, charge d' affaires at the American embassy here. He expressed keen appreciation of the benefits of the flag contest.

"Chocolates" Were $60,000 in Watches

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—A packing case stenciled "Chocolates," which proved to contain watch cases and watch movements from Switzerland worth $60,000, was removed by customs guards today from the French line pier, where it had been deposited by stevedores from the steamship De Grasse.

The consignee named on the manifest was Louis Poller, West Broadway truckman, who several days ago was held under $15,000 bail in a similar case.

Try 5000-Mile Flight

Paris, Sept. 25 (AP)—Lionel Demarier and Louis Favreau, French aviators, took off from Le Bourget Field today for a 5000-mile non-stop flight to Mozambique, South-east Africa.

TORTURE GUARD TO DEATH IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—A watchman at a lower East Side laundry was found dead early today, believed by the police a victim of torture by robbers who sought to learn from him the combination of the office safe.

The palms of both hands had been slashed. A chair in front of the safe indicated he had been forced to sit there while his captors tried to make him reveal the combination. Apparently failing in their efforts, they stabbed him in the back. The man was about 50 years old and identified only as Friedman. A bag of burglar tools was found, but the safe remained unopened.

London Woman Loses $30,000 Necklace

New York, Sept. 25—Mrs. George Rena Spero of London, England, reported to police the loss of a $30,000 pearl necklace on Fifth ave.

Mrs. Spero said she carried the necklace from her hotel on 42nd st. to a jewelry shop on Fifth ave. and 52nd st. The necklace was in a blue leather bag which she said she carried in the fold of a magazine under her arm.

FREE COOKING SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY

Housekeeping finances will come in for constructive discussion by Mrs. Lilla P. Cross at the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser free cooking school, to be conducted next week at the Hotel Statler.

It is an economic fact that the housewife spends about 85 per cent of the family income. Two items, food and equipment aside from such furnishings, represent a major portion of this outlay. To handle this great economic responsibility demands keen appreciation of values and demands every available aid in arranging a spending plan.

Mrs. L. P. Cross

An efficient spending plan insures an efficient saving plan, and both are dependent upon a definite budget, of which idea Mrs. Cross is a strong advocate.

Another important subject to be covered in these lectures is that of cheerful and efficient morning attire for housework. This matter has much to do with the housewife's state of mind and with the prevention of housework becoming a monotonous grind. Mrs. Cross will demonstrate in the cooking school attire these principles in house dresses, uniforms and aprons.

A subject not ordinarily thought of as being allied with that of finance and budget is one which to those who believe they are overweight or for those who plan to gain weight. Mrs. Cross has a large following of women who have been put on the right track in this matter of diets through cooking school discussions of all sides of this question.

It will be readily appreciated that the cooking school will be the biggest event of the season, offering lectures of real and lasting benefit as well as a jolly and entertaining relief from household duties.

A simple precaution to make this cooking school of individual and special benefit is to begin now to prepare some questions. Mrs. Cross assisting Martha Lee, carefully explains many angles of household labor-saving devices, diets, marketing, entertaining, but some phase vital to some individual may be omitted, and a question will bring it out, often to the benefit of everyone present. These questions may be written on blanks provided at the hall and answered daily from the platform.

Since everybody will be welcome and no tickets required for admission, women are planning now with their friends and neighbors to attend all sessions. Some of them are going to take home a well-loaded market basket gift or some dainty prepared by Martha Lee each afternoon, and on Thursday many women are going to be delighted with handsome major gifts contributed by Greater Boston merchants and of real value and utility in the home.

The opening will be on next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Doors of the imperial ballroom on the Hotel Statler will be open at 1 o'clock.

Uncover "Giant" Liquor Conspiracy

Portland, Ore., Sept. 25—Federal prohibition agents announced they had arrested 12 men, including George Mayes and Ernest Speehl, associates of Roy Olmstead, recent king of the Northwest bootleggers, now serving a term in McNeil Island prison, and disclosed that they termed a "giant" liquor conspiracy.

IMPRESSED BY RECEPTION TO DURANT

R. T. Hodgkins, general sales manager of the Durant Motors, spent the last two days visiting the local distributor for Durant motor cars.

Hodgkins stated: "I am particularly impressed with the way that the New England buying public is taking to the Durant product. It is particularly gratifying to know that the public appreciate the efforts of the new executive management of the Durant factories. It is a primary objective of the new management to continue this good will.

"It is the opinion of all of us who have to do with the policies and the selection of car models that the Durant franchise now offers an ideal opportunity for making profits, and I am convinced that nothing so adds to the earning capacity of an automobile company as enthusiastic co-operation between factory and dealer. It is axiomatic with me that the dealer must make money. Upon his prosperity depends the prosperity and progress of the factory. You have my hearty assurance that I shall devote all my efforts toward the end of mutual satisfaction and advancement.

"New England is apparently enjoying a period of unprecedented prosperity and this prosperity reflects itself throughout the entire country. Recently I have covered practically all of the larger cities in the United States, and I find that business men in general are in a most excellent frame of mind.

"It is, of course, particularly gratifying to know that in some states Durant is running as high as third in registrations, and in a great many states are in 10th place or better.

"The present pronounced trend toward Durant, among prominent automobile dealers possesses tremendous public significance. It is the best possible endorsement of Durant products and policies. It reveals a widespread and enthusiastic confidence in the new group of executives who now control Durant Motors, Inc., and it emphasizes Durant's competitive leadership in offering a line tested six under $1000 equipped with four speeds."

BUICK HAS BEST DAY IN HISTORY

Flint, Mich., Sept. 25—Experiencing the heaviest shipping day in the entire 26-year history of the Buick Motor Company, 1532 Buick and Marquette cars were shipped by the factory's traffic department on Friday, Aug. 30.

The day's shipment of cars broke the previous high record when 1451 automobiles were sent away.

Of the total number of cars shipped from the factory on Aug. 30, this year, 1332 were loaded into freight cars and sent to all parts of the world, the total figure including the export shipments. It required 425 freight cars to handle the record shipment. In addition to the number sent away by train 250 were driven away to nearby points.

Overland Declares Preferred Dividend

Toledo, O., Sept. 25—The regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock of the Willys-Overland Company was declared here by the board of directors. The dividend payment totals $278,185.25 on the 158,963 shares of outstanding preferred, payable October 1 to stockholders of record September 16.

The directors expressed gratification over the wide public acceptance of the new Willys-Knight Great Six, recently introduced. Sales of the new model, they said, with thousands of unfilled dealer orders on the books for immediate delivery, have necessitated maximum production.

Watch Tire Inflation

Tests have shown that from 25 to 30 per cent more mileage may be obtained by keeping tires inflated to the pressure recommended by manufacturers.

Silver Fleet Visits Buick

When the Goodrich Silver Fleet, now on its return trip across the continent, visited Flint, Mich., the 15 cars in the motor caravan paused at the offices of the Buick Motor Co. long enough for Comdr. Herbert Schaeffer to exchange greetings with Buick executives. In the photo he is shown being greeted by C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Co.

MONTH ORDER FOR FORDS OUT IN ONE WEEK

An order which ordinarily would have taken a month to deliver, was crowded through the Ford assembly plant at Somerville in a week, so that the Standard Brands, Inc., could start semi-weekly deliveries of Chase & Sanborn coffee to retailers in Boston and eastern Massachusetts on schedule.

A fleet of 50 trucks, Standard A and and Standard AA panel, were turned out in five days. Entire production of that model, according to R. C. Ives, assistant manager of the Somerville plant, is ordinarily 15 a day, and a 45-car order from one buyer would require a month to fill.

The Standard Brands fleet is declared to be the largest in Boston and eastern Massachusetts devoted to this type of service.

The institution of twice-a-week coffee deliveries, combined with dated cans to insure freshness, is hailed as an important advance in coffee distribution.

GILLIS OPENS FORD AGENCY

After 13 years as treasurer for one of the largest Ford dealerships in New England, John A. Gillis has organized Gillis, Inc., Ford agency in Charlestown.

A spacious salesroom at 18 City sq. and service station at 93 Chelsea st., totaling 26,000 square feet, puts this agency in among the larger sized distributors of the popular car.

The opening celebration took place yesterday and several hundred visited the specially decorated showrooms. Gillis has started in well with several fleet orders for commercial use, a field in which he intends to enlarge his efforts.

9 Service Stations Within 4 Blocks

Iowa Falls, Ia., claims to give motorists better service than any other town of its size. On Oak st. nine service stations are found within four blocks.

Gas Stations in Desert

A report from Africa states that there is a gas station at nearly every oasis on the Sahara Desert, providing refueling places for both camels and automobiles.

OLDSMOBILE IN GRUELLING ROAD TEST

Traveling day after day, week after week, and month after month, an Oldsmobile Six is participating in one of the most gruelling road tests automobiles have ever been put to. The Oldsmobile is part of the Goodrich Silver fleet, which now is completing a run which will take it through every state in the country and will pile up more than 30,000 miles.

The test, primarily, is being made to test the wearing ability of tires—but it also is proving a most efficient test of the stamina, performances abilities and wearing qualities of the automobiles. In fact, this run is again proving on the open road what millions of test miles proved at the General Motors Proving Ground before the Oldsmobile Six was offered to the public, says R. C. Gilmer, New England branch manager.

Recently the fleet visited Lansing, the home of the Oldsmobile Six, and at that time Dick Ray, pilot of the Oldsmobile, enthusiastically praised the splendid performance of his car.

"After 22,000 miles of driving I can say that Oldsmobile has more real ability and dependability than any car I have ever driven. The thing I get the biggest thrill out of is its performance. I never have driven a car that delivered getaway and speed with so little effort. And as for pulling power and hil-climbing, I have never yet found a mountain grade, or a mud or sand road too tough for Oldsmobile.

"The Oldsmobile has made the 22,000-mile trip without once faltering, and with nothing more than minor service. It must have good material all the way through to stand up, the way we have punished it.

"No other car has ever made a more strenuous run than this Oldsmobile, insofar as I know. The average driver on tours seeks good roads. We welcomed bad ones. The average driver covering the same ground would travel much slower. We kept up a steady pace, rain or shine, good roads or rocky ones.

Distilled Water Only for Battery

Under no circumstances should spring water, well water, or boiled water be used in the storage battery. Only distilled water or rain water should be used. Keep battery fully charged at all times, and add water often enough to keep the plates covered. It is not necessary to add acid unless some of the electrolyte has been taken out.

HUDSON-ESSEX IN NEW RECORD FOR 1929

Registration figures just issued by the Direct Mail Service and taken from the official records of the registry of motor vehicles show that Hudson-Essex registrations of new cars for the first eight months of this year have established a new, high record for all time in the territory controlled by the Henley-Kimball Company.

There were registered in that territory up to Sept. 1 of this year 11,395 new Hudson and Essex cars, while in the same territory for the entire year of 1928 there were registered 11,325 new Hudson and Essex cars.

"Not only has our record for the first eight months of this year," said C. G. Abbot of the Henley-Kimball Company, "exceeded any previous comparative period in the history of our company in the matter of new car sales, but it likewise has exceeded the entire year's business of 1928 which was up to this year our record year. One outstanding feature in the present situation is the excellent condition of both new and used car inventories throughout our territory.

"Dealers' stocks are as low as it would be practical for them to be in order to show samples of the wide variety of color options that are now offered in Hudson and Essex cars. Used car stocks are extremely low for this time of year and this is due very largely to the favorable public acceptance of used Hudson and Essex cars. It is a matter of common knowledge that a dealer takes in as trade-ins a very large percentage of the make of car which he handles. Therefore the success of an automobile with a dealer is largely dependent upon the demand in the used car market for that particular make of car as the liquidation of the used cars which he trades-in freely and without too much expense is essential to the success of his business.

Cords Off for the Paris Salon

Skidding Doesn't Show Negligence

The Supreme Court of Louisiana has just held that the mere fact that a motor vehicle skidded and caused injury is not evidence of negligence.

Breaking in Car

The arbitrary speed limit of a new car should be not more than 30 miles an hour when in high gear. In second gear, the engine is traveling at the same speed at 18 miles an hour or close to it.

Excess Speed Costs Driver $13 Fine

A judge in a traffic court in the District of Columbia fines speeders a dollar a mile. Motorists convicted of going a 35-mile-an-hour clip where the limit is 22 miles an hour, have to pay a $13 fine.

Glass Injures Tires

When it is impossible to avoid running over glass on the highway do not stop short, because a tire is much more likely to pick up a sharp object if it slides.

Autocar Reports Increase in Trucks

Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 25—The Autocar Co., motor truck manufacturers, reports a 20 per cent increase in deliveries of new Autocar trucks for the summer months of July and August, which, reflected in earnings for the same period, brings the net profits, applicable to common stock, for the first eight months of the current year up to $14.25 per share, after preferred dividends and federal taxes, compared with $5.09 per share for the first eight months of 1928.

the finest tire ever built.. the greatest value ever offered

the new ROYAL MASTER

When we created the new Royal Master we determined to build into it a measure of performance ... a capacity for mileage ... and stern qualities of endurance such as no tire ever before possessed. Production costs were forgotten. The vast resources of our entire organization were employed to make the new Royal Master the finest tire ever built. And it is! See it today!

RADIO NOTES -:- PROGRAMS -:- PERSONALITIES ON THE AIR

LISTENING IN

By BERT BROCKBANK
Radio Editor

SENATOR JOE ROBINSON of Arkansas, running mate of Al in the last presidential campaign, is the radio headliner for Friday night, but his thousands of friends and admirers in Boston will not have the privilege of hearing his voice. He is booked for a speech on the troublesome tariff issue over a coast-to-coast network of the NBC system. Local stations will not handle the broadcasts because of the priority of chain feature programs. Dyed-in-the-wool Democrats may hear him if they can cut through the locals and bring in WEAF of New York.

Next to the voice of Al, that of Joe would have been more than welcome to the faithful hereabouts. He was somewhat overshadowed in his radio talks during the national campaign, but he "eats no crow" and talks straight to the point. Friday he will pay respects politically to Senator Watson of Indiana, who aroused his ire in a recent attack. He will also direct a furious onslaught on the sugar armor of his opponents and attempt to mire the Republicans in their own tariff molasses.

YES, sir! and hey, hey! Wendell Hall, the "red-headed music maker," is coming to Boston for the ninth radio show and will make personal appearances in the Garden and in Exposition Hall during the week of October 7. This announcement by Sneldon H. Fairbanks, director of the show, will please the numerous followers of Wendell, who have placed him on a pedestal in the announcers' hall of fame. He is one of the most delightful personalities on the air and shares top-place honors with Graham McNamee.

From the Radio World's Fair in Madison Square Garden, New York, will come tonight's Mobiloil program to be heard locally through Station WEEI. The artists will be Gladys Rice, soprano, and Judson House, tenor, supported by a symphonic organization of 55 musicians under the direction of Erno Rapee. Outstanding works of Wagner will be included in the program, which opens with the prelude to the third act of "Lohengrin." Miss Rice will sing "Dreams" and Judson House will sing "Siegmund's Love Song."

A LONELY lighthouse keeper finds himself swept into the excitement of wartime adventure in the radio drama of the "Forty Fathom Trawlers," to be broadcast this evening from station WBZ at 9:30 o'clock. Graham McNamee and Old 40-Fathom will be on deck as the trawler Spray heads for the fish pier and the Singing Trawlers give their quota of sea-going chanties. The old skipper's wartime yarn promises to be the highlight of the broadcast, dramatized with realism and sound effects.

Plenty of moonlight, but nothing stronger than apple cider, nukes up the Harvest Moon program of the Ingram Shavers for tonight's broadcast, marking the end of summer and the advent of fall. An even dozen songs and musical selections have the moon as the theme, in addition to which a collection of barn dances and other compositions suitable to the season will be played. The Barbee Shop Trio will contribute seasonable choruses.

THE Jefferson Society will this evening inaugurate a series of after-dinner talks from WNAC at 7:35 o'clock. These talks are a part of the society's program for wider political education. Topics of vital public interest will be discussed, including bills before the Legislature, political forecasts, legislative policies and proposals which the businessman feel the public will want to understand. The speakers in the series will include Mrs. Jessie Woodrow Sayre, Prof. Malcolm P. McNair of Harvard Business School; former Mayor Andrew J. Peters, Larua Brown, Rep. Jeremiah Healy of Natick and John Pahey, editor of the Worcester Post.

James W. Nobbs, minstrel star of the '90's, who broadcasts every Wednesday evening from WLOE, made his first stage appearance 35 years ago at the old Austin and Stone Museum in Scollay sq. In a reminiscent mood, he said: "My partner, George Scofield, and myself did 10 shows a day. We received nine dollars a week and were proud of the fact. Every performance then started with the announcement, 'Gentlemen, remove your hats.'"

Ladies' Auxiliary Meets

Ladies Auxiliary 12, A. O. H., of Revere, opened its social season with a whist party in Hibernian hall on Winthrop ave., Revere. Mrs. Maria Shea, president, and Miss Annie McCarthy, chairman, were in charge of the meeting. Tea proceeds were added to the charity fund.

A DISPLAY OF GOOD TASTE AND SOUND JUDGMENT

GOOD taste is possible when you buy a GOOD USED CAR because you have practically every model and make from which to choose.

Sound judgment is granted because in buying a used car you are paying a price greatly below the actual value of the car. Conditions are such that, regardless of how little or how carefully a car has been used, its price depreciation is rapid once it is put on the Used Car Market.

The model you are interested in may be beyond your means as a new car, but look it up as a used car. You'll find style and mileage at low cost.

Look over the cars displayed by the Automobile Merchants of Greater Boston. Note the wide choice offered. Note the value offered—80% of the value for 60% of the list price.
